Item 2 -- Material Changes

This Form ADV Part 2A makes certain changes to the prior Form ADV Part 2A of CoreCap Advisors, Inc. (“CCA”). Among the material changes is the fact that CCA’s former president R. Max Pett, has undertaken other opportunities and has resigned from his CoreCap responsibilities. The new President of CoreCap Advisors, LLC is Jason R. Steeno, who is discussed more completely at Item 4 below.

Item 4 -- Advisory Business

We were founded in 2011 and are currently owned by Core Capital Holdings, LLC., a holding company that is ultimately owned by Dennis M. Brown and Platform Partners Capital LLC . We recently converted our structure from being a Michigan corporate to that of a Delaware LLC.

In March, 2020, R. Max Pett, long-time President & CEO of CoreCap Advisors, LLC, resigned to undertake other opportunities. He was replaced as President and Chief Executive Officer by Jason R. Steeno, an individual with 19 years’ experience in the securities business, much of it in the building and running of registered investment advisors such as CCA. Mr. Steeno is also President and Chief Executive Officer of our advisory affiliate, CoreCap Investments, Inc., a registered broker-dealer and member of FINRA/SIPC in that capacity.

We provide discretionary portfolio management and financial planning services to our clients. Portfolio investment decisions are made according to the investment objectives and risk tolerances of each client, and also the client’s stated investment restrictions (if any) and special circumstances. As a relationship-oriented firm, we emphasize individualized attention to a client’s assets and investment needs. Investment decisions are made on a consultative basis with the client or the client’s designated financial advisors, financial planners, attorneys or accountants.

Asset fee based services are administered via the RBC Correspondent Services (“RBC”) brokerage platform and via the advisory platform at TD Ameritrade (“TD”).¹ Clients may elect to use either RBC or

¹ TD Ameritrade announced in late 2019 that it intends to merge with Charles Schwab, and that it expects this merger to

TD. Generally, clients will sign an investment management agreement giving CCA discretionary investment authority over their account. Discretion refers solely to our authority to make purchase and sale decisions for a client's account. The use of investments such as mutual funds or Exchange Traded Funds ("ETFs") may create a layering of management fees for those client relationships in which they are used. The normal fees associated with a mutual fund or an ETF (such as investment advisory, administration, distribution, transfer agent, custodial, legal, audit and other customary business-related fees and expenses) will apply as well as the agreed-upon investment management fee from us. In these situations, we will usually select one or more mutual funds or ETFs for the client and will discuss the investment with the client before it is made

We have also, on occasion, entered into relationships with third-party investment advisors who provide services to our clients. CCA may, from time to time and based upon information received from the client, utilize the services of such a Sub-Advisor to manage some or all of a client's assets on a discretionary basis and in accordance with the client's stated investment objectives. In these situations, CCA offers consulting and advisory services in overseeing such Sub-Advisors. CCA makes recommendations regarding the use of a Sub-Advisor and its investment style based on, but not limited to, the client's financial needs, long-term goals, and investment objectives.

Sub-Advisors selected by CCA offer multiple strategies. Once a Sub-Advisor is selected, CCA continues to monitor the chosen firm to ensure that it adheres to the philosophy and investment style for which it was selected and to ensure that its performance, portfolio strategies, and management remain aligned with the client's overall investment goals and objectives. CCA will retain discretionary authority to hire and fire Sub-Advisors and reallocate the client's assets to other Sub-Advisors, where such action is deemed to be in the best interest of the client. CCA's ongoing review includes, but is not limited to, assessment of the Sub-Advisor's disclosure brochure, performance information, materials, personnel turnover, and regulatory events.

We have a fee sharing agreement in place with the subadvisors. The allocation of the gross advisory fees between CCA and the subadvisors is dictated by the services provided to the individual client. Clients are not charged additional fees to cover this fee sharing agreement with subadvisors. The fees shared will not exceed our stated maximum advisory fee. The client will be asked to authorize the subadvisor with the ability to withdraw the total advisory fee.

Our clients choose to enter into relationships with these advisors through us and the fees for such advisors are included with the fees paid to us. Separate Forms ADV 2-A and 2-B, as appropriate, for the third-party advisors will be provided to clients by us on any such accounts.

