Item 4 / Advisory Business

RREEF America L.L.C. ("RREEF"), a Delaware limited liability company, is an investment adviser registered with the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission ("SEC") since 1998. RREEF is part of the global investment management business of DWS Group GmbH & Co. KGaA ("DWS Group"), a German partnership limited by shares. DWS Group is a separate publicly listed financial services firm and an indirect majority-owned subsidiary of Deutsche Bank AG ("DB AG"). RREEF is an indirect subsidiary of DWS Group.

RREEF provides investment and advisory services to funds and institutional clients on a discretionary and non-discretionary basis. RREEF has offered its products and services to clients across a range of asset classes and investing styles, since its formation in 1975.

This brochure, including any brochure supplement, is intended for RREEF's direct advisory clients. Investors in any RREEF-advised fund should rely on the fund's prospectus or offering materials, and may therefore refer to this brochure, or any brochure supplement, for informational purposes only.

Client-Imposed Investment Restrictions

RREEF primarily manages direct real estate, as well as real estate, real asset, and infrastructure securities portfolios on behalf of separately managed account clients. RREEF works closely with these clients to understand their individual investment goals and objectives and recommends targeted investment strategies and vehicles. Subject to RREEF's review, these clients may impose investment restrictions on RREEF's investment strategies for their accounts. For direct real estate separately managed accounts, RREEF produces an Annual Strategic Investment Plan for each account.

With respect to commingled funds (including registered investment companies) managed by RREEF, investors generally do not have an ability to individually impose restrictions on the management of such vehicles. Further, such fund offerings are not tailored to address the specific investment objectives or circumstances of any specific investor.

Assets under Management

As of December 31, 2019, RREEF had discretionary assets under management of $58,972,822,922 USD and non-discretionary assets under management of $5,092,593,214 USD.

RREEF's assets under management noted above differ from those reported in Item 5.F. of RREEF's ADV Part 1 given the inclusion of the value of direct real estate investments within the Part 2A totals. While real estate investments generally are not considered securities under the instructions to ADV Part 1, and therefore are not included within the Item 5.F. assets under management totals, they are considered to be "assets" for which RREEF provides investment advisory services and hence their value is included within investment advisory fee calculations.

Investment Capabilities

Products listed below may be managed by RREEF either directly or through sub-advisory relationships with affiliated and non-affiliated entities. See Item 10 for information regarding certain affiliated arrangements related to RREEF's advisory business.

RREEF's policies and practices can vary by strategy and/or product type. RREEF's advisory services can vary by strategy and/or product type and geographic location.

The privately offered REITs, sold only to certain investors meeting specific eligibility requirements, will generally invest in commercial real estate properties using strategies that fall into one or more of the following general categories:

- ☐ Direct Real Estate—Core/Core Plus
- ☐ Direct Real Estate—Value-Added

SEC-Registered Non-Traded REIT

RREEF provides discretionary investment advisory services to a non-exchange-traded, perpetual-life REIT not registered as an investment company under the Investment Company Act (the “Registered Non-Traded REIT”). Shares of common stock of the Registered Non-

Traded REIT are offered to the public pursuant to a registration statement Form S-11 filed with the SEC, but not listed for trading on an exchange or other trading market. The Registered Non-Traded REIT invests in a diversified portfolio of commercial real estate properties and real estate securities, and may in the future invest in real estate loans, using elements of strategies falling into one or more of the following general categories:

- Liquid Real Assets—Real Estate
- Direct Real Estate—Core/Core Plus
- Direct Real Estate—Value Added
- Direct Real Estate—Debt

Model Portfolios

RREEF may provide model portfolio recommendations for a variety of investment styles to clients of RREEF and RREEF affiliates. Model portfolios may relate to the same investment strategies that are also offered or utilized through discretionary accounts. RREEF typically provides model portfolio recommendations on a non-discretionary basis; i.e., model portfolio recipients are responsible for interposing their own judgment in deciding that the model portfolio recommendations are appropriate for their client accounts and for determining whether and which recommended securities transactions are to be executed on behalf of their clients.

Non-U.S. Strategies/Other Arrangements

RREEF offers a variety of non-U.S. strategies through its sub-advisory relationships with advisory affiliates located outside the United States. Apart from furnishing investment advice to clients, RREEF also provides various investment advisory, consulting, administrative and research support services to its affiliates, pursuant to intercompany agreements.

RREEF may offer, and may negotiate fees with respect to, its investment advisory and research support services to other third-party fiduciaries, and may also render investment advice to specific accounts of such fiduciaries that contract with RREEF.

To provide financial services in Australia, RREEF relies on an exemption from the requirement to hold an Australian financial services license under the Corporations Act 2001 (Cth). RREEF is regulated by the SEC under applicable U.S. laws, which differ from Australian laws.

Environmental, Social and Governance Issues

RREEF may incorporate environmental, social and governance issues (“ESG”) into the investment decision making process where the financial performance of a company could be impacted and/or where the investment raises reputational or ethical concerns. Companies or states that contravene internationally accepted ethical principles, may be subject to heightened scrutiny.

RREEF determines ESG issues regarding investments on a case-by-case basis, in accordance with the particular client investment mandate and ESG considerations may differ greatly based on the region and preferences of a particular client or account. RREEF may implement controls regarding ESG investments as it deems appropriate, and portfolio management will be responsible for the ultimate investment decision.

Market Disruption Risk

Geopolitical and other events, including war, terrorism, economic uncertainty, trade disputes, public health crises and related geopolitical events have led, and in the future may lead, to increased market volatility, which may disrupt US and world economies and markets and may have significant adverse direct or indirect effects on the investment strategies and its investments. From time to time, public health emergencies could reduce consumer demand or economic output, resulting in market closures, travel restrictions or quarantines. These public health emergencies may have a significant impact on the local and global economy, which in turn could adversely affect returns. Such events include the recent pandemic spread of the novel coronavirus known as COVID-19, the duration and full effects of which are still uncertain.

Investment strategies could lose money due to the effects of a market disruption. Although multiple asset classes may be affected by a market disruption, the duration and effects may not be the same for all types of assets.

Item 5 / Fees and Compensation

RREEF's general policy is to assess client fees according to the current fee schedule of the investment strategy in which they are invested. Actual fees, minimum fees and minimum account size may vary depending on the circumstances of a particular client, additional or differing levels of servicing, or as otherwise agreed with specific clients. The specific terms and other conditions of client fees are set forth in the applicable governing documents, side letters and/or fee agreements.

- Liquid Real Assets: Asset-based management fees generally up to 0.85%.
- Direct Real Estate: Asset-based management fees generally up to 1.15%. Transaction fees generally up to 1.50% depending on the transaction type and specific contractual arrangements. Performance fees generally up to 20% of excess performance above applicable threshold returns. Certain clients incur other fees, including development and construction management fees (which are generally based on a percentage of approved construction or development budget) and loan origination fees (which are generally based on a percentage of amounts borrowed).
- Infrastructure Debt Asset-based management fee generally up to 0.50%. Performance fees generally up to 20% of excess performance above applicable threshold returns.
- Fees are typically based on the combined market value of all securities, non-securities assets, and cash on the accounting date and are payable quarterly or monthly either in advance or in arrears based on the quarter or month end value, as applicable, and as also dictated by the client's investment management agreement (IMA). RREEF may also enter into performance based fee arrangements with eligible clients.

RREEF may deduct fees directly from the client account subject to the terms of the applicable governing documents, side letters and/or fee agreements. RREEF renders invoices in accordance with fee schedules included in the applicable governing documents, side letters and/or fee agreements.

Fees are negotiable, and RREEF may also charge a lower fee depending on the entirety of the overall relationship with a particular client, or for any other reason, in RREEF's discretion.

Typically, RREEF does not impose multiple levels of advisory fees when an advisory client's assets are invested in an affiliated investment vehicle. Specifically, client holdings of investment companies advised or sub-advised by RREEF and held in a separately managed account are excluded from the basis of RREEF's fee computation. Clients will incur additional fees and expenses relating to third-party services, including, but not limited to administration, custodian, transfer agent and other similar fees. Charges for custody arrangements are billed to the client by the relevant custodian.

In addition to paying advisory fees, clients may pay brokerage commissions, mark-ups, mark-downs and/or other commission equivalents related to transactions in their advisory accounts. See Item 12 for a discussion on Brokerage Practices.

For securities separately managed accounts, fees that accrue for partial periods are prorated for the number of days remaining in the quarter and are based upon the ending net asset value for the quarter. For direct real estate separately managed accounts, fees that accrue for partial periods are generally based upon the portfolio's beginning net asset value for the quarter.

In addition to the fees paid to RREEF that are described above, clients are also generally responsible for operating expenses incurred on their behalf in connection with RREEF's services. In connection with RREEF's services there may be fees, costs and expenses incurred for the benefit of more than one client (including fees, costs and expenses relating to insurance, software and technological systems used for the benefit of clients). Each client generally bears an allocable portion of any such fees, costs and expenses in proportion to the size of its investment in the activity or entity to which the fee, cost or expense relates or in such other manner as RREEF considers reasonable under the circumstances.

Termination Arrangements

An advisory relationship with a client is generally terminable at will by either party. Certain agreements may require a notice period before the termination becomes effective. In addition, some agreements may require certain events to occur prior to the termination of the investment advisory relationship. Furthermore, certain agreements may also stipulate that RREEF may not resign as investment adviser until a successor has been appointed. In the event of termination, investment advisory fees are generally prorated to the date of termination and, to the extent they have been paid for periods beyond the date of termination; the fees are refunded to the client.

Registered Investment Companies/Pooled Vehicles

RREEF acts as an investment sub-adviser to certain U.S. registered investment companies. With respect to U.S. registered investment companies, each U.S. registered investment company's prospectus sets forth the applicable fees and expenses.

RREEF acts as an investment adviser to unregistered U.S. and non-U.S. pooled investment vehicles and commingled private funds, which generally pay fees to RREEF as described above and bear their own operating and organizational expenses. With respect to such pooled investment vehicles advised by RREEF, please refer to the applicable private placement memorandum or offering memorandum and/or other governing documents that describe the applicable fees and expenses.

Compensation of Supervised Persons

Supervised persons do not earn commissions for the sale of securities or other investment products; rather, RREEF's supervised persons receive a base salary along with an annual discretionary bonus. A supervised person's bonus is based upon factors that include, but are not limited to: profitability of DWS Group (of which RREEF is an indirect subsidiary) and its affiliates and RREEF's businesses, and contributions of that individual to the success of DWS Group and RREEF-related businesses.

Item 6 / Performance-Based Fees and Side-by-Side Management

In addition to asset-based investment management or advisory fees, RREEF receives performance-based fees for certain pooled investment vehicles and separately managed accounts. These accounts may be managed side-by-side under the same investment strategy with accounts and/or funds that do not pay such fees. This type of arrangement may create an incentive for RREEF to favor its performance-fee accounts when allocating investment opportunities that also suit its non-performance fee accounts managed under the same strategy. Performance-based fees may also create an incentive for RREEF to make riskier or more speculative investments than those potentially made in the absence of such fees. Due to the method of calculating performance fees, the timing of dispositions and other factors within RREEF's control may have an effect on the fee amount. The performance fees are computed based on realized and appraised appreciation, and calculations based on appraised values may not necessarily correspond to realizable value.

To manage these potential conflicts, RREEF has implemented policies and procedures reasonably designed to provide fair and equitable treatment of similarly situated clients. Under these policies and procedures, and consistent with its fiduciary obligations, RREEF will allocate investment opportunities among client accounts based upon a number of factors that may include, but are not limited to:

- Investment objectives and guidelines;
- Risk tolerance;
- Availability of other investment opportunities; and
- Available cash for investment.

With respect to its Liquid Real Assets strategies, RREEF will allocate investment opportunities on a pro-rata average price basis to eligible accounts. For illiquid assets, excluding Infrastructure Debt Investments, if RREEF determines that an investment is equally suitable for more than one client, the client who has waited the longest since making its last investment-according to its position on a rotation list-shall have priority. For Infrastructure Debt Investments, if RREEF determines that an investment is equally suitable for more than one client, the investment is generally allocated on a pro rata basis.

Item 7 / Types of Clients

RREEF provides investment advisory services to pooled vehicles, which include funds that are registered and not registered under the Investment Company Act. With respect to these arrangements, RREEF views the funds to which it provides investment advice as its clients. Investors participating in unregistered pooled vehicles may be required to meet certain suitability and net worth qualifications.

