5. Fees and Compensation

Management Fees

Abbey Capital as Investment Manager receives a management fee in respect of some of the funds that it manages. The management fees, frequency of payment and calculation methods are negotiable depending on the specific features of the relevant fund. Not all funds managed by Abbey Capital charge a management fee. There are certain funds that feed directly into the ACL Alternative Fund, there are no management fees at the fund level, but as an investor in the ACL Alternative Fund, the relevant feeder fund will pay its pro rata share of the management fees paid by ACL Alternative Fund to Abbey Capital. The management fees are generally paid monthly in arrears, calculated and deducted by the relevant fund's independent Administrator at the rate provided in the applicable fund's Private Placement Memorandum. The management fee range listed relates only to Abbey Capital management fees, and additional management fees paid to the funds' appointed TAs are not included. The basic management fee schedule for the funds range from 0% to 2.0% of net assets per annum, depending on the applicable fund or class of shares in which an investor subscribes. Further disclosure in relation to management fees is set out in the PPM for each fund.

Other Expenses

Each fund managed by Abbey Capital pays any costs that are specific to that fund as outlined in the PPM for the relevant fund. These costs are deducted directly from the relevant fund.

Each fund managed by Abbey Capital pays the fees and expenses of (where applicable) the relevant Administrator, Custodian, Depository, Registrar and Transfer Agent, Corporate Secretary, Trustee and the management and incentive fees charged by any TA appointed to that fund. In addition, each fund pays secretarial, director fees and other costs and expenses incurred in its formation and its ongoing operation, including, without limitation, taxes, expenses for legal, auditing and consulting services, promotional expenses, registration fees, to include all fees in connection with obtaining advance treaty clearances from tax authorities in any jurisdiction for the relevant fund, and other expenses due to supervisory authorities in various jurisdictions, insurance, interest, brokerage costs and all professional fees and expenses incurred in connection therewith and the cost of the publication of the Net Asset Value of any of its funds' share classes.

6. Performance-Based Fees and Side-By-Side Management

Incentive Fees

Abbey Capital, as Investment Manager, receives an incentive fee in respect of some of the funds that it manages. The incentive fee range listed relates only to Abbey Capital incentive fees, and additional incentive fees paid to the funds' appointed TAs are not included. We are only entitled to performance fees if cumulative profits generated exceed the previous highest level of cumulative profits. Not all funds managed by Abbey Capital charge an incentive fee. There are certain funds that feed directly into the ACL Alternative Fund, there are no incentive fees at the fund level, but as an investor in the ACL Alternative Fund, the relevant feeder fund will pay its pro rata share of the incentive fees paid by ACL Alternative Fund to Abbey Capital. Further disclosure in relation to incentive fees is set out in the PPM for each relevant fund.

The basic incentive fee schedule for the funds range from 0% to 10% of net assets per annum, depending on the applicable fund or class of shares in which an investor subscribes.

Abbey may receive both management and incentive fees from certain of the funds that it manages. Managing funds that charge incentive fees and funds that are not, and/or funds that are charged different level of management and/or incentive fees may give to a conflict of interest by providing an incentive to prefer certain funds for which we receive performance-based fees and/or higher management fees. We address this potential conflict by adopting a remuneration policy where Abbey Capital does not pay commission to any member of staff and does not incentivize any member of staff to promote one fund over another. Rather, we establish and maintain a remuneration policy that aims to promote sound and effective risk management, without encouraging risk-taking that exceeds the level of tolerated risk of Abbey Capital or the funds that it manages. Additionally, Abbey Capital's investment process and operational procedures are designed and implemented, in part, to ensure that investments for all funds are effected in a fair and equitable manner. For more information about our investment process, please see Item 8.

The Directors of the funds managed by Abbey Capital may under the Bye-Laws of the funds establish and issue one or more different class(es) and sub-classes of shares to shareholders. Each share class and sub-class of shares may have different fees payable. The relevant fund and/or Abbey Capital may enter into Distribution Agreements, whereby shareholders who are clients of a Distributor may purchase a sub-class of shares notwithstanding that they do not meet the minimum subscription amount for that Sub-class of Shares.