Each client may also be responsible for paying any transaction costs associated with purchasing and selling securities.

Clients seeking financial planning services only may enter into an agreement for planning services, payable either via a flat fee or at an hourly rate.

You will receive an initial copy of our Form CRS (Customer Relationship Statement) at a later date and should review it for additional information about our firm and our obligation to disclose and to mitigate or eliminate conflicts between our interests and yours. As fiduciaries under the Investment Advisers Act of 1940, as amended, we are required to act in your best interest at all times in relation to this account.

begin to happen in the latter half of 2020. At this time, no material impact upon our firm is expected.

Item 5 -- Fees and Compensation²

For discretionary accounts, fees are normally billed in advance, based on the net asset value of a client's account under management as of the last day of the prior billing period. Billing periods (typically monthly or quarterly) are established during consultation with each client. Fees charged to new clients will also be pro-rated for the number of days in the billing period during which the new client's account was open. If a client terminates the relationship with us other than at the end of a billing period, the fees for the billing period in which termination occurred will be calculated through the date of termination based on the assets under management on that date. We prefer to have our clients authorize us to have RBC or TD, as applicable, invoice and deduct these fees directly from their accounts, in compliance with applicable SEC and state rules that permit this type of arrangement.

As you may know, many large wire-house firms, like TD Ameritrade and RBC, made significant changes to their pricing structure in 2019. These changes may have impacted the fees and expenses you pay on your account with us.

For certain accounts with certain sub-advisors, fees will be billed quarterly in arrears. For such accounts, clients may terminate their advisory agreement with thirty (30) days' written notice. Because fees are charged in arrears, no refund policy is necessary or provided for such accounts. Clients may terminate such contracts without penalty within five (5) business days of signing the advisory contract. Advisory fees will be withdrawn directly from the client's accounts based on the written authorization to do so by the client.

Our fees are negotiable and are typically lower as the amount of initial assets in a client's account increases. Our annual fees can range between 1.00% and 3.00% of assets under management. The annualized fee applies to 100% of the assets in the account, and client-related accounts may be aggregated for fee calculations.

In addition to the account fees and expenses described above, when a client's assets are invested in ETFs or mutual funds, the client's account will also be subject to various other fees and expenses that are described in the ETF's or mutual fund's prospectus. These fees and expenses are paid by the ETF or mutual fund but are ultimately borne by the client as a shareholder of the mutual fund. These fees and expenses include investment advisory, administration, distribution, transfer agent, custodian, legal, audit and other customary fees and expenses related to mutual funds.

CCA may, from time to time, enter into solicitor agreements with other registered investment advisors. In such cases, CCA will refer a potential client to the third party advisor and will receive a one-time or on-going referral fee from such advisor for such referrals. These referral fees will be included in the management fee charged by the third party advisor, and thus the client will see only one total fee.

Item 6 -- Performance-Based Fees and Side-By-Side Management

We do not charge or accept "performance-based fees," which are fees based on a share of capital gains on, or capital appreciation of, the assets of a client.

Item 7 -- Types of Clients

We provide discretionary portfolio management services primarily to individuals, including high net worth individuals and those persons who are "accredited investors" (as defined by SEC rules), and self-directed retirement plans such as 401(k) and 403(b) accounts owned by these individuals. In addition, we also provide portfolio management services to pension and profit sharing plans, trusts, estates, and corporations. We do not impose any required minimum size for a client's account, although we use the services of certain third party money managers who may impose such minimums.

Item 8 -- Methods of Analysis, Investment Strategies and Risk of Loss

In order to provide our clients with a diversified portfolio of investments that are tailored to their investment objectives, we intend to focus our investment advice on mutual funds, ETFs, individual stocks, and bonds. In certain cases, we may also incorporate options or short sales, but only after discussion with the client. Our investment time horizon is typically long term (over a number of years). Our research is generally independent and may incorporate financial magazines, publications and papers, fundamental research, corporate ratings services, SEC filings and other pertinent sources.