RREEF may also enter into direct separately managed engagements to provide investment advisory services to a range of institutional clients on a global basis, including:

- Government/public entities;
- International public authorities;
- Banks or thrift institutions;
- Pension and profit sharing plans, including those covered under the Employee Income Retirement Income Security Act of 1974, as amended ("ERISA");
- Religious organizations;
- Colleges and universities;
- Foundations and endowments;
- Trusts, estates, or charitable organizations; and
- Corporations or business entities.

Item 8 / Methods of Analysis, Investment Strategies, and Risk of Loss

Methods of Analysis and Investment Strategies - Liquid Real Assets

RREEF's securities analysis methods include fundamental analysis in addition to the analysis described below.

RREEF's main sources of information include:

- Financial periodicals;
- Inspections of corporate activities;
- Third party research materials, annual reports, prospectuses and filings with the SEC; and
- Company press releases.

The types of trading used to implement investment strategies include:

- Long term purchases (securities held at least a year);
- Short term purchases (securities sold within a year); and
- Trading (securities sold within 30 days).

RREEF procures information from external real estate professionals, conducts independent research, and factors in real estate, real asset, and infrastructure securities market considerations when it makes investment decisions. RREEF evaluates the underlying holdings of the issuers such as REOCs and REITs and examines each issuer's management and capital structure, its financial situation and business strategy. RREEF tracks various property types and searches for issuers that it believes will generate the most profit. It focuses on real estate companies and investments with strong cash flow growth potential and a capacity for sustained dividend increases.

For international strategies, RREEF may engage affiliates that have regional market expertise outside of the Americas, who will act as sub-advisers in Europe, Australia, and Asia, subject to the overall supervision of RREEF. Each sub-adviser is an SEC-registered investment adviser under the Investment Advisers Act of 1940, as amended ("Investment Advisers Act"), or is exempt from SEC registration.

Methods of Analysis and Investment Strategies - Direct Real Estate

REIT entities acquire, improve, operate and hold real properties that produce income, and therefore RREEF considers the following when making investments for REITs:

- Cash flow;
- Appreciation prospects;
- Appraisal of value by RREEF;
- Appraisal of value by third parties;
- Prospects for safety of principal;
- Condition and use of property; and
- Location

RREEF maintains regular contact with investment and leasing real estate brokers and property owners in major markets through personal visits, investment presentations to sales staffs and individualized quarterly broker mailings.

The real estate investment team performs acquisitions research analyses and negotiations. RREEF's "due diligence period" commences upon identification of a suitable property to verify the information provided by the seller. RREEF typically conducts a detailed market study, interviews tenants, reviews the lease and the property's financial operating history and retains structural and environmental engineers to perform a physical inspection of the property and grounds. Members of the team also visit the property during the due diligence period.

Methods of Analysis and Investment Strategies - Infrastructure Debt Investments

RREEF has developed a process for the selection, purchase and monitoring of infrastructure debt investments. RREEF targets newly originated loans based on its view that such loans will generally offer higher risk-adjusted returns.

RREEF has existing relationships with sponsors, banks and other advisers that collectively may provide wide market coverage. RREEF will screen for investment opportunities that meet a client's eligibility criteria and then prioritize them on a relative value basis with the aim of constructing an optimal portfolio that maintains compliance with applicable investment guidelines and purchase criteria.

RREEF primarily pursues a hold-to-maturity strategy and manages the portfolio to maximize returns within the constraints of applicable investment guidelines. It evaluates investments on a quarterly basis as financial information on each infrastructure obligor becomes available.

Investment Strategies and Criteria for REITs

The REITs' principal investment objective is to maximize total returns to investors through cash distributions and appreciation in the value of REIT shares. A secondary investment objective is diversification, both geographically and in the number and types of properties acquired. In pursuit of these objectives, each REIT's strategy is to acquire equity or equity-like interests in apartment, industrial, retail and office properties in targeted metropolitan areas within the continental United States. These properties will be managed with a view to current income and sold when the REIT board concludes that market conditions and property positioning will realize optimal value.

In all cases, clients should review the applicable offering materials to understand the specific terms, features and risks of a specific REIT offering.

The REIT's may acquire assets with existing debt in place, may replace existing loans (e.g., refinance) and may incur secured or unsecured debt. If necessary to preserve its real estate investment trust status under the Code, the REITs may borrow by means of one or more lines of credit or other arrangements with banks, or by the placement of debentures or other instruments.

Separately Managed Accounts

Separately managed account strategies are established in consultation with the client and vary depending on the contract with the client. Generally, RREEF will employ the investment strategies described above and in Item 4 (Advisory Business) for separately managed accounts.

Risk of Loss

The following is a summary of material risks associated with RREEF's investment strategies and the investment techniques employed by RREEF's investment teams. The summary does not include every potential risk associated with each investment strategy or applicable to a particular client account and clients should not rely solely on the descriptions provided below. To the extent clients receive prospectuses, constituent documents, supplemental risk disclosures or other applicable documents pertaining to their investments, clients should also carefully read the product-specific risk disclosures contained therein.

Investing, including investing in real estate related assets, involves risk of loss that clients should be prepared to bear.

General Risk Factors to Consider in Liquid Real Assets—When Investing in Real Estate, Infrastructure and other Real Assets Securities

- Real Estate Market Volatility. The performance of real estate securities is highly correlated to the commercial and residential real estate markets and the value of real estate securities in general, and REITs in particular, are subject to the same risks as direct investments in the underlying properties, loans or interests. The value of these securities will rise and fall in response to many factors, including economic conditions, the demand for rental property and interest rates. In particular, the value of these securities may decline when interest rates rise and will also be affected by the real estate market and by the management of the underlying properties. REITs may be more volatile and/or more illiquid than other types of equity securities.

- Infrastructure Market Volatility. The performance for infrastructure securities is highly correlated to the broad macroeconomic trends for infrastructure related securities. Infrastructure companies are susceptible to various factors that may negatively impact their businesses or operations, including, without limitation, costs associated with compliance with and changes in applicable regulations, the effects of general economic conditions worldwide, increased competition, uncertainties and delays with respect to the timing and receipt of government and/or regulatory approvals, uncertainties regarding the availability of natural resources at reasonable prices, unfavorable tax laws, and high leverage.
- Concentration risk—Real Estate Securities. The strategy may invest without limitation in securities of companies engaged principally in the real estate industry, and will therefore be susceptible to adverse economic, business, regulatory or other occurrences affecting real estate companies. Real estate companies, including REITs, can be affected by the risks associated with direct ownership of real estate, such as general or local economic conditions, decreases in real estate value, increases in property taxes and operating expenses, liabilities or losses due to environmental problems, delays in completion of construction, falling rents (whether due to poor demand, increased competition, overbuilding, or limitations on rents), zoning changes, rising interest rates, lack of credit, failure of borrowers to repay loans and losses from casualty or condemnation. In addition, many real estate companies, including REITs, utilize leverage (and some may be highly leveraged), which increases investment risk. Further, REITs are dependent upon management skills, may not be diversified and may have relatively small market capitalizations, which can increase volatility. REITs must satisfy certain requirements in order to qualify for favorable tax treatment under applicable tax laws, and a failure to qualify could adversely affect the value of the REIT. By investing in REITs through a strategy, an investor will bear expenses of the REITs in addition to expenses of the strategy.

General Risk Factors to Consider When Investing in Direct Real Estate-Related Assets

Investments in direct real-estate related assets are subject to various risks, including:

- the cyclical nature of the real estate market and changes in national or local economic or market conditions;
- the financial condition of tenants, buyers and sellers of properties;
- changes in supply of, or demand for, properties in an area;
- various forms of competition;
- fluctuations in lease rates;
- changes in interest rates and in the availability, cost and terms of financing;
- promulgation and enforcement of governmental regulations, including rules relating to zoning, land use and environmental protection;

- changes in real estate tax rates, energy prices and other operating expenses;
- changes in applicable laws and increased governmental regulation; and
- various uninsured or uninsurable risks and losses.

The marketability and value of a client's investments, and the revenues generated by such properties, will depend on factors beyond the control of the client and RREEF. Investing, including investing in real estate related assets, involves risk of loss that clients should be prepared to bear.

Any strategy that concentrates in a particular segment of the market will generally be more volatile than a strategy that invests more broadly. Given the cyclical nature of the real estate market, changes in national or local economic or market conditions could have an adverse effect on the strategy. In addition changes in the financial condition of tenants, buyers and sellers of property, competition, fluctuations in lease rates, the length of leases, and in the availability of financing will have a significant impact on the strategy's performance and any applicable lock-up periods.

Affiliates of RREEF lease, and may in the future lease, office space from properties owned by one or more of its clients, which may create an incentive for RREEF to offer lease terms to its affiliate at a below market rate potentially in conflict with the interests of the client. To mitigate this conflict, RREEF generally requires that in such a situation the relevant client consent to the lease terms, that an opinion be received from an independent party that the lease terms are consistent with market terms, that personnel information barriers for each party involved in the lease negotiations are put in place, and that separate service providers be engaged to represent each party in the negotiations.

Specific Risk Considerations with Respect to Non-Public REITs Managed by RREEF

- The REITs intend at all times to qualify as "real estate investment trusts" under the provisions of the Code. However, failure in any taxable year to distribute to stockholders at least 90% of their real estate investment trust taxable income will result in the REITs having to pay tax on their taxable income at regular corporate rates. The REIT cannot deduct distributions to stockholders in any non-qualifying year(s).
- Although each REIT's shares are freely transferable, subject to certain restrictions, an investment in each REIT is intended to be long term. No public or private market currently exists for the shares. REIT investors may dispose of shares by redeeming them, but depending on available liquidity and other restrictions, shares may have limited or no liquidity.
- Although the REITs will strive to acquire a diversified portfolio of multi-family, industrial, retail and office properties, such diversification may not exist during each REIT's initial stages, and each REIT may not achieve its overall diversification goals.

Specific Risk Considerations with Respect to Pooled Real Estate Funds Managed by RREEF

Unlike exchange-listed and other readily tradable securities, real estate assets generally cannot be marked to an established market. The periodic valuation of each pooled real estate fund's assets will serve as the basis for determining the value of interests in such fund prior to the time, if any, that a public trading market for the shares exists as well as the purchase and redemption price for such fund interests. Valuations of real properties are estimates of fair value and may not necessarily correspond to realizable value. Because the valuation of properties is inherently subjective, a fund's net asset value may not accurately reflect the actual price at which its assets could be liquidated on any given day.

Specific Risk Considerations with Respect to Private Real Estate Investments Managed by RREEF

- Instead of making investments directly, RREEF, on behalf of the client, may make investments through joint ventures.
Such investments may involve risks not present in wholly owned investments, including, for example, the possibility that a co-venturer of the client may have economic or business interests inconsistent with those of the client.
- Private real estate investments will generally be illiquid compared to traditional asset classes. The client may be unable to realize its investment objectives by sale or other disposition at attractive prices within any given period of time.
- In addition to the risks involved in owning and operating established properties, the real estate development business, including the renovation and rehabilitation of existing properties, involves certain specific risks, including:
 - Construction not completed on schedule or within budget, resulting in increased debt service and construction costs and potential delays in leasing properties;
 - Possible delays in obtaining necessary zoning, land-use, building, occupancy and other required governmental permits and authorizations; and
 - New or renovated properties may perform below anticipated levels, producing cash flow below budgeted amounts.
- In purchasing property, a buyer faces the risk that environmental statutes or regulations, which may be unpredictable, will result in obligations and/or liabilities beyond the buyer's control. For example, the current owner of a parcel of land may be liable for environmental problems at or emanating from the parcel of land that were caused by a past owner or current operator of the site.
- To protect the client's real estate assets from liabilities that may arise from any particular investment, RREEF, on behalf of the client, may acquire and hold title to one or more individual properties through wholly owned subsidiaries, limited partnerships, or other organized entities, as noted above. However, this investment structure may not guarantee the confinement of a loss to that entity. A parent corporation deemed an "operator" of a facility or property based on its actions, may have liability.