Abbey Capital may, where applicable, receive payments from each fund in relation to the Management Fee and Incentive Fee. Abbey Capital may agree, in its discretion, to reimburse any shareholder or Distributor, or otherwise provide any of them with a rebate out of all or part of each such fee paid by the relevant fund in respect of a class or sub-class of shares. A Distributor that receives a rebate from Abbey Capital may have an incentive to promote one fund to investors over another product.

7. Types of Clients

Abbey Capital provides investment management services and advisory services, including investment supervisory services, to a number of clients that are pooled investment vehicles.

Save for the ACMAF and ACFSF (1940 Act Mutual Funds), the funds are sold privately under Regulation D of the U.S. Securities Act of 1933 in the United States and, therefore, can only be marketed to Accredited Investors. All of these private placement funds are also registered as commodity pools with the U.S. Commodity Futures Trading Commission ("CFTC") as Rule 4.7 exempted pools, and, therefore can only be marketed to Qualified Eligible Persons ("QEPs") as defined by CFTC regulations.

Prospective investors in private placement funds managed by Abbey Capital must therefore meet the requirement of being an Accredited Investor and a QEP in order to invest in the private placement funds.

8. Methods of Analysis, Investment Strategies and Risk of Loss

The investment objectives, and the methods and strategies employed by Abbey Capital and the TAs, and the risks associated with such strategies, are described in detail in the PPM for each fund, and are outlined briefly herein.

For its multi-manager funds, Abbey Capital seeks to construct robust portfolios by selecting TAs with a proven track record. Abbey Capital looks to combine TAs in order to seek to strengthen the risk-reward ratio. This approach relies on continuous monitoring of a wide range of measures including:

- the volatility level of each TA's trading;
- the drawdown of each TA;
- the positioning of each TA;
- the profit and loss of each TA;
- margin levels and limits for each TA; and
- the stop-loss levels at which Abbey Capital will remove a TA from a fund's portfolio.

Abbey Capital uses proprietary probability distribution functions together with other simulation techniques to derive realistic expectations not only for returns and volatility but also for the length and depth of drawdowns experienced at fund and TA levels.

In relation to TA selection, an extensive due diligence process is undertaken, including on-site visits, to identify and monitor operational and non-operational risks. Abbey Capital carefully selects TAs by markets traded, time frames used, and trading styles. The portfolios of the funds managed by Abbey Capital are designed on a robust, rather than an optimized, basis.

In relation to portfolio construction for Abbey Capital's multi-manager funds, Abbey Capital uses proprietary allocation models, analyzing returns, volatility and correlation between TAs. TA selection is based on a stringent due diligence process focused on both qualitative and quantitative factors. Information used in the due diligence process includes: the track record information received from the TAs, information from multiple on-site meetings, references and information from external sources. The funds allocate nominal funds to underlying TAs so that a target cumulative summated volatility exposure is achieved.

Once constructed, the overall portfolio and each underlying TA is analyzed daily so that adjustments and/or replacements can be made as appropriate.

ACL Global Fund

ACL Global Fund (a sub-fund of ACL Fund SICAV Plc) combines 100% targeted exposure to passive International Equity Indices (through Futures) with an additional targeted exposure of 55% to the ACL Alternative Fund, funded through leverage.

The risks associated with the investment strategies of the funds managed by Abbey Capital include but are not limited to the following:

General Risk

Trading in derivatives contracts is not suitable for all investors given its speculative nature and the risk of loss involved, including the risk of loss. There can be no assurance that any of the funds will achieve its investment objectives and an investment in any fund entails risks including the risk of losing all of such investment.