Fortis

CoreCap provides a signals buying program called Fortis. Fortis Portfolio Strategies (FPS) is a private portfolio investment management service for the exclusive use of Core Cap advisor's offering both stock and ETF strategies for individual investors. Each portfolio strategy embodies its own characteristics regarding the approach to the stock market, as each is derived from carefully selected independent research sources across the country. FPS overarching mission is offer clients well rounded portfolio solutions by encompassing world renowned research ideas which combine both fundamental and technical analysis in the selection of stock and ETF portfolio strategies. Purely fundamentally based stock strategies tend to be more fully invested, while their quantitative based counterparts rely on more technical indicators to adjust to changing macro and microeconomic conditions. Higher than usual cash positions can also occur in all ETF stock and fixed-income portfolio strategies on a strategic basis. ETFs that invest in common stocks, preferred stocks, ADRs, fixed income, real estate, and commodities are eligible for selection; while leveraged ETFS and ETFs which invest in the alternative category are not eligible for selection

Please note that Fortis is not a registered investment advisor and therefore is not a third party money manager with whom clients or CCA enter into an agreement.

Yorktown Tactical Portfolios

CoreCap provides a signals-buying program called Yorktown Tactical Portfolios. Yorktown provides a range of risk profiles for purchasing signals and is offered through both of our custodians, RBC Correspondent Services and TD Ameritrade.

Yorktown Tactical Portfolios have the potential to invest in domestic equity sector Exchange Traded Funds, fixed income ETFs, Exchange Traded Notes representing alternative investments; and will take defensive positions by investing in a cash equivalent, such as money market fund and/or comparable ETF. The investment strategies can independently raise up to 100% cash when market conditions dictate.

Please note that Yorktown is not a registered investment advisor and therefore is not a third party money manager with whom clients or CCA enter into an agreement.

Third Party Money Managers

Further, we have entered into sub-advisory agreements with certain third-party money managers. Clients may, at their discretion, choose to use the services of such money managers through CoreCap. Account minimums and additional fees, set by the third party money manager, may apply in such relationships. Clients who choose to utilize the services of third-party managers will receive, as applicable, the Forms ADV 2-A and 2-B of those advisors from CCA.

Selection of Other Advisers – Although we seek to select only those sub-advisors who will invest your assets with the highest level of integrity, our selection process cannot ensure that the selected subadvisor will have positive performance or outperform a particular benchmark. We do not have control over the day-to-day operations of the sub-advisors.

Also, while we strive to render our best judgment on your behalf, many economic and market variables beyond our control can affect the performance of your investments and we cannot assure that your investments will be profitable or no losses will occur in your investment portfolio.

Past performance is one consideration with respect to any investment or investment adviser, but it is not a predictor of future performance.

Investing in securities involves the risk of loss that a client should be prepared to bear. We do not guarantee our investment results or performance, and we generally do not engage in frequent trading of a client's account, which can adversely affect performance, particularly through increased brokerage and other transaction costs and taxes.

Item 9 -- Disciplinary Information

Our firm has not been involved in any legal or disciplinary proceedings during the past 10 years that are material to a client's (or a prospective client's) evaluation of our advisory business or the integrity of our management. Specifically, there have been no criminal or civil actions involving our firm, in which CCA was convicted of, or pled guilty or nolo contendere ("no contest") to (a) any felony; (b) a misdemeanor that involved investments or an investment-related business, fraud, false statements or omissions, wrongful taking of property, bribery, perjury, forgery, counterfeiting, or extortion; or (c) a conspiracy to commit any of these offenses; there have been no administrative proceedings before the United States Securities and Exchange Commission or any other foreign, federal or state regulatory agency, and there have been no proceedings by a self-regulatory organization involving our firm or any of our management persons.

Our former President was involved, in 2018, solely in his capacity as a control person of our affiliated broker-dealer, in certain litigation and enforcement actions relating to the supervision of a registered representative who engaged in serious misconduct with certain clients of the broker-dealer. It is not anticipated that this litigation and/or enforcement action will materially impact our President's ability to perform his duties with CCA. Our Chief Compliance Officer has also been named, solely as a control person, in a small number of these same litigation matters, all of which have now settled, and most of which have been expunged from her record pursuant to FINRA arbitration and expungement rules. Likewise, our affiliated broker-dealer is currently engaged in a potential enforcement action relating to this same registered representative. It is not anticipated that this litigation and/or enforcement action will materially impact the activities of CCA.