Specific Risk Considerations with Respect to the Registered Non-Traded REIT Managed by RREEF

- The Registered Non-Traded REIT intends at all times to qualify as a “real estate investment trust” under the provisions of the Code. However, failure in any taxable year to distribute to stockholders at least 90% of their real estate investment trust taxable income will result in the REIT having to pay tax on their taxable income at regular corporate rates. The REIT cannot deduct distributions to stockholders in any non-qualifying year(s).
- Although the Registered Non-Traded REIT’s shares are freely transferable, subject to certain restrictions, an investment in the REIT is intended to be long-term. No public trading market for shares of its common stock exist. The Non-Traded REIT may dispose of shares by redeeming them, but depending on available liquidity and other restrictions, shares may have limited or no liquidity.
- Although the Registered Non-Traded REIT will strive to acquire a diversified portfolio of commercial real estate properties, real estate securities and real estate loans, such diversification may not exist during its initial stages and it may not achieve its overall diversification goals.

Specific Risk Considerations with Respect to Real Estate Debt Investments Managed by RREEF

Asset-Backed, Mortgage-Related and Mortgage-Backed Securities Risk. The value of mortgage-related and asset-backed securities will be influenced by the factors affecting the property market and the assets underlying such securities. As a result, during periods of difficult or frozen credit markets, significant changes in interest rates, or deteriorating economic conditions, mortgage-related and asset-backed securities may decline in value, face valuation difficulties, be more volatile and/or be illiquid. The risk of default for “sub-prime” mortgages is generally higher than other types of mortgage-back securities. The structure of some of these securities may be complex and there may be less available information than other types of debt securities.

Mezzanine Loans Risk. Mezzanine real estate loans may be secured by one or more direct or indirect ownership interests in an entity owning, operating and/or controlling, one or more real estate properties. Commercial properties owned by such entities are likely to be subject to existing mortgage loans and other indebtedness. Repayment of the loans underlying mezzanine loans are dependent on the successful operation of the underlying real estate properties. Unlike mortgage loans, mezzanine loans are not secured by interests in the underlying real estate properties and are structurally subordinate to senior debt, which are typically secured by the property. Although unlikely, the ownership interests securing a mezzanine loan may represent only a partial interest in the borrower and may not control either the borrower or the underlying property. As a result, the effective realization on the collateral securing a mezzanine loan in the event of default may be limited.

Specific Risk Considerations with Respect to Infrastructure Debt Investments Managed by RREEF

The infrastructure debt strategy involves a high degree of risk. The possibility of partial or total loss of capital exists and investors must prepare to bear capital losses that could result from the strategy. The risks associated with investing in infrastructure debt include, but are not limited to, the following:

- The acquired assets will consist primarily of non-investment grade private loans of obligors operating infrastructure businesses. These assets, generally considered speculative in nature, may become a defaulted obligation for a variety of reasons;
- Investing in debt associated with infrastructure assets involves many factors beyond the reasonable control of RREEF;
- The infrastructure finance loans are complex and have limited liquidity;
- Infrastructure debt obligors, or the infrastructure assets they own or control, may be subject to statutory and regulatory requirements that include those imposed by zoning, environmental, safety and labor;
- Infrastructure debt obligors rely on complex licenses, concessions, leases or contracts regulated by a significant number of governmental or regulatory authorities;
- Infrastructure assets are subject to operational risks that may adversely affect operation of the asset/obligor;
- Infrastructure providers are subject to the risk of payment default;
- Investment in infrastructure debt related to undeveloped land (green field assets) may not produce income until the project is operational;
- Infrastructure debt obligors may depend upon prevailing market prices for commodities; and
- Infrastructure assets are associated with construction, environmental, catastrophic, and sovereign risks.

Master limited partnership ("MLP") risk

Investments in securities of MLPs involve risks that differ from investments in common stock, including risks related to limited control and limited rights to vote on matters affecting the MLP, risks related to potential conflicts of interest between the MLP and the MLP's general partner, cash flow risks, dilution risks and risks related to the general partner's right to require unit-holders to sell their common units at an undesirable time or price. Certain MLP securities may trade in lower volumes due to their smaller capitalizations and may be subject to more abrupt or erratic price movements and lower market liquidity. MLPs are generally considered interest-rate-sensitive investments. During periods of interest rate volatility, these investments could have poor returns. MLPs are also subject to various risks related to the underlying operating companies they control, including dependence upon specialized management skills and the risk that such companies may lack or have limited operating histories. Investments held by MLPs may be relatively illiquid, limiting the MLPs' ability to vary their portfolios promptly in response to changes in economic and other conditions.

General Risk Considerations

General Market Risk.

Economies and financial markets throughout the world are becoming increasingly interconnected, which increases the likelihood that events or conditions in one country or region will adversely impact markets or issuers in other countries or regions. Securities in any one strategy may under perform in comparison to general financial markets, a particular financial market or other asset classes, due to a number of factors, including inflation, interest rates, global demand for particular products or resources, natural disasters or events, terrorism, regulatory events and government controls.

Currency Risk.

Changes in foreign currency exchange rates will affect the value of portfolio securities and devaluation of a currency by a country's government or banking authority also will have a significant impact on the value of any investments denominated in that currency. Currency markets generally are not as regulated as securities markets.

Liquidity Risk.

Investments in some equity and privately placed securities, structured notes or other instruments may be difficult to purchase or sell, possibly preventing the sale of these illiquid securities at an advantageous price or when desired. A lack of liquidity may also cause the value of investments to decline and the illiquid investments may also be difficult to value.

Geographic and Sector Focus Risk.

Certain strategies and funds concentrate their investments in a region, small group of countries, an industry or economic sector, and as a result, the value of the portfolio may be subject to greater volatility than a more geographically or sector diversified portfolio. Investments in issuers within a country, state, geographic region, industry or economic sector that experiences adverse economic, business, political conditions or other concerns will impact the value of such a portfolio more than if the portfolio's investments were not so concentrated. A change in the value of a single investment within the portfolio may affect the overall value of the portfolio and may cause greater losses than it would in a portfolio that holds more diversified investments.

Foreign Securities and Emerging Markets Risk.

Investments in securities of foreign issuers denominated in foreign currencies are subject to risks in addition to the risks of securities of U.S. issuers. These risks include political and economic risks, civil conflicts and war, greater volatility, currency fluctuations, higher transactions costs, delayed settlement, possible foreign controls on investment, expropriation and nationalization risks, liquidity risks, and less stringent investor protection and disclosure standards of some foreign markets. Events and evolving conditions in certain economies or markets may alter the risks associated with investments tied to countries or regions that historically were perceived as comparatively stable becoming riskier and more volatile. These risks are magnified in countries in emerging markets, which may have relatively unstable governments and less-established market economies than those of developed countries. Emerging markets may face greater social, economic, regulatory and political uncertainties.

These risks make emerging market securities more volatile and less liquid than securities issued in more developed countries.

Legal, Regulatory and Enforcement Risks

RREEF and its global affiliates are regulated and supervised by the central banks and certain regulatory authorities in the jurisdictions in which they operate. In recent years, regulators and governmental bodies have sought to subject investment advisers to increasing regulation. Pending and ongoing regulatory reform may have a significant impact on RREEF's investment advisory business.

Specifically, in the United States, the Dodd-Frank Wall Street Reform and Consumer Protection Act of 2010 (the "Dodd-Frank Act") included significant alterations to the regulations applicable to financial institutions and investment advisers including RREEF and its affiliates, as well as the investment advisory accounts RREEF sponsors and manages. The Dodd-Frank Act reforms were expansive in scope and required the adoption of extensive regulations and numerous regulatory decisions. Among other requirements, the "Volcker Rule", which came into full effect on July 21, 2017, limits the ability of banking entities and their affiliates, including RREEF, to sponsor and invest in, and in some cases serve as investment manager of, investment advisory accounts. Other than with respect to certain investments in foreign funds for which an extension has been granted by the regulators pending further regulatory guidance and final rulemaking, all of DWS Group's activities, investments and transactions with or involving a covered fund have been conformed to the Volcker Rule.

RREEF takes advantage of certain exemptions and exclusions under the Volcker Rule that allow it to continue its investment advisory business. For instance, under the asset management exemption, RREEF may sponsor and advise a covered fund but is prohibited from owning more than 3% of the outstanding ownership interests of such covered fund, among other conditions and restrictions. Moreover, certain of the investment advisory accounts are not covered funds because they would not be considered investment companies under the Investment Company Act or because they are foreign funds not sponsored by a U.S. banking entity that were organized and offered in offshore transactions targeting non-U.S. Persons; these investment advisory accounts are generally considered outside the jurisdictional limit or scope of the Volcker Rule. Moreover, recent legislative changes and proposed rulemakings will likely change the regulatory landscape and require additional interpretation or a changed approach. For example, through the Economic Growth Regulatory Relief and Consumer Protection Act signed into law in May of 2018, Congress amended the Volcker Rule statutory provisions concerning the naming of covered funds, which would allow RREEF to share its name with covered funds. Also in January of 2020, the five federal agencies who implemented the Volcker Rule issued proposed revisions that if implemented may have an impact on RREEF's investment advisory business and could require a different approach or additional interpretation. The ultimate impact of these amendments will depend on the final language of the rule, as well as any accompanying guidance or interpretive positions provided by the regulators, in addition to evolving industry practice and standards.

A number of U.S. states and governmental pension plans have adopted so-called "pay-to-play" laws, regulations or policies which prohibit, restrict or require disclosure of payments to (and/or certain contacts with) state or local officials by individuals and entities seeking to do business with state or local entities, including those seeking investments by public retirement funds. The SEC has also adopted rules that, among other things, prohibit an investment adviser from providing advisory services for compensation to certain government affiliated investors for two years after the adviser or certain of its executives, employees or agents make a contribution to certain elected officials or candidates. Such laws, regulations or policies may inhibit an investment adviser from providing advisory services for compensation to a governmental client. If RREEF or any of its employees or affiliates or any service provider acting on their behalf fails to comply with such laws, regulations or policies, such non-compliance could have an adverse effect on RREEF's clients.

Further, final regulations adopted under the Dodd-Frank Act and comparable European laws and regulations relating to regulation of swaps and derivatives will continue to impact the manner by which RREEF and its advisory accounts use and trade swaps and other derivatives, and may increase the costs of derivatives trading.

RREEF and its investment advisory accounts may also be subject to regulation in the jurisdictions in which they engage in business. Other jurisdictions outside the United States in which RREEF operates are also in the process of devising or considering more pervasive regulation of many elements of the financial services industry, which could have a similar impact on RREEF and the broader markets. In particular, foreign regulators have passed legislation and changes that may affect certain clients, including the European Commission's Alternative Investment Fund Managers Directive ("AIFMD"), which has imposed certain requirements and restrictions on managers of alternative investment funds. Similarly, the European Union's revised Markets in Financial Instruments Directive and Markets in Financial Instruments Regulation (collectively called "MiFID II"), which came into effect on January 3, 2018, is a wide ranging piece of legislation that regulates firms that provide services to clients relating to financial instruments and that has implications for asset managers located in the United States with business ties to the European Union. From time to time, RREEF may be subject to a higher standard with respect only to specific clients with particular regulatory requirements. For example, RREEF might be indirectly subject to MiFID II only to the extent that RREEF (1) trades on European trading venues; (2) trades with European counterparties, or (3) provides investment management services to EU clients or DWS Group legal entities in the EU, or performs delegated activities for an EU DWS Group legal entity or fund and is contractually required to adhere to the regulatory standards of the outsourcing / delegating EU entity. Where RREEF aggregates trades, however, it will apply the higher standard to all clients.

Investors should understand that RREEF's business is dynamic and the regulatory landscape is expected to change over time. Therefore, the investment advisory accounts may be subject to new or additional regulatory constraints in the future. The offering materials and any other documents received in connection with an investment advisory account cannot address or anticipate every possible current or future regulation that may affect the investment advisory account, RREEF or its businesses. Such new or revised regulation may have a significant impact on the business operations of RREEF and the investors or the operations of the investment advisory account.

RREEF provides discretionary asset management services to clients, including clients that are subject to ERISA. With regard to transactions for its ERISA clients, RREEF may rely on various Prohibited Transaction Exemptions available under ERISA ("PTEs"), including PTE 84-14, which is only available to qualified professional asset managers (the "QPAM exemption"). The QPAM exemption is unavailable to any discretionary asset manager who, or any of whose affiliates, as defined in the QPAM exemption, is convicted of certain enumerated crimes. In connection with convictions of two of RREEF's foreign affiliates, Deutsche Securities Korea Co. ("DSK") and DB Group Services (UK) Limited, RREEF has obtained exemptive relief from the U.S. Department of Labor to be able to continue to use the QPAM exemption when appropriate (the current exemptive relief is pursuant to PTE 2017-04). As one of the conditions under PTE 2017-04, RREEF's ERISA clients have a right, among other rights, to obtain a copy of the summary of the written policies developed in connection with PTE 2017-04. It should be noted that (i) neither of these two foreign affiliates engages in asset management activities, and (ii) the DSK conviction was overturned by the Court of Appeals in South Korea in December 2018, which action is now the subject of a pending appeal.