Prospective investors should take appropriate investment advice and inform themselves as to applicable legal requirements, exchange control regulations and taxes in the countries of their citizenship, residence or domicile. Investors must make their own investment decision, having reviewed the PPM/Prospectus carefully and consider whether trading is appropriate for them in light of their experience, specific investment objectives and financial position, and using such independent advisors as they believe necessary.

Abbey Capital does not recommend a particular type of security; it constructs portfolios on the basis of carefully selected TAs.

Credit risk

All leverage within the funds managed by Abbey Capital is achieved through the use of margin only and, as a result, the funds have no borrowing. The funds do, however, have credit risk in terms of their cash management policies and the Custodian, brokers and underlying banks with which excess liquidity is placed on a daily basis. Bank deposits are limited to A1 and/or P1 banks and strict limits are in place with respect to any one institution.

Volatility

Abbey Capital's multi-manager funds allocate on the basis of volatility and look to normalise the different underlying TAs in the funds when comparing returns. The funds allocate notional funds to all TAs so that a target cumulative summated volatility exposure is achieved.

The main volatility risk to these funds is that an underlying TA would trade significantly above or below their established volatility target. The structure used to allocate assets to underlying TAs means that Abbey Capital has full transparency of the volatility of each TA's position.

Rolling volatility is monitored at the fund and underlying TA level on a daily basis. The key metric used is the targeted volatility at the TA level and twice a year a full review of the underlying TA's target volatility is undertaken to ensure consistency.

Futures, Options and Swaps Risk

Trading in derivative contract markets, including futures, forwards, options and swaps, typically results in volatile performance. Several occasions in the recent past have witnessed sudden and major reversals in these markets, resulting in major losses for traders. The performance records of the funds managed by Abbey Capital have exhibited a considerable degree of volatility.

Highly Leveraged Trading

The low margin deposits normally required in futures and forward trading permit an extremely high degree of leverage. The funds managed by Abbey Capital may frequently hold positions with a gross value several times in excess of the respective fund's Net Assets. Consequently, even a slight movement in the prices of its open positions could result in significant losses.

Multi-Trading Advisor Approach

The funds may allocate capital to a number of managed accounts. Each account is operated by a TA, which implements a different strategy trading independent of the other TAs. In addition, the TAs will each calculate any applicable incentive compensation based on their individual performance, irrespective of the overall performance of the fund. The multi-manager approach of the fund involves material opportunity as well as out-of-pocket costs.

The fund may allocate and reallocate capital to multiple managers, through investment in the managed accounts. This investment approach involves substantial opportunity costs; as certain TAs will be incurring losses while others trading profitably. If the TAs holds offsetting positions, the fund itself cannot recognize any profits from the same positions, although significant brokerage commissions and advisory fees will be due.

Despite the opportunity costs of the multi-manager strategy, there can be no assurance, particularly in disrupted markets, that the multi-manager strategy will be successful in controlling risk.

Pandemic Risk

Disease outbreaks that affect local economies or the global economy may materially and adversely impact the funds managed by Abbey Capital and/or our business. Uncertainties regarding pandemics like the novel coronavirus (COVID-19) outbreak can result in serious economic and global market disruptions internationally including, without limitation, mandatory business closures, public gathering limitations, restrictions on travel and quarantines. These types of outbreaks can be expected to cause severe decreases in core business activities such as manufacturing, purchasing, tourism, business conferences and workplace participation, among others. These disruptions lead to instability in the market place, including stock market losses and overall volatility. In the face of such instability, governments have taken and may continue to take extreme and unpredictable measures to combat the spread of disease and mitigate the resulting market disruptions and losses. Abbey Capital has in place business continuity plans reasonably designed to ensure that we maintain normal business operations, and we periodically test those plans. However, in the event of a pandemic, there can be no assurance that we or the funds managed by Abbey Capital and our funds' service providers will be able to maintain normal business operations for an extended period of time or will not lose the services of key personnel on a temporary or long-term basis due to illness or other reasons.

The full impacts of a pandemic or disease outbreaks are unknown and difficult to predict, resulting in a high degree of uncertainty for potentially extended periods of time.