All of the arbitrations involving customers of this registered representative of our affiliated broker-dealer have been settled or otherwise resolved and the agreed-upon compensation paid. In addition, our affiliated broker-dealer, CoreCap Investments, Inc., and the former President of the broker-dealer who was also the President of CCA, entered into a settlement with the State of Michigan Division of Licensing and Regulatory Affairs, neither admitting nor denying any misconduct on the part of the BD or CCA's President, but agreeing to a joint censure and a fine, and undertaking to have certain of the firm's Written Supervisory Procedures reviewed by a third party outside expert. The firm paid the fine and has completed all other requirements of the Consent Order to the satisfaction of the State of Michigan.

The registered representative whose misconduct caused the above regulatory action has pleaded no contest and not guilty to a number of counts of embezzlement, has been banned for life from the securities industry and was sentenced to significant prison time. The funds which this representative embezzled from his clients were described by the representatives as for the purposes of investments outside of the broker-dealer and had been removed from the individuals' CoreCap accounts and placed in the clients' personal bank accounts prior to the point at which the embezzlement occurred.

Item 10 -- Other Financial Industry Activities and Affiliates

We are not registered as a broker-dealer, futures commission merchant, commodity pool operator, commodity trading advisor or an associated person of any of the foregoing entities. However, our parent company, Core Capital Holdings, LLC, owns a registered broker-dealer, CoreCap Investments, Inc., which is our affiliate. CoreCap Investments has also obtained the appropriate licenses to sell variable annuities in the states in which it does business. As a result, certain of our management persons are

.registered representatives and principals of that broker-dealer. None of these individuals, however, is registered as a futures commission merchant, commodity pool operator, commodity trading advisor or an associated person or is a listed principal of any of the foregoing entities, nor do any of our management persons have an application for such registration or listing pending.

Our Chief Compliance Officer provides services to our affiliated Broker-Dealer and, on a limited basis, to an affiliated Field Marketing Organization in insurance. She does not provide compliance services to any non-affiliated third parties, for compensation or otherwise.

Platform Partners Capital LLC ("Platform Capital"), a pooled investment vehicle, indirectly owns 35% of our voting securities. Platform Capital focuses on making investments in senior preferred equity, and subordinated debt with minority ownership of small and middle-market companies located in the United States. Platform Capital does not engage in business with or on behalf of us (other than in its capacity as an indirect owner), and there is no overlap of management or principals between us and Platform Capital.

Platform Partners, LLC ("Platform") is an SEC registered investment adviser that serves as the investment adviser to Platform Capital. Platform provides investment management services and certain ancillary managerial and administrative services, such as identifying and screening potential investments, recommending strategies for the management and disposition of investments, monitoring the performance of portfolio companies, and preparing reports necessary or appropriate for compliance with the governing agreements. Platform does not engage in business with or on behalf of us and there will be no overlap of management or principals between us and Platform.

Item 11 -- Code of Ethics, Participation or Interest in Client Transactions and Personal Trading

Our officers and employees who have or may have knowledge of present or future client transactions must comply with our written procedures that impose restrictions on the purchase and sale of securities by such individuals for their own accounts. Our written procedures require prior clearance of all personal securities transactions, except certain exempt transactions, by our Chief Compliance Officer or submission of all confirmations and monthly statements in lieu of such advance clearance. Copies of brokerage firm confirmations and monthly brokerage statements for all associated person accounts not carried by us or our affiliated broker-dealer must be sent directly to our Chief Compliance Officer, who reviews, initials, and retains copies of all such statements.

It should be noted that in many cases our compliance policies and procedures defer to those of our affiliated broker-dealer, except where the law requires otherwise. This means that our IARs are subject to the background check, fingerprinting, and continuing education requirements of the rules of the Financial Industry Regulatory Authority ("FINRA").