Certain investments involving the acquisition of a business or property connected with U.S. national security or critical infrastructure may be subject to review by and approval from the U.S. Committee on Foreign Investment in the U.S. ("CFIUS"). In the event that CFIUS reviews a client's investments, there can be no assurances that the client will be able to maintain or proceed with such investments on acceptable terms. Additionally, CFIUS may seek to impose limitations on one or more such investments that may prevent the client from maintaining or pursuing investment opportunities that the client otherwise would have maintained or pursued, which could adversely affect performance. Legislative and regulatory changes, including changes to agency practice, in the future may negatively impact the ability of clients to realize value from certain existing and future investments, including by limiting exit opportunities or causing RREEF to favor buyers that it believes are less likely to require CFIUS review, even in circumstances where other buyers may offer better terms or more consideration.

Cybersecurity Risk

The computer systems, networks and devices used by RREEF and its service providers to carry out routine business operations employ a variety of protections designed to prevent damage or interruption from computer viruses, network failures, computer and telecommunication failures, infiltration by unauthorized persons and security breaches. Despite the various protections utilized, systems, networks, or devices potentially can be breached. A client could be negatively impacted as a result of a cybersecurity breach.

Cybersecurity breaches can include unauthorized access to systems, networks, or devices; infection from computer viruses or other malicious software code; and attacks that shut down, disable, slow, or otherwise disrupt operations, business processes, or website access or functionality. Cybersecurity breaches may cause disruptions and impact business operations, potentially resulting in financial losses; interference with RREEF's ability to calculate the value of an investment in a client account; impediments to trading; inability to transact business; violations of applicable privacy and other laws; regulatory fines, penalties, reputational damage, reimbursement or other compensation costs, or additional compliance costs, as well as the inadvertent release of confidential information.

Risks That Apply Primarily to ESG Investments

Investments that incorporate ESG considerations could cause an account to perform differently compared to accounts that do not incorporate ESG considerations. The criteria related to certain ESG investments may result in an account forgoing opportunities to buy certain securities when it might otherwise be advantageous to do so, or selling securities for ESG reasons when it might be otherwise disadvantageous for it to do so. In addition, there is a risk that the companies identified by an ESG investment strategy do not operate as expected when addressing ESG issues. A company's ESG performance or RREEF's assessment of a company's ESG performance could vary over time, which could cause an account to be temporarily invested in companies that do not comply with the account's approach towards considering ESG characteristics. There are significant differences in interpretations of what it means for a company to have positive ESG characteristics and RREEF's investment decisions may differ with other's views. In making investment decisions, RREEF relies on information and data that could be incomplete or erroneous, which could cause RREEF to incorrectly assess a company's ESG characteristics.

Banking Laws and Regulations

Due to DB AG's majority shareholding, DWS and its subsidiaries, including RREEF, remain subject to a broad array of U.S. and certain non-U.S. banking laws and regulations. As a result of certain principal positions held by DWS and RREEF being an affiliate of DB AG, certain funds advised by RREEF may become subject to the banking laws and regulations that are applicable to DB AG. Such laws and regulations may, among other things, impose restrictions on the types and amounts of investments that a fund may make, the types of activities in which the fund may engage and the amount of influence and control RREEF or the fund may have over the operations of the investments.

The Federal Reserve has recently finalized a guidance which updates in relevant part when an adviser affiliated with a bank holding company may be considered to control a fund advised by RREEF. Under the Bank Holding Company Act of 1956, as amended ("BHCA"), if a fund were deemed to be controlled by RREEF or an affiliate, the fund may be subject to the same limitations under the BHCA that applied to DB AG and its affiliates, including RREEF. These could include limitations on the advised fund's investments in third parties or its abilities to be involved in the day-to-day management of a target company or holding periods of the underlying investments. Moreover, the size of DWS's and DWS personnel's ownership interest in, as well as DWS's seed contributions to, funds advised by RREEF may be limited by the Volcker Rule, and certain personnel will be prohibited from retaining interests in such funds. In addition, certain bank regulatory limits may apply to DB AG and funds advised by RREEF on an aggregate basis. Additionally, DB AG or its affiliates may not be permitted to extend credit to or enter into certain financing arrangements with funds advised by RREEF that are deemed to be "covered funds" due to the Volcker Rule. As a result, certain investments made by affiliates of RREEF in the ordinary course of business may limit the scope and size of the investments that a fund advised by RREEF can make or the degree of influence and control RREEF or funds advised by RREEF may have with respect to such investments. Additionally, some otherwise suitable investments may not be available to, or may be unprofitably disposed of by, funds advised by RREEF.

Valuation Risk.

Some strategies may invest in assets that lack a readily ascertainable market value, and the net asset value of a client account will be affected by the valuations of any such assets (including, without limitation, in connection with calculation of any fees). In valuing assets that lack a readily ascertainable market value, RREEF (or an affiliated or independent agent) may utilize dealer supplied quotations or pricing models developed by RREEF and/or affiliates of RREEF or by third parties. Such methodologies may be based upon assumptions and estimates that are subject to error. The value of assets that lack a readily ascertainable market value may be subject to later adjustment based on valuation information available to RREEF at that time. Any adjustment to the value of such assets may result in an adjustment to the net asset value of a client account. Volatile market conditions could also cause reduced liquidity in the market for certain assets, which could result in liquidation values that are materially less than the values of such assets as reflected in the net asset value of a Client's account.

Model Risk

Some strategies may include the use of various proprietary quantitative or investment models. Investments selected using models may perform differently than expected as a result of changes from the factors' historical - and predicted future - trends, and technical issues in the implementation of the models, including, for example, issues with data feeds. Moreover, the effectiveness of a model may diminish over time, including as a result of changes in the market and/or changes in the behavior of other market participants. A model's return mapping is based partially on historical data regarding particular economic factors and securities prices. The operation of a model, similar to other fundamental, active investment processes, may result in negative performance, including returns that deviate materially from historical performance, both actual and pro-forma. For a model-driven investment process - and again similar to other, fundamental, and active investment processes, there is no guarantee that the use of models will result in effective investment outcomes for clients.

Derivatives Risk.

Certain strategies may use derivatives. Derivatives, including forward currency contracts, futures, options and commodity-linked derivatives and swaps, may be riskier than other types of investments because they may be more sensitive to changes in economic and market conditions, and could result in losses that significantly exceed the investor's original investment in the derivative. Many derivatives create leverage thereby causing a portfolio to be more volatile than it would have been if it had not been exposed to such derivatives. Derivatives also expose a portfolio to counterparty risk (the risk that the derivative counterparty will not fulfill its contractual obligations), including the credit risk of the derivative counterparty. Certain derivatives are synthetic instruments that attempt to replicate the performance of certain reference assets. With regard to such derivatives, an investor does not have a claim on the reference assets and is subject to enhanced counterparty risk. Derivatives may not perform as expected, so an investor may not realize the intended benefits. When used for hedging, the change in value of a derivative may not correlate as expected with what is being hedged. In addition, given their complexity, derivatives expose an investor to risks of mispricing or improper valuation.

Commodity Risk

Certain strategies have exposure to commodities. Exposure to commodities and commodity-related securities may subject a portfolio to greater volatility than investments in traditional securities, particularly if the instruments involve leverage. The value of commodity-linked investments may be affected by changes in overall market movements, commodity index volatility, changes in interest rates, or factors affecting a particular industry or commodity. In addition, to the extent that a portfolio gains exposure to an asset through synthetic replication by investing in commodity-linked investments rather than directly in the asset, it may not have a claim on the applicable underlying asset and will be subject to enhanced counterparty risk.

LIBOR Discontinuance or Unavailability Risk

The London Interbank Offering Rate ("LIBOR") is intended to represent the rate at which contributing banks may obtain short-term borrowings from each other in the London interbank market. The regulatory authority that oversees financial services firms and financial markets in the U.K. has announced that, after the end of 2021, it would no longer persuade or compel contributing banks to make rate submissions for purposes of determining LIBOR. As a result, it is possible that commencing in 2022, LIBOR may no longer be available or no longer deemed an appropriate reference rate upon which to determine the interest rate on or impacting certain loans, notes, derivatives and other instruments or investments comprising some or all of a fund's or other client account's portfolio. In light of this eventuality, public and private sector industry initiatives are currently underway to identify new or alternative reference rates to be used in place of LIBOR. There is no assurance that the composition or characteristics of any such alternative reference rate will be similar to or produce the same value or economic equivalence as LIBOR or that it will have the same volume or liquidity as did LIBOR prior to its discontinuance or unavailability, which may affect the value or liquidity or return on certain of the fund's or other client account's investments and result in costs incurred in connection with closing out positions and entering into new trades. These risks may also apply with respect to changes in connection with other interbank offering rates (e.g., Euribor) and a wide range of other index levels, rates and values that are treated as "benchmarks" and are the subject of recent regulatory reform.

Item 9 / Disciplinary Information

The recent Consent Order involving Deutsche Bank AG (“DB”) described below, does not involve RREEF or its investment advisory affiliates (“DWS Entities”).

On June 17, 2020, DB resolved with the Commodity Futures Trading Commission (“CFTC”) charges stemming from alleged violations of various swap data reporting requirements and corresponding supervision and other failures. The matter, which was resolved by the issuance of a federal court order (“Consent Order”), involved unintentional conduct that resulted from a system outage that prevented DB from reporting data in accordance with applicable CFTC requirements for a period of five days in April 2016. The circumstances that gave rise to the Consent Order did not involve RREEF or other DWS Entities.

The matter giving rise to the Consent Order did not arise out of any investment advisory or fund management activities of DWS Entities. DWS Group GmbH & Co. KGaA (“DWS Group”), of which the DWS Entities are wholly-owned subsidiaries, is a separate publicly traded company and DB maintains a 79.49% ownership interest in DWS Group. Under Section 9(a) of the Investment Company Act of 1940, as a result of the Consent Order, the DWS Entities would not be eligible to continue to provide investment advisory services to registered investment companies absent an order from the Securities and Exchange Commission (the “SEC”). The DWS Entities are seeking temporary and permanent orders from the SEC to permit the DWS Entities to continue to provide investment advisory services to the registered investment companies notwithstanding the Consent Order. While there can be no assurance that the requested exemptive orders will be granted, the SEC has granted this type of relief in the past.

Consistent with their fiduciary and other relationships with the registered investment companies, DWS Entities continue to provide advisory services to the registered investment companies.

Item 10 / Other Financial Industry Activities and Affiliates

DB AG, a multi-national financial services company (together with its affiliates, directors, officers, and employees, the "Deutsche Bank Group"), is an indirect majority-owner of RREEF and RREEF's indirect parent DWS Group. The Deutsche Bank Group provides and/or engages in commercial banking, insurance, brokerage, investment banking, financial advising and broker-dealer activities, including sales and trading. DWS Group is a global asset manager providing services to funds and institutions.

DB AG will continue to be able to exercise significant influence over DWS's operations. The Deutsche Bank Group engages in businesses and has interests other than managing asset management accounts, and this can result in real, potential, or apparent conflicts of interest that may prove disadvantageous to RREEF's advisory clients.

Specifically, Deutsche Bank Group entities may act in their own interest, in the interest of third parties other than RREEF's clients, for example when Deutsche Bank Group entities other than RREEF engage in advisory, transactional, and financial activities, or acquire or divest interests in assets that RREEF may directly or indirectly purchase or sell for its clients' advisory accounts. On occasion, other entities within the Deutsche Bank Group may have engagements and responsibilities that could give rise to the appearance of a conflict with RREEF's duty of loyalty. In addition, DWS Group engages in global asset management activities, which could result in actual, potential and apparent conflicts of interests between clients of RREEF and the interests of other DWS Group affiliates and their clients.

RREEF may utilize or recommend the services of its affiliates to clients, which may involve revenue sharing or joint compensation and may create a conflict of interest.

