Item 4: Advisory Business

Renaissance Capital was formed in 1991. The Firm specializes in providing global IPO-focused investment services. These services include providing pre-IPO research/analytics and advising IPO-focused 40-Act funds and institutional accounts. Renaissance Capital is a privately-held Limited Liability Company. The following three members each own more than 25%: Kathleen Shelton Smith, Chairman and Chief Compliance Officer; William K. Smith, Chief Executive Officer, and Linda R. Killian, VP & Chief Investment Officer. The Firm is an SEC-registered investment adviser with no publicly-held intermediate subsidiaries.

Renaissance Capital specializes in providing investment advisory services focused on newly public companies, the most inefficient class of public equities. These unseasoned equities are under-researched, lack trading history, have untested corporate governance and lack an established shareholder base, requiring specialized investment skills to access investment performance. The Firm provides IPO Intelligence, a pre-IPO research and IPO market analytics service to institutional investors, including mutual funds, hedge funds, asset managers, pension plans, underwriters and advisory firms. The Firm also provides IPO Pro, an IPO tracking service for investors, advisors and professionals. The Firm's IPO-focused investment strategies are available to the public through 40-Act funds and institutional investors through separate actively-managed accounts. The Renaissance IPO ETF, an exchange traded series of the Renaissance Capital Greenwich Funds (the "Trust"), replicates an index which holds a portfolio of the largest most liquid U.S.-listed newly public companies. The Renaissance International IPO ETF, an exchange traded series of the Trust, replicates an index which holds a portfolio of the largest most liquid non-U.S.-listed newly public companies.

In the case of separately managed institutional accounts, the Firm's clients may impose restrictions on investing in certain securities or types of securities. These restrictions include exclusions for terrorist sponsoring countries, companies producing restricted products and other guidelines.

Renaissance Capital does not participate in wrap fee programs.

Renaissance Capital only manages client assets on a discretionary basis. As of February 29, 2020, the Firm had assets under management of $72.3 million over which it had discretionary investment authority.

Item 5: Fees and Compensation

Renaissance Capital is compensated for its advisory services as a percentage of assets under management. The fee schedule is as follows:

Investment Vehicle	Advisory Fees		Fee Collection
	Amount	Negotiable	Method	Timing
ETF – U.S.	0.60%	No	Deducted from assets	As incurred
ETF- International	0.80%	No	Deducted from assets	As incurred
Separate Accounts	0.60%	Yes	Billed in arrears	Quarterly

All asset management clients incur brokerage and other transaction costs as discussed in Item 12.

A few large asset managers pay for the Firm's research service based upon commission allocations tied to the value of the service; however, most research clients pay a set price under an annual retainer plus additional amounts based upon the number of users. A portion of the Firm's clients are designated underwriters of the securities under research and a potential conflict of interest may result from the payment the firm receives from these clients who may be interested in receiving favorable research opinions.

No supervised person at Renaissance Capital accepts compensation for the sale of securities or other investment products.

Item 6: Performance-Based Fees and Side-By-Side Management

Renaissance Capital does not manage accounts with performance-based fees.

Item 7: Types of Clients

The Firm provides IPO Intelligence, a pre-IPO research and IPO market analytics service to institutional investors, including mutual funds, hedge funds, asset managers, pension plans, underwriters and advisory firms. The Firm also provides IPO Pro, an IPO tracking service for investors, advisors and professionals. Renaissance Capital is the Adviser to the Renaissance IPO ETF and the Renaissance International IPO ETF, which are exchange traded products that can be purchased by large holders in creation units of 50,000 shares and by smaller holders in the open market in lesser amounts. Renaissance Capital also offers separately managed institutional accounts for pension funds, high net worth individuals and trusts, for which there is a $10 million minimum account size.

Item 8: Methods of Analysis, Investment Strategies and Risk of Loss

Renaissance Capital employs an event-driven IPO-focused investment strategy that consists of targeting newly public companies, domestic and global, at the time of the offering and in aftermarket trading. The Firm uses its proprietary Pre-IPO research to gain an understanding of these new issues, which are often unique companies in new industries. Identifying companies ahead of their inclusion in broad benchmark indices helps to provide unique returns and reduce correlation to broad-based benchmark indices.

The starting point for the investment strategy's security selection process is the proprietary research on newly public companies and the global IPO market provided by the Firm. Renaissance Capital has a proprietary structured methodology for analyzing IPOs. It focuses on four criteria: the fundamentals of a company's business, governance structure, relative and discounted cash flow valuation and the price momentum of similar already-public companies. Aiding in this process are the global IPO indices developed by the Firm and calculated by FTSE Russell which are used as a benchmark of performance for the IPO investment strategy and a guide to portfolio construction.