We have adopted a Code of Ethics that complies with SEC Rule 204A-1. This Code governs, among other things, the personal securities trading activities of our "supervised persons," which include any owner, manager, employee or other person who provides investment advice on our behalf and who is subject to supervision and control by us. The Code recognizes that all supervised persons owe a fiduciary duty to our clients, including a duty to conduct their personal securities transactions in a manner that does not interfere with the transactions of a client or otherwise take unfair advantage of the relationship with a client. The Code contains specific principles of conduct, prohibits certain types of securities trading activities by a supervised person, requires pre-clearance for certain securities transactions by a supervised person and requires "Access Persons" to file an initial holdings report and quarterly transactions reports with our Chief Compliance Officer. In lieu of such quarterly reports, the SEC permits individuals who are subject to submission of monthly brokerage statements to the firm to be deemed to be in compliance with this quarterly reporting requirement. All associated persons of CCA who have accounts that are not on the books of CCA or its affiliated broker-dealer are required to disclose such accounts to the Chief Compliance Office who then makes arrangements to receive such statements. A copy of our Code of Ethics will be provided to any client who requests one, without charge.

We do not buy or sell for client accounts any securities in which we or any of our "related persons" have a material financial interest. From time to time, we may, or our related persons may, invest in the same securities or related securities (e.g., warrants, options or futures) that we are recommending to our clients or that we are buying or selling for our clients at or about the same time. Under our Code of Ethics and policies on personal trading, we must execute our client's trades prior to making any trades on our own behalf or on behalf of a related person; however, we may include trades for our own account or for a related person in any "batch" trades that we execute for multiple clients at the same time. Batch trades are described in Item 12 below.

Item 12 -- Brokerage Practices

When we have discretionary authority to make transactions in a client's account, the extent of that authority will be determined based on the individual written agreement with the client. Depending on the terms of the discretionary account agreement with a client, we may be given the authority to make some or all of the following determinations without obtaining the client's prior consent, but subject to any specific restrictions or limitations requested by the client:

- which securities will be bought or sold;
- the total amount of securities to be bought or sold;
- the broker or dealer through which securities will be bought or sold; and
- the commission rates or prices at which securities transactions are to be carried out.

Selection of Brokers. In selecting a brokerage firm for our clients, we attempt to choose the one that has the capability of providing "best execution" for the client trades. In determining the ability of a broker or dealer to obtain best execution for a particular transaction we consider a number of factors, including (but not limited to) the execution capabilities necessary to the transaction, the importance of speed, efficiency and confidentiality, the broker's apparent familiarity with sources from which or to which particular securities may be purchased or sold and the reputation and the perceived soundness of the broker or dealer.

We do not have any duty or obligation to seek advance competitive bidding for the most favorable commission rates available for a particular transaction, or to select any broker solely on the basis of its purported or posted commission rates. We will take reasonable steps to be aware of the current level of charges of eligible brokers and to minimize the transaction expenses incurred, to the extent consistent with the interests and policies of clients. Although we generally seek competitive commissions, we do not necessarily obtain the lowest brokerage commissions. Some transactions may involve specialized services on the part of a broker and may entail higher commissions as a result.

In accounts for which we have authority to select the broker or dealer for transactions in an account, we prefer to use RBC or TD because of the lower (or no) brokerage commissions charged and the level of advisor/client service provide by these firms. For accounts where the client asks us to recommend a brokerage firm, we will recommend RBC or TD based on the reasons before mentioned.

Research and Other Soft Dollar Benefits. We do not engage in any soft dollar arrangements.

Brokerage for Client Referrals. When selecting or recommending a brokerage firm, we will choose RBC or TD Ameritrade. We do not receive any specific compensation for such referrals.

Directed Brokerage. A client may direct us to use a particular broker or dealer to execute transactions under terms and arrangements that the client has negotiated. Where this occurs, we may not be in a position to negotiate the lowest commissions or spreads for the client, or to achieve best execution of trades. In addition, transactions for a client who has directed us to use a certain broker or dealer may not be batched for purposes of execution (see below). Accordingly, the designation by a client of a particular broker or dealer may result in higher commissions, greater spreads, or less favorable prices than might be realized if we are empowered to select a broker or dealer and negotiate for best commission.

Aggregation of Trades. From time to time we may be in the position of buying or selling the same security for a number of clients at approximately the same time. Because of market fluctuations, the prices obtained on such transactions on a single day may vary substantially. In such situations, some clients will receive prices more favorable than other clients. To more equitably allocate the effects of such market fluctuations, we may use an averaging procedure for certain transactions, under which purchases or sales of a particular security will be combined ("batched") for all accounts trading in the same security on the same day. In such cases, the prices shown on confirmation reports for these purchases or sales will be the average execution price for the batch. In certain situations, batched orders entered may not be completely filled, and in such event, we will prorate the completed portion of the order to ensure that all clients participating in the batched order will receive an allocated portion of the completed transaction.