A number of factors mitigate these conflicts:

- RREEF personnel involved in decision-making for advisory accounts are required to act in the best interests of their advisory clients. RREEF acts as a fiduciary with respect to its asset management activities and owes its clients a duty of undivided loyalty. As a fiduciary, RREEF must act solely in the best interests of the clients whose assets it manages.
- DWS has implemented policies, procedures and controls to be followed when actual, potential or apparent conflicts of interests, whether with respect to DB AG or other DWS businesses interests, are identified.
- RREEF employees associated with the investment process, including portfolio managers, research analysts, and traders, generally have no contact with employees of the Deutsche Bank Group outside of DWS as it pertains to specific clients, business matters, or initiatives. Any exceptions to this policy must be permissible by internal procedures or approved by DWS's Compliance.

- RREEF personnel generally, but not exclusively, act without knowledge of specific business goals or positions of Deutsche Bank Group. When advisory personnel have knowledge of actual or potential conflicts among advisory accounts or between advisory accounts and the Deutsche Bank Group, applicable policies require mitigation of the conflicts. A discussion about additional conflicts of interest that involve related persons is set out in Item 11 - Code of Ethics - Participation or Interest in Client Transactions and Personal Trading.

RREEF has entered into, and in the future may enter into, arrangements with affiliates to perform various compliance, administrative, back-office, and other services for client accounts. For example, RREEF utilizes personnel of DWS Investment Management Americas, Inc. ("DIMA") to provide compliance services for RREEF. Such affiliates and service providers may be located in or outside of the U.S. Accordingly, information about client accounts may be shared with such affiliates and third party service providers. Upon the client's request, RREEF may share client information with affiliates with whom the client wishes to enter into a business arrangement.

Broker-Dealers

RREEF has material arrangements with the following related persons that are broker-dealers:

- Deutsche Bank Securities Inc. ("DBSI"), New York, NY, is a registered broker-dealer under the U.S. Securities Exchange Act of 1934, amended (the "Securities Exchange Act"). It is a member of the New York Stock Exchange and other principal exchanges in the United States and the Financial Industry Regulatory Authority ("FINRA"). DBSI also serves as distributor for certain funds advised by RREEF. RREEF may also utilize DBSI's services to effect securities transactions for clients.
- DWS Distributors, Inc. ("DDI") is a registered broker-dealer under the Securities Exchange Act and a FINRA member. It serves as a principal underwriter for DWS's funds, some of which are sub-advised by RREEF, and also supports the RREEF retail, and institutional distribution channels.

Investment Advisers

RREEF has investment advisory affiliates around the globe, including in Australia, England, Germany, Hong Kong, Japan, Luxembourg, Singapore, Switzerland and the United States. The following RREEF investment advisory affiliates are registered with the SEC as investment advisers: DBSI, DWS International GmbH, DWS Investments Australia Limited, DWS Investments Hong Kong Limited, DWS Alternatives Global Limited, DIMA, DBX Advisors LLC and DBX Strategic Advisors LLC. A number of RREEF's non-U.S. investment advisory affiliates are not registered, including Deutsche Bank S.A. Banco Alemão, Deutsche Alternative Asset Management (UK) Limited and Deutsche Asset Management (Japan) Limited. DWS Investments Singapore Limited and DWS Investment S.A., are exempt reporting advisers.

From time to time, RREEF receives investment sub-advisory services from these affiliates and also may provide investment sub-advisory services to these affiliates. For example, RREEF acts as sub-adviser to DWS Alternatives Global Limited, Deutsche Alternative Asset Management (UK) Limited with respect to certain European unregistered funds, DWS Investments Hong Kong with respect to certain Sustainable Investments unregistered funds, and DBRE Global Real Estate Management IB, Ltd. with respect to the management of its Cayman business. In addition, DWS Investment Management Americas, Inc. has hired RREEF as sub-adviser for certain mutual funds, as well as the mutual funds' wholly owned Cayman subsidiaries.

Apart from furnishing investment advice to clients, RREEF also provides various investment advisory, consulting, administrative, and research support services to its affiliates pursuant to intercompany agreements. Within its discretion and as permitted by law, RREEF may delegate all or some of its advisory or other functions, including placing trades on behalf of clients, to any affiliate registered with the SEC as an investment adviser, in or outside the U.S., or to any participating affiliate. For example, RREEF has hired DWS Investments Australia Limited and DWS Alternatives Global Limited as sub-adviser to certain of RREEF's separately managed account clients and investment funds.

To the extent RREEF delegates its advisory or other functions to affiliates registered as investment advisers with the SEC, the SEC's website, <http://www.adviserinfo.sec.gov>, will include the brochure of each such affiliate, and clients or prospective clients may receive such affiliate's brochure upon request. Certain services may be performed for affiliates by RREEF employees who are also employees of such affiliates or through delegation or other arrangements. In addition, RREEF may participate in sub-advisory, co-advisory, or other joint projects related to pooled investment vehicles with unaffiliated entities.

Commodity Pool Operators, Commodity Trading Advisors and Futures Commission Merchants

RREEF is filed with the U.S. Commodity Futures Trading Commission ("CFTC") as an exempt commodity pool operator ("CPO") and registered with the CFTC as a commodity trading advisor ("CTA").

RREEF may have related persons that are registered with the CFTC as either a CPO, CTA or futures commission merchant ("FCM") including but not limited to the following:

Affiliates	Licenses
DWS Investment Management Americas, Inc.	CPO / CTA
Deutsche Bank Securities Inc.	FCM / CPO / SEC broker-dealer

To the extent permitted by law and applicable regulations, RREEF may utilize the foregoing or other affiliates as CPO, CTA or FCM, as applicable, in connection with RREEF's purchase or sale of futures on behalf of certain of its clients, or may delegate advisory services to an affiliate as a CTA, and in such cases such affiliated FCM, CPO or CTA may receive remuneration for such services.

Investment Companies and Other Pooled Vehicles

RREEF acts in an advisory or sub-advisory capacity to a variety of U.S. investment companies and U.S. and non-U.S. pooled vehicles for which an affiliate may act as adviser, manager or distributor. In connection with these funds, certain RREEF employees may serve as directors, trustees or officers. Each mutual fund's prospectus discloses the arrangements with respect to the sale of U.S. registered investment company securities in accordance with the Investment Company Act disclosure requirements. The sale and distribution of other pooled investment vehicles not subject to the Investment Company Act is made in accordance with applicable law.

DDI has a distribution arrangement with certain RREEF-advised funds in the U.S., and Deutsche Alternative Asset Management (UK) Limited distributes certain RREEF-advised funds in Europe. RREEF and certain RREEF-advised funds may also engage (or RREEF's distribution affiliates may engage) other affiliates in the U.S., Europe and Asia for additional distribution services.

Banking Institutions

The following banking institution is a related person of RREEF:

- DB AG, a publicly traded international commercial and investment banking concern listed on the Frankfurt and New York stock exchanges, is an indirect majority-owner of RREEF and DWS Group. RREEF's clients may utilize custodians unaffiliated with RREEF who may then hire affiliates of RREEF as sub-custodians in certain jurisdictions. A U.S. global custodian, acting as custodian for an account subject to ERISA, may select any branch or appropriately licensed non-U.S. subsidiary of DB AG as a foreign sub-custodian. Under these circumstances, RREEF affiliates may execute certain transactions on behalf of RREEF's clients, e.g., foreign exchange transactions and corporate actions. This may give rise to the appearance of conflicts of interest; RREEF has developed policies and procedures to monitor such circumstances.

Item 11 / Code of Ethics, Participation in Client Transactions and Personal Trading

DWS has created certain global policies, which apply to all of its investment management entities, including RREEF.

Code of Ethics

The DWS Code of Ethics (the "Code of Ethics"), which RREEF has adopted, imposes restrictions on the ability of RREEF's employees who are "Access Persons" as defined in the Investment Advisers Act to invest in securities that may be recommended or traded in RREEF client accounts. The Code currently applies to most securities transactions (including transactions in equity or debt securities, municipal bonds, exchange-traded securities, securities indices, derivatives of securities and similar instruments) and certain mutual fund transactions (including transactions in open-end and closed end mutual funds, excluding money market funds and other mutual funds specifically designed for short-term investment). The Code applies to all securities and specified mutual fund transactions in which employees have direct or indirect beneficial interest, influence and/or control.

Generally, the Code of Ethics classifies employees based on whether they are investment personnel involved in the investment management and trading activity of clients' assets (including portfolio managers, research analysts and traders) and imposes the greatest level of restriction on those most centrally involved in that process.

Pursuant to the Code of Ethics, employees are required to pre-clear all of their personal securities transactions in securities that are not exempt from the Code of Ethics. Employees must also receive prior approval before purchasing any securities in a private placement. Further, employees must receive prior approval to serve on a board of a publicly traded company or to engage in certain other outside activities that may conflict with RREEF's obligations to its clients. The hedging of long stock positions with stock options or other equity derivatives is prohibited. Finally, employees may not purchase a security pursuant to an initial public offering. The purchase or sale of securities of certain open-end mutual funds is not subject to pre-clearance. Trading in direct obligations of the U.S. Government is not subject to the Code of Ethics.

The Code of Ethics imposes a thirty (30) day holding period between purchases and sales, or sales and purchases in the same securities and certain mutual funds with certain exceptions (such as transactions in mutual funds subject to periodic purchase plans and other exceptions specifically granted by DWS Compliance). The Code of Ethics also imposes specific blackout period restrictions on securities that apply to certain employees. For example, Access Persons may not knowingly engage in a transaction of a security on the same day as it is known that RREEF is transacting that security for a client account, and Investment Personnel (defined as those involved in the investment decision-making and trading process) may not knowingly purchase or sell a security within five days before and after a transaction of that security in a client account if he/she manages or provides advice to that client account.

Additionally, RREEF employees may not acquire or sell any real estate securities or infrastructure securities in any personal employee or employee-related account without prior written approval. Real estate securities include all publicly traded securities issued by any REIT or REOC, as well as publicly traded securities issued by companies primarily engaged in the ownership, construction, management or sale of residential, commercial or industrial real estate that are included within the Liquid Real Assets investment team investment universe. These companies may include real estate MLPs and real estate brokers and developers.

All employees are subject to reporting obligations, including filing a quarterly personal securities transaction report (which provides information with regard to all securities and certain mutual fund transactions that are required to be reported, if any, effected during the previous quarter for their own accounts and any accounts over which they have direct or indirect beneficial interest, influence and/or control). Employees are also required to disclose their securities and mutual fund accounts to the Deutsche Bank Group upon hire and annually confirm the information. Additionally, employees are required to acknowledge annually that they have received and read the Code of Ethics.

Any employee who violates the Code of Ethics may be subject to disciplinary actions, including possible dismissal. Violations are reported to the Chief Compliance Officer. In addition, any securities transactions executed in violation of the Code of Ethics, such as short-term trading or trading during blackout periods, may subject the employee to sanctions, ranging from warnings to trading privilege suspensions, including but not limited to, unwinding the trade and/or disgorging the profits as well as additional disciplinary action. Violations and suspected violations of criminal laws will be reported to the appropriate authorities as required by applicable laws and regulations.

RREEF's clients and/or prospective clients may obtain a copy of the DWS Code of Ethics upon request by calling their client service representative.

Gifts and Entertainment

RREEF has policies and procedures in place, including the DWS Code of Ethics, which limit and prohibit RREEF employees from accepting gifts, entertainment and other things of material value that may create a conflict of interest or give the appearance of a conflict of interest. Additionally, RREEF employees may not offer gifts, entertainment or other things of material value that could be viewed as attempting to unduly influence the decision making or objectivity of any client or other business partner. In general, the policies dictate that giving and receiving of gifts or participating in entertainment cannot occur if the value and/or the frequency of the gift or entertainment is deemed excessive or extravagant. The policies impose specific restrictions and require DWS Compliance approval of certain gifts and entertainment.

In general, the policy permits employees to accept gifts having a nominal value (e.g., promotional items) which must be logged. Reporting and approval requirements and restrictions apply in the case of entertainment offered to or to be provided by RREEF. DWS's policies also sets forth parameters with respect to entertainment-related expenses.

Additional restrictions regarding gifts and entertainment apply to RREEF employees who are registered representatives or other associates of RREEF's affiliated broker-dealers.