Investing in equity securities involves the risk of loss. Investing in newly public companies entails special risks as these securities are the most inefficient class of public equities. These equities are under-researched, lack trading charts, have untested corporate governance and lack an established shareholder base, requiring specialized investment skills to access investment performance. Investing in newly public companies also involves higher portfolio turnover which can impact investment performance through increased brokerage transaction costs and taxes. Investing in non-U.S. IPOs involves greater risk including currency fluctuations, possible imposition of withholding or confiscatory taxes, possible currency transfer restrictions, expropriation or other adverse political or economic events and the difficulties of enforcing laws in less developed countries.

Item 9: Disciplinary Information

Neither Renaissance Capital, nor its principals or employees, have been the subject of any complaints or been involved in any disciplinary proceedings.

Item 10: Other Financial Industry Activities and Affiliations

Renaissance Capital is affiliated with Renaissance Capital Investments Inc., a FINRA-registered broker-dealer. Officers and directors of Renaissance Capital are also officers and directors of the broker-dealer. The ETFs are a series of Renaissance Capital Greenwich Funds and conduct their activities under the Investment Company Act of 1940. Renaissance Capital does not recommend or select other investment advisers for its clients or receive compensation directly or indirectly from other investment advisers for recommendations.

Item 11: Code of Ethics, Participation or Interest in Client Transactions and Personal Trading Renaissance Capital Greenwich Funds and Renaissance Capital operate under a Code of Ethics, Insider Trading Policy and Research Analyst Policy designed to prevent employees and other affiliates from transacting in, or having a material financial interest in, securities held, or to be held by the Firm's investment portfolios or by the Firm's other investment advisory accounts. These policies prohibit personal investment in IPOs or unregistered securities, submission of all personal securities accounts and transactions for monitoring by the Firm, and annual reporting of any material financial interest in publicly-held securities. The Firm's Code of Ethics is available upon request to any client or prospective client.

Item 12: Brokerage Practices

Renaissance Capital uses a variety of broker-dealers for transactions in its investment funds, selecting brokers for best execution. The cost of execution is monitored on a daily basis and reviewed quarterly.

The Firm uses client brokerage commissions as soft dollar payment for research and data services. When the Firm uses soft dollars to pay for research and data services, the Firm benefits because it does not have to produce or pay for the service itself. The Firm may have an incentive to select or recommend a broker-dealer based on the Firm's interest in receiving research and data services, rather than best execution. All soft dollar services qualify under section 28(e) of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 and are reviewed quarterly to ensure the services are in the best interests of clients. Soft dollar transactions are allocated among all client accounts based upon the relative benefits derived from the research and data services purchased.

Renaissance Capital does not select or recommend broker-dealers in return for client referrals.

Renaissance Capital has adopted a Trade Allocation Policy designed to ensure that broker transactions are allocated on a fair and equitable basis across all managed accounts. The allocation of trades are monitored on a daily basis and reviewed quarterly.

Item 13: Review of Accounts

Accounts are monitored on a daily basis by the Chief Investment Officer and Head Trader for composition and market movement. Renaissance Capital reports performance on a quarterly basis to the Renaissance Capital Greenwich Funds' Board of Trustees and on a monthly basis to separately managed accounts pursuant to pre-determined guidelines.

Item 14: Client Referrals

Renaissance Capital does not currently pay referral fees or other compensation to any person for client referrals to its investment advisory services.

Item 15: Custody

Renaissance Capital does not have custody of clients' funds or assets.

Item 16: Investment Discretion

Renaissance Capital has investment discretion for all accounts. Clients of separately managed accounts have entered into investment management agreements containing powers of attorney. Such clients may restrict the investment discretion of Renaissance Capital.

Item 17: Voting Client Securities

Proxies for securities held in the Renaissance IPO ETF are forwarded to Renaissance Capital by the custodian holding the securities. Renaissance Capital votes proxies for its portfolio securities in the best interests of shareholders and clients and avoids conflicts of interest in voting. Pursuant to Renaissance Capital's Proxy Voting Policies and Procedures, the Firm votes proxies in a timely manner in accordance with this policy. Proxies are voted after evaluating the issues presented on the ballot and are reported on a quarterly basis to the Trust's Board of Trustees. A copy of the Firm's Proxy Voting Policies and Procedures is available upon request to any client or prospective client. Information on how proxies were cast is also available to any client.

Renaissance Capital does not vote proxies for clients of separately managed accounts or of the Renaissance International IPO ETF.

Item 18: Financial Information

Renaissance Capital does not have any financial condition that would be likely to impair its ability to meet contractual commitments to clients.