Item 13 -- Review of Accounts

All accounts are monitored or reviewed on an ongoing and regular basis (generally daily) for performance. Complete reviews are made on a monthly basis. When relevant factors change, such as the financial needs or objectives of a client on fundamental developments which impact the companies whose securities held, or when a security's relative valuation changes, or during periods of market fluctuations, an individual account is promptly reviewed. All reviews are conducted by the investment advisor representative who is responsible for management of a client's account.

Our clients or their designated agents or advisors will generally receive monthly account statements from their custodian which detail security positions, current value, cost basis and expected yield. We also provide monthly and/or quarterly portfolio appraisals detailing portfolio structure, holdings, income, etc. Clients are encouraged to compare our statements with the statements received from their broker/custodian and to confirm that the investments we report are in fact held by the custodian. Market updates informing clients of relevant developments are provided at least quarterly. In-person visits are scheduled periodically or at a client's discretion to ensure communication and understanding of portfolio activities and accomplishments.

It is important for clients to note that we rely upon and do not verify the financial and other information which they provide to us and to be aware that they should promptly update us on any material change to their financial or other status.

Item 14 -- Client Referrals and Other Compensation

We do not at the present time enter into arrangements with individuals to solicit and refer prospects to us for a fee.

Item 15 -- Custody

We do not hold custody of any client funds or securities. While we normally provide our clients with quarterly statements of their account's status and performance, we encourage our clients to compare the information contained in the statements we provide with the information that each client receives directly from the custodian of their account.

Custody, as it applies to investment advisors, has been defined by regulators as having access or control over client funds and/or securities. In other words, custody is not limited to physically holding client funds and securities. If an investment adviser has the ability to access or control client funds or securities, the investment adviser is deemed to have custody and must ensure proper procedures are implemented. We are deemed to have custody of client funds and securities whenever we are given the authority to have fees deducted directly from client accounts. However, this is the only form of custody we will ever maintain. It should be noted that authorization to trade in client accounts is not deemed by regulators to be custody. For accounts in which we are deemed to have custody, we have established procedures to ensure all client funds and securities are held at a qualified custodian in a separate account for each client under that client's name. Clients or an independent representative of the client will direct, in writing, the establishment of all accounts and therefore are aware of the qualified custodian's name, address and the manner in which the funds or securities are maintained. Finally, account statements are delivered directly from the qualified custodian to each client, or the client's independent representative, at least quarterly. Clients should carefully review those statements and are urged to compare the statements against reports received from us. When clients have questions about their account statements, they should contact us or the qualified custodian preparing the statement.

Item 16 -- Investment Discretion

When a client desires to provide us with complete authority to select which securities will be bought or sold and the total amount of securities to be bought or sold the investment account agreement will contain a limited power of attorney designating us as the client's attorney-in-fact for these purposes. Clients may place limitations on our powers, including limitations related to specific investment objectives or policies or limitations requiring some form of prior notice before we are allowed to execute transactions. Any limited power of attorney may be terminated by a client at any time without prior notice, but termination must be in writing (including email communications). Termination of the investment advisory agreement by email may be subject to verification procedures to ensure that the email has come from an authorized party on the account.

Item 17 -- Voting Client Securities

Our normal investment account agreement provides that we will not be responsible for voting with respect to the securities held in an account. We do not ask for and will not accept voting authority for client securities. If client requests to have proxies sent to them, we will instruct the broker to do so. In special circumstances, if requested by client, we may agree to vote on behalf of the client.

Item 18 -- Financial Information

We are not required to include in this brochure our balance sheet for the most recent fiscal year, because we do not, at the present time, require or solicit prepayment of more than $1,200 in fees per client six months or more in advance.

We are not aware of any financial condition that would impair our ability to meet our contractual commitments to our clients. Neither our firm nor any of our management persons have been the subject of a bankruptcy petition at any time during the past 10 years.

Item 4. Services, Fees and Compensation

A. As discussed in Item 4 at page CCA provides management of client assets through the efforts of its Investment Advisor Representatives and through relationships with third party advisors. There is no material difference between the CCA's standard advisory business and its wrap fee business.