Participation or Interest in Client Transactions

RREEF is indirectly majority-owned by DB AG, a multi-national financial services company, and therefore RREEF is affiliated with a variety of entities disclosed in Item 10 that provide multiple financial services to institutional and individual investors. Such other activities, as previously disclosed in Item 10, involve real, potential or apparent conflicts of interests.

With respect to certain managed investment strategies, trading services including counterparty selection as well as certain "downstream" functions including, but not limited to, trade matching and settlement, investment accounting, reconciliations, corporate actions, and performance measurement may be provided through RREEF and its global affiliates. In providing these services, RREEF and its affiliated entities may have access to certain information about client accounts, including not limited to, client identities, portfolio transactions, open order and positions.

Deutsche Bank Group is a major participant in global financial markets and it acts as an investor, investment banker, investment manager, financier, advisor, market maker, trader, lender, agent and principal in the global fixed income, currency, commodity, equity and other markets in which RREEF's advisory accounts directly and indirectly invest. As permitted by and in conformity with applicable laws and regulations, RREEF's advisory accounts will invest in, engage in transactions with, make voting decisions with respect to, or obtain services from entities for which Deutsche Bank Group performs or seeks to perform banking or other services. Additionally, it is likely that RREEF's advisory accounts will undertake transactions in securities in which Deutsche Bank Group makes a market or otherwise has direct or indirect interests. RREEF makes decisions for its clients in accordance with its fiduciary obligations as manager of its advisory accounts. As noted below, however, certain activities of Deutsche Bank Group may have a negative or detrimental effect on RREEF advisory accounts managed by RREEF.

RREEF may take investment positions in securities of the same issuer that are different parts of the capital structure in which other clients or related persons within RREEF have different investment positions. There may be instances in which RREEF is purchasing or selling for its client accounts, or pursuing an outcome in the context of a workout or restructuring with respect to, securities in which Deutsche Bank Group is undertaking the same or differing strategy in other businesses or other client accounts. Prices, availability, liquidity and terms of the investments may be negatively impacted by the RREEF's activities and the transactions for RREEF's clients may, as result, be less favorable. The investment results for RREEF's clients may differ from the results achieved by Deutsche Bank Group and other clients of Deutsche Bank Group. In addition, results among RREEF clients may differ.

As noted, RREEF makes decisions for its clients in accordance with its fiduciary obligations as manager of its advisory accounts independent of what decisions may be made by Deutsche Bank Group. While conflicts of interest could potentially arise between decisions that are in the best interests of RREEF's advisory clients and decisions that may benefit parts of the Deutsche Bank Group, such conflicts of interest are managed by the use of information barriers that control the sharing of information among the different businesses of the Deutsche Bank Group. For a summary of the restriction of the flow of certain information between RREEF and Deutsche Bank Group, please see "Information Barriers" below.

The investment activities of Deutsche Bank Group may limit the investment opportunities for RREEF's client accounts. This may occur in certain regulated industries, private equity markets, emerging markets, and in certain futures and derivative transactions where restrictions may be imposed upon the aggregate amount of investment by affiliated investors. RREEF may voluntarily limit transactions for client accounts or limit the amount of voting securities purchased for client accounts, or waive voting rights for certain securities held in client accounts, which may limit positions, in order to avoid circumstances which, in the view of RREEF, would require aggregation of such client account positions with investments in Deutsche Bank Group that would approach or exceed certain ownership thresholds.

RREEF may have portfolio managers who manage long/short accounts alongside long-only accounts. For example, RREEF may buy on behalf of a client account a security for which RREEF may establish a short position on behalf of another client account. The subsequent short sale may result in impairment of the price of the security held long in the client account. Conversely, RREEF may on behalf of a client account establish a short position in the same security which it may purchase on behalf of another client account. The subsequent purchase may result in an increase of the price of the underlying position in the short sale exposure.

RREEF may engage in security transactions with brokers who may also sell shares of registered investment companies that are sub-advised by RREEF, provided that it reasonably believes that the broker will provide best execution. However, trading with these brokers may raise the appearance of a conflict of interest. There are no quid pro quo arrangements or agreements in place with these brokers. Furthermore, RREEF has implemented policies and procedures reasonably designed to prevent its traders from considering sales of fund shares as a factor in the selection of broker-dealers to execute portfolio transactions for each fund.

Information Barriers

Deutsche Bank Group may come into possession of confidential, material non-public information particularly in connection with its commercial and investment banking activities. Deutsche Bank Group and DWS, have internal procedures in place intended to limit the potential flow of any such non-public information.

Should RREEF come into possession of any material, non-public information, RREEF has procedures that prohibit trading activities based on such information by RREEF for its clients and by RREEF employees. RREEF may not use material, non-public information when making investment decisions for its clients. These procedures and prohibitions may preclude client accounts from purchasing or selling certain securities, which could have a detrimental effect on one or more client accounts.

There may be instances in which senior management of RREEF, not involved in the investment process, may be privy to material, non-public information about transactions or securities due to discussions with senior personnel from other departments within Deutsche Bank Group. However, when in possession of material, non-public information, senior management may not participate or use that information to influence trading decisions; nor may they pass that information along to personnel within DWS involved in the investment process (e.g., portfolio managers, research analysts and traders) for use in investment activities. RREEF has developed policies and procedures to monitor such circumstances.

There may also be periods during which RREEF may not initiate or recommend certain types of transactions, disseminate research or may otherwise restrict or limit its advice given to clients in certain securities issued by or related to companies that Deutsche Bank Group is performing banking or other services, or companies in which Deutsche Bank Group has a proprietary position. As a result, client accounts may be precluded from purchasing or selling certain securities, which could have a detrimental effect on one or more client accounts.

Trading with an Affiliate/New Issues

RREEF does not receive compensation for effecting securities transactions for clients. RREEF receives compensation for providing investment advisory services as described in Items 4 and 5. Related persons of RREEF may receive brokerage commissions, commission equivalents, fees associated with acting as an issuer's paying agent, spread and other fees in connection with brokerage services provided. RREEF may also receive certain non-financial soft dollar benefits, as described in "Research and Soft Dollars Benefits in Item 12 – Brokerage Practices below.

RREEF may purchase, on behalf of its clients (other than ERISA plans), securities in which an affiliate of RREEF serves as lead underwriter or co-manager of an underwriting syndicate or member of an underwriting syndicate other than ERISA plans. In these cases, the purchase is generally made from a party unaffiliated with any DWS company, but RREEF's affiliate may nevertheless benefit from such transactions, including in circumstances where the syndicate of which RREEF's affiliate is a member is experiencing difficulty in effectuating the distribution of the new issues. While RREEF acts solely in the best interests of its clients, these circumstances may give rise to the appearance of a conflict of interest, even though the transactions are effectuated in compliance with applicable regulations (see "Agency Transactions," "Investment Companies," and "Principal Transactions" below). RREEF may have a potentially conflicting division of responsibilities to both parties to a cross transaction. Additionally, regulatory or other government requirements applicable to RREEF's related persons may restrict RREEF from investing in or disposing of certain securities for its clients on a temporary or on-going basis.

This may affect potential returns on clients' accounts, and a client not advised by RREEF may not be subject to some of these restrictions.

RREEF clients may utilize custodians unaffiliated with RREEF and such custodians may, in turn, hire affiliates of RREEF as sub-custodians in certain jurisdictions. In such circumstances, RREEF affiliates may effect certain transactions on behalf of RREEF clients (e.g., foreign exchange transactions, corporate actions). These circumstances may give rise to the appearance of conflicts of interest. RREEF has developed policies and procedures to monitor such circumstances.

Agency Transactions

RREEF is a related person of various broker-dealers through which it may effect agency transactions. RREEF has procedures reasonably designed to ensure that agency transactions executed with these related broker-dealers acting as agent comply with applicable law and regulations. If any client portfolio transaction is executed with related broker-dealers, the broker-dealers may charge a commission in connection with these transactions; however, the commissions do not exceed the usual and customary commission that the broker-dealers would charge their own customers. As a general matter, RREEF can execute agency transactions on behalf of clients with related broker-dealers only if RREEF has determined in good faith that the client will receive best execution in the transaction, and only in compliance with applicable law and regulations, DWS's policies and procedures, and in accordance with the consent of clients to these kinds of transactions. Executing transactions with affiliates of RREEF may present conflicts of interest, including that RREEF affiliates will earn fees with regard to such transactions. See Item 12 - Brokerage Practices for a discussion of "Trading and Broker Restrictions".

Investment Companies

For registered investment company clients, agency and underwriting transactions with affiliated broker-dealers will be executed only pursuant to procedures adopted by the Boards of Trustees or Directors of such companies under Rule 17e-1 and Rule 10f-3 under the Investment Company Act. Rule 17e-1 under the Investment Company Act provides that, when purchasing or selling securities as agent, an affiliate of the registered investment company may not accept any compensation, except in that person's role as an underwriter or broker. In addition, Rule 10f-3 under the Investment Company Act provides a limited exception to the prohibition on registered investment companies from knowingly purchasing or acquiring securities during the existence of an underwriting or selling syndicate when a principal underwriter of such security is an affiliate of the registered investment company.

Principal Transactions

RREEF generally does not cause its clients to enter into principal transactions with related persons. Under limited circumstances, RREEF may enter into a principal transaction provided the transaction is in accordance with Section 206(3) of the Investment Advisers Act. All such transactions must receive client consent for each transaction, are effected on arms' length terms and, with respect to commissions paid, are generally competitive with those paid to non-related broker dealers.

Cross Trades

RREEF may effect agency cross transactions for advisory accounts in which a RREEF affiliated broker-dealer acts as broker for both the advisory account and other party to the transaction. Such transactions may result in commissions being paid to RREEF's affiliated broker. RREEF may have a potentially conflicting division of loyalties and responsibilities to both parties in an agency cross transaction. In addition, transactions between managed accounts may result in the incurrence by such accounts of custodial fees, taxes or other related expenses.

RREEF may effect cross transactions directly between advisory accounts, provided that: such transactions are consistent with the investment objectives and policies of such accounts (for mutual funds, consistent with the funds' Rule 17a-7 procedures (procedures for transactions with affiliated persons)); are, in the view of the respective portfolio managers, favorable to both sides of transactions; and are otherwise executed in accordance with applicable laws, rules and regulation.

RREEF will only consider engaging in cross transactions to the extent permitted by applicable law and will, to the extent required by law, obtain the necessary client consents. Clients may revoke their consent for agency cross transactions at any time.

Portfolio Holdings Disclosure Policy

As investment advisers, RREEF and each sub-adviser have a responsibility to their clients and investors not to disclose non-public portfolio holdings information unless such disclosure is consistent with relevant laws and regulations and with the fiduciary duties RREEF and each sub-adviser owe to their clients.

RREEF may make non-public portfolio holdings information available to certain clients or other parties including RREEF affiliates, sub-advisers, custodians, independent registered accounting firms, a fund's officers and trustees/directors, securities lending agents, financial printers, proxy voting firms, mutual fund analysts and rating and tracking agencies or a fund's shareholders in connection with in-kind redemptions in accordance with RREEF's portfolio holdings disclosure policy.

Proprietary Account Trading and Hedging Activities

In accordance with DWS Group policy, DWS Group may invest and manage its own proprietary capital by investing in a variety of securities and other instruments. Proprietary capital investments may include investing in certain products and strategies managed by RREEF for its clients. The market risks of these investments maybe hedged, while market risks of client assets may not be so hedged. Hedging activities may include purchasing instruments or using investment strategies such as short selling, futures (or options on futures) trading or employing other derivative techniques. Portfolio management and trading of the proprietary capital as well as any associated hedging activity is undertaken in accordance with DWS Group policies and procedures. Proprietary capital may not perform the same as similarly managed client accounts for a variety of reasons, including, but not limited to regulatory restrictions on the type and amount of securities in which the proprietary capital may be invested, differential credit and financing terms, as well as any hedging transactions. While RREEF acts solely in the best interests of its clients, these circumstances may give rise to the appearance of a conflict of interest or could potentially disadvantage its clients. Refer to Item 8 – Methods of Analysis, Investment Strategies, and Risk of Loss for more information on the Volcker Rule.

Item 12 / Brokerage Practices

The below information applies with respect to RREEF's Liquid Real Assets strategies.

Broker Dealer Selection – General

In general, the execution strategy and associated execution methods, including where and how to execute a client order, are made based on the functional and economic merits e.g. liquidity, suitability, certainty, and settlement infrastructure of a broker or a venue.