Other risks, which include but are not limited to, liquidity, currency, counterparty, settlement, Investment Manager, and TA risk, are outlined in more detail in the PPM for each fund.

9. Disciplinary Information

There are no legal or disciplinary events that are material to a client's or prospective client's evaluation of our advisory business or the integrity of our management.

10. Other Financial Industry Activities and Affiliations

Abbey Capital's principal business is that of an investment manager/adviser to our clients (the funds). In the event that a conflict of interest arises, Abbey Capital will endeavor to ensure that such conflict is eliminated or, if that is not possible, mitigated and disclosed to investors. It maintains policies and procedures, including a Conflicts of Interest Policy and a Code of Ethics which are designed to identify, manage and disclose conflicts of interest appropriately and prevent violations of the Investment Advisers Act of 1940. Its Remuneration Policy provides that Abbey Capital does not pay commission to any member of staff, does not incentivize any member of staff to promote one fund over another and aims to promote sound and effective risk management, without encouraging risk-taking that exceeds the level of tolerated risk of Abbey Capital or the funds that it manages.

11. Code of Ethics

Abbey Capital has adopted a Code of Ethics, including a policy on personal securities transactions, in accordance with the requirements of the Advisers Act. All employees must adhere to Abbey Capital's Code of Ethics which is provided to each employee on joining the company and must certify annually thereafter, their continuing adherence to the standards of the Code. A copy of the Abbey Capital Code of Ethics is available to clients upon request by contacting Abbey Capital by email.

Abbey Capital's Personal Securities Trading Policy requires employees to report their personal securities holdings, and the Code of Ethics imposes standards of conduct that apply to all of Abbey Capital's employees.

Participation or Interest in Client Transactions

Abbey Capital does not purchase or sell securities for its own account that it or a TA purchases for the funds.

Cavendish Capital allocates its assets to trading advisors, including some of the TAs appointed to trade on behalf of the funds managed by Abbey Capital, for its own proprietary account. Cavendish Capital and the trading advisors it allocates to may use investment strategies that are different to the funds' and this may result in Cavendish Capital taking positions that are the same as or opposite the positions taken by the funds managed by Abbey.

12. Brokerage Practices

The Credit Committee of Abbey Capital approves the clearing brokers that the funds utilize based on due diligence carried out by the company's CFO and COO. The Credit Committee is comprised of the CEO, CIO, Head of Research, CFO and Chief Risk Officer.

The compensation terms for brokers (clearing, execution fees and interest terms) are reviewed as part of the annual review of the relationship with the broker.

Abbey Capital does not receive any services from the brokers, and the funds do not engage in 'soft dollar' practices.

Abbey Capital does not permit the funds to direct brokerage. The clearing broker selection process is carried out by Abbey Capital, following its own internal due diligence process.

The TAs for each fund determine the executing brokers to be used and the commission rates paid. Abbey Capital reviews the brokerage costs of each fund on an annual basis for the purpose of ensuring that best execution is achieved. Among the factors that may be considered in determining whether a broker offers best execution are net price, capability and efficiency, expertise, responsiveness, reputation, financial strength and stability, fairness in resolving disputes, and other matters involved in the receipt of brokerage services generally.

Order Handling:

Abbey Capital does not receive orders from any of the funds that it manages, as it has complete discretion in relation to the management of the funds' assets. Abbey Capital carries out limited trading for the funds, as the majority of the trading carried out for the funds is delegated by Abbey Capital to the appointed TAs. Abbey Capital does not execute aggregated orders. Abbey Capital executes all orders on behalf of the funds promptly and sequentially, unless market conditions make this impracticable, or the interests of the funds or the investors require otherwise.

13. Review of Accounts

The TA portfolios are monitored on a daily basis using a proprietary risk management system. Parameters have been set in relation to return, volatility etc. and these are monitored by the Risk management team to ensure TAs and the portfolio are trading within agreed levels that are set out in the PPM and/or in the TA agreements. Changes in trading style, frequency etc. will be highlighted by the system and investigated by the team.