B. Management fees are negotiable and range from approximately 1.00% to 3.00% annually. Most of our fees are billed quarterly in arrears; however, we do have one advisor who bills quarterly in advance. In either case, any fee overage at the time an account closes will be refunded on a pro rata basis.

The main material difference between a standard advisory account and a wrap fee account at CCA is that in a wrap fee account certain fees and charges are subsumed into the advisory fee charged against the account and paid to CCA. Thus, whereas a standard account may pay 1.35% of Assets Under Management on an annual basis, along with a ticket charge of $6.95 per transaction or a twelve basis point asset-based pricing fee, a wrap fee account might pay a flat 1.50% of AUM fee. Based on the amount of trading which takes place in a client's account, this can make a significant difference in the ultimate cost of the account. Although a representative will attempt to select the fee structure most advantageous to each client, it is possible that a wrap fee account could cost a client more than the same account would have cost on a non-wrap basis.

C. No fees or expenses are charged in addition to the wrap fee.

D. The representative who recommends that you enter into a wrap fee program is the investment advisor representative on your account. He or she will be compensated for the management of your account and, depending upon the nature of the trading in your account, may receive more compensation from a wrap account than she or he would under a standard fee arrangement. Thus, the representative may have a financial incentive to recommend a wrap account to you when it is not necessarily in your business interest. CCA does have policies and procedures in place to police and prevent any adverse effects from this potential conflict upon you and your account.

Item 5. Account Requirements and Types of Clients

CCA does not have any special requirements for accounts or clients wishing to participate in a wrap account. There is no minimum account size for a wrap account. CCA generally provides investment advice to individuals, trusts, and a limited number of qualified plan accounts.

Item 6. Portfolio Manager Selection and Evaluation

Selection of Other Advisers – Although we seek to select only those sub-advisors who will invest your assets with the highest level of integrity, our selection process cannot ensure that the selected subadvisor will have positive performance or outperform a particular benchmark. We do not have control over the day-to-day operations of the sub-advisors.

Also, while we strive to render our best judgment on your behalf, many economic and market variables beyond our control can affect the performance of your investments and we cannot assure that your investments will be profitable or no losses will occur in your investment portfolio.

CCA does not formally independently review the performance information of the portfolio managers whose service it uses and does not engage a third-party service to do so. For this reason, it should be noted that the performance information provided by such managers may not be calculated on a uniform or consistent basis, or in compliance with presentation standards relating to investment performance.

Past performance is one consideration with respect to any investment or investment adviser, but it is not a predictor of future performance.

Investing in securities involves the risk of loss that a client should be prepared to bear. We do not guarantee our investment results or performance, and we generally do not engage in frequent trading of a client's account, which can adversely affect performance, particularly through increased brokerage and other transaction costs and taxes.

Two of the advisors used by CCA, Fortis and Yorktown, feature trading based on signals from third party research analysts selected by a related person of the firm and are not Registered Investment Advisors. In each case, this related person is an Investment Advisor Representative of CCA who selected and oversees the signals being purchased. Because CCA does not receive any additional revenue through the use of these programs, no conflict of interest is created by their use.

Item 7. Client Information Provided to Portfolio Managers

Portfolio managers are given only that information necessary to transact the client business for which their services were retained.

Item 8. Client Contact with Portfolio Managers

CCA does not limit your ability to contact any of the portfolio managers whose services its clients use. However, you should be aware that such portfolio managers may themselves set limits on such contacts.

Item 9. Additional Information

A. See Item 9, Disciplinary Information, at Page 5 above, for a discussion of material disciplinary information relating to advisory affiliates of CCA. You should also refer to Item 10 at Page 6 above for information regarding our other financial industry activities and affiliations.

B. Please see Item 11 above at Page 6 regarding our Code of Ethics, our lack of participation in client transactions, and our policies and procedures relating to personal trading. CCA has adopted a Code of Ethics in compliance with SEC regulations, does not participate in transactions with its clients, and discourages outside trading accounts by its representatives, which must be expressly authorized by the President. When such accounts are authorized, duplicate statements must be delivered by the carrying firm to the Chief Compliance Officer of CCA who reviews them and keeps them on file.