The selection of a particular broker to execute client order is based on a number of criteria, including their:

- Price
- Inventory or Risk appetite (i.e. size available)
- Market and security familiarity
- Access to liquidity or willingness to commit risk to principal trade
- Financial stability and certainty of settlement
- Reliability and Integrity of maintaining confidentiality
- Soundness of technological infrastructure and operational capabilities
- In case of new Issues: The broker's capability to provide subscription facility in the primary market
- Safeguards and compliance controls to protect Clients
- Pricing and costs for execution-only services
- Ability to provide transaction cost analysis (TCA)
- Access to Centralized Risk Book (CRB)
- Ability to provide analysis of speed of execution
- Level of control over interactions with internal and external Systematic Internalisers (SIs)
- Approach to double caps and new large-in-size (LIS) venues
- Smart order routing (SOR) logic and Algorithmic trading strategies
- Ability to produce customized reports, trade related performance data, performance attribution, risk reports (including breach violations and rejection) on a periodic basis
- Ability to provide assisted trade reporting
- Connectivity to OMS and FIX confirmation capabilities

Commission Rates

DWS Group utilizes a of commission rate schedule that has been negotiated with approved broker-dealers by country and type of trade.

Best Execution

When selecting brokers for order execution, RREEF will seek to obtain the best possible result taking into account price, costs, speed, likelihood of execution and settlement, size, nature or any other consideration relevant to the execution of the order.

The relative importance of these execution factors will generally be determined based on the following criteria:

- _ The characteristics of the order
- _ The financial instruments that are the subject of the order
- _ The characteristics of the execution venues to which the order can be directed
- _ The current market circumstances
- _ Specifically for funds: the objectives, investment policy and risks of the fund as indicated in the prospectus, articles of association or offering documents of the fund

Generally, RREEF regards price and cost as the important factors for best execution, however there may be circumstances when RREEF may determine that other execution factors have a greater influence in seeking to achieve best execution.

Brokerage Practices Fiduciary Oversight Sub-Committee ("BPSC")

The BPSC, which is directed by the DWS Americas Investment Risk Fiduciary Oversight Committee ("IROC"), is the fiduciary oversight committee for brokerage practices, including broker selection, best execution and new commission sharing and soft dollar agreements for DWS Group in the Americas.

The responsibilities of the BPSC include, but are not limited to, the following:

1. Reviewing:
 - _ Best execution practices including, but not limited to broker selection, new soft dollar arrangements, approval of standard commission schedules, etc.
2. Reviewing best execution determinations from each trading desk, including where applicable:
 - _ Trading volume and commission by broker
 - _ Broker rank
 - _ Trends and market color as it related to execution
 - _ Cross trading activity
3. Reviewing list of approved counterparties.
4. Reviewing trading errors

Allocation of Investments

DWS Group has policies and procedures, which RREEF has adopted, reasonably designed to ensure that all clients are treated fairly and equitably.

When RREEF aggregates orders for its clients, the order is placed with one or more broker-dealers or other counterparties for execution. When an aggregated order is completely filled, or if partially filled, at the end of the day, RREEF generally will allocate the securities or the proceeds from the sale pro-rata among the participating client accounts, based on the accounts' relative size. In accordance with DWS' Trading Allocation Methodology, adjustments or changes to the allocation may be made under certain circumstances, such as to avoid odd lots or small allocations or to satisfy cash flows and guidelines.

New Issue Allocation

When allocating Initial Public Offerings ("IPOs"), Secondary Public Offerings ("SPOs") (collectively "new issues") and other block trades, DWS must treat all client accounts in a fair and equitable manner.

When the order has been entered by the portfolio manager into the front office system and sent to the responsible dealing desk, DWS will aggregate all orders in relation to a new issue and submit an aggregated indication of interest for DWS to the broker. Participation in new issues is limited to those client accounts that meet applicable FINRA eligibility requirements. Not all client accounts or funds will be eligible for investment in new issues. Any deviations to the applicable allocation methodologies must be approved by DWS Compliance.

Research and Soft Dollar Benefits

RREEF is permitted by Section 28(e) of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934, as amended (such Act, the "1934 Act" and such Section, the "Sec. 28(e) Safe Harbor") when placing securities transactions for an account, to cause the account to pay brokerage commissions in excess of that which another broker-dealer might charge for executing the same transaction in order to obtain research and brokerage services if RREEF determines that such commissions are reasonable in relation to the overall services provided. RREEF may from time to time, execute portfolio transactions with broker-dealers that provide research and brokerage services to RREEF. When RREEF uses client commissions to obtain research and brokerage services, RREEF receives a benefit because it does not have to produce or pay for the research and brokerage services itself. As a result, RREEF will have an incentive to select or recommend a broker-dealer based on its interest in receiving the research and brokerage services from that broker-dealer, rather than solely on its clients' interest in receiving the best commission rate. As a result, RREEF must determine in good faith that the non-execution costs paid to broker-dealers are reasonable in relation to the value of the research and brokerage services received by RREEF.

Research services provided by brokers to RREEF may include, but is not limited to, information on the economy, industries, groups of securities, individual companies, statistical information, accounting and tax law interpretations, political developments, legal developments affecting portfolio securities, technical market action, pricing and appraisal services, credit analysis, risk measurement analysis, performance analysis and measurement and analysis of corporate responsibility issues. These research services are typically received in the form of written reports, telephone contacts and personal meetings with security analysts. Research services may also be provided in the form of market data services, and meetings arranged with corporate and industry representatives. Research and brokerage services may include products obtained from third parties, if RREEF determines that such product or service constitutes brokerage and research as defined in Section 28(e) and interpretations thereunder.

These research and brokerage services may be bundled with the trade execution services provided by a particular broker-dealer and, subject to applicable law, RREEF may pay for such research and brokerage services with client commissions. Transactions will not always be executed at the most favorable available commission and RREEF may cause clients to pay commissions higher than those charged by other broker-dealers as a result of the research and brokerage services received by RREEF to service its clients. RREEF participates in "commission sharing arrangements" under which RREEF may execute transactions through a broker-dealer and request that the broker-dealer allocate a portion of the commissions or commission credits to another firm that provides research to RREEF. RREEF believes such arrangements are useful in its investment decision-making process by, among other things, ensuring access to a variety of research, access to individual analysts and availability of resources that RREEF might not be provided absent such arrangements. Due to European regulatory changes affecting RREEF and certain of its affiliates, beginning in January 2018, certain clients no longer participate in the client commission sharing arrangements described above.

Clients may differ with regard to whether and to what extent they pay for research and brokerage services through commissions. As a result, brokerage and research services may disproportionately benefit some clients relative to other clients based on the relative amount of commissions paid by the clients and in particular those clients that do not pay for research and brokerage services. RREEF has implemented certain controls and processes designed to oversee and secure to its satisfaction substantially equivalent outcomes by putting in place processes to establish maximum budgets for research costs and allocating research costs based on assets that are participating in the commission sharing arrangements. RREEF will switch to execution only commissions when maximums are met and will pay for research services with its own assets. While RREEF seeks to estimate its research budget in good faith, the actual costs of such research may be higher or lower than budgeted, and RREEF may face conflicts of interest in estimating such budgets.

Trading and Broker Restrictions

Clients may limit RREEF's authority by prohibiting or by limiting the purchasing of certain securities or industry groups.

In addition, a client may further limit RREEF's authority by (i) requiring that all or a portion of the client's transactions be executed through the client's designated broker-dealer ("Designated Broker") and/or (ii) restricting RREEF from executing the client's transactions through a particular broker-dealer.

In situations where a client directs or restricts brokerage for their accounts ("Directed/Restricted Brokerage"), because the client has placed limitations on the selection of broker-dealers to execute Directed/Restricted Brokerage, RREEF may be unable to obtain "best execution" for such trades. Similarly, where a client directs RREEF to use a particular counterparty for swaps, OTC options, etc., RREEF may be unable to obtain best execution for such trades. Furthermore, Directed/Restricted Brokerage may not be aggregated or "blocked" for execution with transactions in the same securities for other clients and may trade after the aggregated trades and/or directed trades for other RREEF clients. As a result, such clients may have to pay higher commissions or receive less favorable net prices than would be the case if the clients had participated in the aggregated trading order and RREEF were authorized to choose the broker through which to execute transactions for such client accounts.

In agreeing to satisfy a client's directions to execute transactions for its account through Designated Brokers, RREEF understands that it is the client's responsibility to ensure that: (i) all services provided by the Designated Brokers (a) will be provided solely to the client's account and any beneficiaries of the account, (b) are proper and permissible expenses of the account, and may properly be provided in consideration for brokerage commissions or other remuneration paid to the Designated Brokers; (ii) using the Designated Brokers in the manner directed is in the best interest of the client's account and any beneficiaries of the account, taking into consideration the services provided by the Designated Brokers; (iii) its directions will not conflict with any obligations persons acting for the client's account may have to the account, its beneficiaries or any third parties, including any fiduciary obligations persons acting for the account may have to obtain the most favorable price and execution for the account and its beneficiaries; and (iv) persons acting for the client's account have requisite power and authority to provide the directions on behalf of the account and have obtained all consents, approvals or authorizations from any beneficiaries of the account and third parties that may be required under applicable law or instruments governing the account.

Counterparty Risk

Counterparty risk is the risk that a counterparty will not be able to complete a client's transaction, whether due to financial difficulties or otherwise, which may result in opportunity cost and/or loss of principal. While DWS Group cannot guarantee the creditworthiness of counterparties, DWS Group has a Counterparty Risk Management (CPRM) team within its Chief Control Office (“CCO”), which is responsible for assessing and managing counterparty risk for all transactions undertaken on behalf of RREEF’s clients and across all businesses globally within DWS Group. The CPRM team has developed policies and procedures which are used to assess credit worthiness and levels of credit exposure of all counterparties, to approve or decline counterparty limits and exposures, and to measure and monitor counterparty exposure to ensure that there is no undue concentration of exposure, within levels that, in DWS Group’s judgment, are disproportionate to the counterparty’s financial resources. For certain transactions involving extended settlements, the CPRM team is heavily involved in the negotiation of special agreements with certain counterparties.

In less-developed markets, there may well be a higher level of counterparty risk because broker-dealers may not be as well capitalized. In addition, there is often more limited and less reliable information about counterparties’ financial condition, less regulatory supervision of securities markets, market policies that may require payment before delivery of securities, less automated clearance and settlement conditions, the uncertain enforceability of legal obligations, greater market volatility, and increased levels of sovereign and currency risk. In these markets, the effort to attain best execution may also tend to increase counterparty risk, and RREEF will attempt to balance these factors when selecting a broker-dealer to execute client transactions.

Order Aggregation

RREEF may, to the extent appropriate, permissible and/or feasible, aggregate multiple client orders for the purchase or sale of the same security placed at or around the same time, to achieve best execution with respect to all transactions being effected on behalf of client accounts. To the extent possible, the aggregation of orders shall be performed in a way that it does not disadvantage any client account or client whose orders are to be aggregated.

RREEF will generally execute aggregated orders across all applicable accounts. Orders of the same security and transaction type should, to the extent possible, be aggregated. Any subsequent orders that the trading desk receives prior to full execution of an aggregated order should generally will be added to the unfilled portion. In addition, to the extent that aggregated orders are partially unfilled following execution, the unfilled amounts are to be combined with subsequent orders for future execution. When an aggregated order is executed at more than one price over the course of a day, the executed transactions are allocated so that each account pays (or receives) the weighted average execution price per broker and generally will pay the average commission, subject to odd lots or rounding. There may be instances in which not all accounts are charged the same commission or commission equivalent rates in an aggregated order, including restrictions under applicable law on the use of client commissions to pay for research services (i.e., those accounts subject to MiFID II). Accounts that do not use commissions to pay for research services included in the aggregated order pay commissions at “execution-only” rates which would be below the total commission rates paid by those client accounts that use commissions to pay for research services.

RREEF does not always bunch or aggregate orders for different accounts if aggregating is not appropriate or practicable from RREEF's operational or other perspectives or if doing so would not be appropriate in light of applicable regulatory considerations. For example, trading instructions, cash flows, separate portfolio management processes, among other factors may result in orders in the same security not being bunched or aggregated. This may result in RREEF placing orders in the same instrument for different accounts at different times.