All allocation decisions are made by Abbey Capital as Investment Manager. The Investment Committee of Abbey Capital decides on TA allocations and any changes thereto, and these are carried out by the Research team. The Investment Committee meets monthly, and in addition, meets semi-annually with Abbey Capital's Research and Risk management team to review all TAs. Abbey Capital may allocate to TAs from different funds, at different times or at the same time, and the fees earned by Abbey Capital from each fund may differ. Abbey Capital has an incentive to allocate funds to a TA with capacity limitations on behalf of the fund that pays it the highest fees. Also a principal of a TA may invest into one of the funds managed by Abbey Capital and this has the potential to influence an allocation decision. Abbey Capital's Risk management team reports on TA activity to the Investment Committee on a daily basis.

Summary of Risk Management Process

Abbey Capital has developed a tiered risk management system incorporating both quantitative and qualitative risk measures to monitor and control exposure to the TAs.

On-Going Monitoring

Proprietary risk management systems, including a “Red Flag”, have been developed in order to monitor:

a)	Internal deviations from historic track record P&L, volatility, focus of investments, maximum draw-downs and asset concentration
b)	Internal deviations from expected track record
c)	External changes in marketplace - market liquidity, market volatility
d)	Correlations among components of portfolios in order to ensure that overall diversification are not reduced.

Daily return track record data is a minimum requirement and the fund will not allocate to a TA who is unable to provide this. Abbey Capital also requires monthly performance reports from each TA and can initiate calls as required.

Every TA is visited on-site at least once each year. Abbey Capital also monitors structural internal changes within TAs, including loss of personnel and movements in funds under management.

Stop-Loss Contingency

Predetermined stop loss levels are in place for each TA. TA agreements can be terminated, and positions closed out, by Abbey Capital, if required.

Investors in the funds managed by Abbey Capital may receive quarterly performance reports, semi-annual reports, including un-audited financial statements and annual reports, including audited financial statements, on the performance of the funds they have invested in.

14. Client Referrals and Other Compensation

Abbey Capital has entered into agreements with non-affiliated parties (that are suitably registered to distribute or market the fund in their jurisdiction), where Abbey Capital pays a portion of the management and/or incentive fee it receives from the fund, to such party in respect of investors introduced to the fund, or investors to which the fund has been distributed. Client (fund) referrals are not applicable.

15. Custody

Abbey Capital does not have custody of client funds or assets.

16. Investment Discretion

Abbey Capital is appointed to manage each of the aforementioned funds on a discretionary basis. This means that Abbey Capital has the authority to buy and sell securities and to trade futures and appoint and terminate TAs, without obtaining prior client (fund) approval. While day to day trade selection is undertaken by the TAs appointed by Abbey Capital to the funds, Abbey Capital is responsible for the larger strategic investment decisions such as determining, with fund board approval, a particular fund's investment strategy. Abbey Capital is also responsible for TA style combination and on-going risk management.

Abbey Capital's discretionary role is outlined in each Investment Management Agreement entered into with a fund.

17. Voting Client Securities

Abbey Capital has adopted a Proxy voting policy and procedure used to vote proxies relating to portfolio securities held by any fund. The Policy are designed to ensure that proxies are voted in the best interests of that fund's shareholders, with the goal of maximizing value to shareholders consistent with governing laws and the investment policies of the fund. Any potential conflict of interest involving Abbey Capital or any affiliate regarding a proxy is avoided through the strict and objective application of the fund's voting guidelines.

Abbey Capital maintains the following records in respect of any vote on behalf of a fund managed by Abbey Capital: the proxy statement; related research materials; proxy ballots and votes; the analysis and rationale for voting/not voting; all correspondence; and any written fund requests for proxy voting information and the information so provided.

A copy of the Abbey Capital Proxy voting policy is available to clients upon request by contacting Abbey Capital by email.