Certain orders (may be auto-routed electronically for execution and as such may not be aggregated with other orders. There may be instances in which other RREEF client orders for the same security are being placed through a broker and, in those instances, the auto-routed and the direct orders may potentially compete against each other in the market. Prices and availability of a security may differ depending on whether an order was auto-routed or aggregated, and this may result in certain client accounts receiving more or less favorable prices than the other client accounts in contemporaneous trades.

Certain orders may be auto-routed electronically for execution and as such may not be aggregated with other orders. There may be instances in which other RREEF client orders for the same security are being placed through a broker and, in those instances, the auto-routed and the direct orders may theoretically compete against each other in the market. Prices and availability of a security may differ depending on whether an order was auto-routed or aggregated, and this may result in certain client accounts receiving more or less favorable prices than the other client accounts in contemporaneous trades.

RREEF may also utilize certain affiliated advisers' trading desks to facilitate the routing and execution of client orders. In such cases, consistent with its best execution obligations, the affiliate advisers will execute these orders along with affiliate orders in the manner described above so as to treat all client accounts in a fair and equitable manner.

Errors and Corrections

A trading error is defined as an error in the placement, execution, or settlement of a client's trade. Trade errors include improper trades resulting from incorrect information being given to, and fully accepted by, the executing broker; trades that are inconsistent with a client's or fund client's investment guidelines, RREEF policy or procedure, applicable laws and regulations, and operational errors that cause trading or guideline breaches. A trading error does not include, for example, a situation where RREEF invests in a particular investment that does not perform as expected. Operational mistakes which can be promptly reversed so as not to affect the client account also are not considered operational errors. In accordance with its policy, any trade error that affects a RREEF client account must be resolved promptly and fairly, and in accordance with legal/regulatory restrictions and guidelines. All trade errors caused by RREEF which result in a loss to a client account must be reimbursed regardless of the amount. With respect to certain trade errors, RREEF may determine the amount of such reimbursement by offsetting losses against gains resulting from such errors to the extent permitted by DWS' policies and procedures and applicable law. All trade errors are reported on a regular basis to RREEF management and/or DWS Compliance.

Electronic Communication Network (ECN)

RREEF may elect to utilize Electronic Communication Networks (ECNs) to execute trades. RREEF's affiliates may maintain an ownership interest in one or more ECNs, which creates a conflict of interest. In no case does such interest by RREEF or any U.S. affiliate currently exceed 10%.

Item 13 / Review of Accounts

RREEF's investment management team, which includes portfolio managers, research analysts, and traders, regularly reviews all accounts. Each strategy has a separate investment committee that undertakes a formal review of applicable accounts on a periodic basis.

For the Liquid Real Assets Strategy, accounts are reviewed formally on a monthly basis by a formal working group and informally on an ongoing basis. The first step in the monthly review process is analyzing account dispersion. All instances of dispersion are documented. As part of this review process, a monthly working group meeting is held to review the dispersion report. The performance measurement team then produces a secondary set of performance reports. This set of performance data is reviewed and verified, a process which includes a secondary review of all composite constituent performance, to ensure accuracy and consistency.

Reports Provided to Clients

Liquid Real Assets—Real Estate, Infrastructure and other Real Assets Securities

Clients receive written reports that analyze current portfolio holdings and account performance on at least a quarterly basis, along with any specific client-requested reports. These reports also contain RREEF's investment outlook.

Real Estate—Core / Core Plus, Value Added and Debt and Opportunistic

Investors in each of the separately managed accounts and investment vehicles receive written performance reports on a quarterly basis that summarize operations, provide valuations, and include quarterly operating statements and statements of financial condition. When required, clients receive an audited report that may include a review of each real estate asset and its financial data, including complete financial statements certified by an independent Certified Public Accountant.

SEC-Registered Non-Traded REIT

Stockholders receive an annual report that includes:

- Financial statements certified by an independent Certified Public Accountant;
- Ratio of the costs of raising capital during the year to the capital raised, the aggregate amount of advisory fees, and the aggregate amount of other fees paid during the year to RREEF/its affiliates by the Registered Non-Traded REIT or third parties doing business with the Registered Non-Traded REIT;
- Total operating expenses for the year, stated as both a percentage of the Registered Non-Traded REIT's average invested assets and as a percentage of net income;
- A statement by the independent directors that the Registered Non-Traded REIT's policies reflect the best interest of its stockholders and the basis for such determination; and
- A separate report that discloses the material terms, factors, and circumstances of all transactions that involve the Registered Non-Traded REIT, RREEF, a director or any affiliate during the year. The independent directors must examine and comment on the fairness of the transactions in this report.

Stockholders will also have access to quarterly and other reports and documents regarding investment in the Registered Non-Traded REIT.

Infrastructure Debt Investments

Investors receive quarterly reports that cover relevant credit metrics and detail the performance of each investment. If RREEF provides investment advisory services to a pooled investment vehicle, no financial statement or investor report is required. However, investors in such pooled investment vehicles will receive a monthly report prepared by the trustee/portfolio administrator that provides a comprehensive summary of the portfolio, including investment positions, interest/principal, and compliance tests.

Item 14 / Client Referrals and Other Compensation

RREEF and/or its affiliates may compensate affiliates or non-affiliates for client referrals in accordance with Rule 206(4)-3 under the Investment Advisers Act. The compensation paid to any such entity may consist of a payment stated as a percentage of the advisory fee. Employees of RREEF and/or its affiliates and/or third parties who refer or help solicit investment advisory clients may also be compensated based on a percentage of the investment advisory fee charged to that client. When required under the law, RREEF's policies and procedures require regulatory disclosure of the compensation arrangement between RREEF and the referring party and client consent.

RREEF may be referred advisory clients by unaffiliated consultants that are retained by existing or prospective clients. These consultants may advise existing or prospective clients whether to engage or retain the services of RREEF as investment adviser. Additionally, while payments are not made in connection with any advisory client referral such as these, RREEF may make payments to investment consultants in order to attend industry-wide conferences sponsored by these consultants.

Item 15 / Custody

Custodian Statements

Under Rule 206(4)-2 under the Investment Advisers Act (the “Custody Rule”), RREEF has custody of the assets contained in the portfolios of certain private fund clients, because RREEF or an affiliate serves as the general partner of, or in a similar capacity for, such funds or has constructive custody of certain private fund client assets. Accordingly, RREEF is subject to the relevant provisions of the Custody Rule. Investors in such funds do not receive account statements from the custodian; rather, the pertinent funds are subject to an annual audit and the audited financial statements are distributed to each fund investor within the required time period.

RREEF may also be deemed to have custody of client assets because assets are maintained with a related person as the qualified custodian or as the sub-custodian, or as a result of limited discretionary authority over certain client assets (i.e., the ability to take possession of client funds and/or securities). In these cases, RREEF’s clients generally receive statements from the qualified custodian at least quarterly. Clients are encouraged to review these statements carefully and compare statements received from RREEF with statements received from the qualified custodian. Comparing statements may allow clients to determine whether account transactions are proper. Clients who are not receiving statements from their account custodian at least quarterly, where applicable, are instructed to contact their client service representative.

Item 16 / Investment Discretion

Investment and Brokerage Discretion

Generally, RREEF is retained on a discretionary basis for client accounts, subject to (i) the investment guidelines, objectives, limitations and terms set forth in the applicable governing documents for each client account, and (ii) with respect to certain pooled vehicle clients, the oversight and supervision of the applicable general partner, board of directors or comparable governing entity or body. From time to time, a client may also retain RREEF on a non-discretionary basis, explicitly requiring that portfolio transactions be discussed in advance. For RREEF's Liquid Real Assets strategies, RREEF determines which securities should be bought or sold, the total amount to be bought or sold for the account, the broker or dealer through which the securities are executed, and the commission rates, if any, at which transactions are effected for those accounts.

Discretionary clients typically authorize RREEF to supervise and direct the investment and reinvestment of assets in an account, with full authority and at its discretion, subject to the client's investment policy or guidelines. RREEF's advisory services are tailored according to investment policies and guidelines that are established contractually at the inception of the adviser-client relationship (as amended from time to time) in cooperation with the client. These policies and guidelines, which may include imposed restriction on investing in certain securities or types of securities assist RREEF in making investment decisions for the client as well as cover matters such as the degree of risk that the client wishes to assume, and the types and amounts of securities to make up the portfolio.

As may be negotiated with each client, RREEF may delegate investment management authority for all or a portion of a client's accounts to an affiliate, including affiliates that may be outside the United States. The accounts that have been delegated will be managed in accordance with the investment policies of the affiliate. More information regarding the affiliated advisers, including applicable fees, is available upon request.

Item 17 / Voting Client Securities

RREEF has proxy voting responsibility for certain advisory accounts as indicated in the respective investment advisory agreement, or pursuant to other delegated authority.

RREEF has adopted a proxy voting policy and procedure (collectively, the "Guidelines"). The Guidelines includes specific proxy voting guidelines that set forth the general principles RREEF uses to determine how to vote proxies for issuers in client accounts for which RREEF has proxy voting responsibility. RREEF believes that the Guidelines are reasonably designed to ensure that client proxies are voted in the best economic interests of clients and to ensure that material conflicts of interest are avoided and/or resolved in a manner consistent with RREEF's fiduciary duties under applicable law.

The Guidelines set forth standard voting positions on a comprehensive list of common proxy voting matters. Guidelines are monitored and periodically updated based on considerations of current corporate governance principles, industry standards, client feedback, and the impact of the matter on issuers and the value of the investments, among other considerations.

RREEF has engaged a third party proxy voting service (the "Proxy Service") to assist in the implementation of certain proxy voting-related functions, including, without limitation, operational, recordkeeping and reporting services. The Proxy Service also prepares recommendations for each proxy that reflects its application of the Guidelines to a particular proxy issue. The Proxy Service uses the Guidelines adopted by RREEF and does not use its own guidelines when providing proxy related services to RREEF.

Under normal circumstances, RREEF will vote proxies in accordance with the Guidelines or delegate to a Proxy Service to facilitate voting in accordance with the Guidelines. Any client proxy vote that is not addressed by specific client instructions, is not covered by the Guidelines, or is one in which RREEF believes that voting in accordance with the Guidelines may not be in the best economic interests of clients, will be evaluated and voted in accordance with the Guidelines. In such circumstances, RREEF shall vote those proxies in accordance with what it, in good faith, determines to be the best economic interests of clients. Any proxy vote not covered by the Guidelines will be subject to prior review by the Conflicts of Interest Management Sub-Committee, established within DWS Group, which will investigate whether there are any material conflicts of interest in connection with a particular vote. The Conflicts of Interest Management Sub-Committee will review, for example, whether RREEF has any known potential conflict of interest that can be reasonably determined, with the relevant issuer as well as whether any person participating in the proxy voting process may have a conflict of interest personally. In the event that the Conflicts of Interest Management Sub-Committee determines that there is a material conflict of interest, RREEF will either follow the proxy voting recommendations of the Proxy Service or will obtain proxy voting instructions from affected clients. It is possible that actual proxy voting decisions by RREEF in respect of a particular client may benefit RREEF's other clients or businesses of RREEF or its affiliates provided RREEF's proxy voting decisions are made in accordance with its fiduciary responsibilities and are independent of such considerations.

RREEF may have voting discretion with respect to accounts that own securities issued by DWS Group, its affiliates (including DB AG itself) or pooled investment vehicles managed by RREEF or its affiliates. In circumstances in which RREEF has discretion to vote proxies with respect to such securities, RREEF may determine to abstain from voting or vote proxies pursuant to an echo voting arrangement under which share are voted in the same manner and proportion as shares for which RREEF does not have voting discretion. Determinations by RREEF as to whether and how to vote proxies with respect to securities issued by DWS Group, its affiliates or pooled investment vehicles managed by RREEF or its affiliates may create a conflict between the interests of DWS Group and RREEF, on the one hand, and clients, on the other hand.

Clients who have delegated proxy voting responsibilities to RREEF may from time to time contact their client service representatives to direct as to how to vote certain proxies on behalf of their accounts. RREEF will use its commercially reasonable efforts to vote according to the client's request in these circumstances. Clients can obtain a copy of the Guidelines, or information about how DWS Group voted proxies with respect to securities held in their account, by calling their client service representative.

If a client chooses not to delegate proxy voting authority to RREEF, the right to vote securities is retained by the client or other designated person. In such situations, the client will generally receive proxies or other solicitations directly from the custodian.
