Item 4 - Advisory Business

Tessara Financial Advisors, Inc. (“Tessara Advisors”), is applying to become an SEC-registered investment adviser. Its principals, Lawrence Krause, and Gisela Lake are licensed securities brokers with KW Securities Corporation, an affiliated fully disclosed Broker-Dealer, member FINRA and SIPC.

Tessara provides comprehensive financial planning and private wealth advisory services to individuals and couples, salaried executives, small business owners, retirees, and non-profit organizations. These services usually include the following:

- Comprehensive analysis of all assets
- Methods to accumulate and preserve wealth
- Retirement planning and projections
- Tax (including tax deferral) and estate planning
- Funding for children’s education
- Risk transfer

The financial planning process includes one or more personal meetings, and ultimately the collection of personal and financial information, determination of goals and objectives, and assessment of risk tolerance. Included is a review of the client’s assets, liabilities, living expenses, estate plan, existing investment strategies, benefit programs and insurance coverage.

Specific recommendations are aligned with the client’s risk profile and return requirements are made with the goal of improving the clients' overall financial situation. Once a strategic plan is approved by the client, Tessara Advisors can offer various methods of implementation:

Depending upon the client’s stated objectives, clients are provided wealth management services, with the overall goal of creating a diversified investment program. Recommendations can include fixed income securities, U.S. Treasuries, municipal bonds, various insurance products, U.S. and foreign-based equities, and mutual funds.

Based upon the client’s financial goals, risk parameters and biases, the allocation among the various asset classes will vary. While not required for client use, Tessara Advisors may utilize the broker-dealer KW Securities Corporation (an affiliated fully disclosed broker-dealer) for the implementation of some of the investment recommendations. Securities are then held in the client’s name at RBC Capital Markets, LLC, member NYSE, FINRA, SIPC.

Ongoing management, account reviews, and client communications are designed to assure the appropriate asset mix and risk postures are maintained in accordance with the client’s wishes. Clients may impose restrictions on investing in certain securities or types of securities.

Tessara Advisors is not an accountant or attorney and does not give legal or tax advice. Tessara Advisors, Inc. hereby notifies clients that:

- a. a conflict may exist between the interests of the investment adviser and the interests of the client;
- b. the client is under no obligation to act upon the investment adviser's recommendations; and
- c. if the client elects to act on any of the recommendations, the client is under no obligation to affect the transaction through the investment adviser.

Tessara Advisors does not currently participate in WRAP fee programs. As of December 31, 2019, Tessara Advisors managed $114,000,000 in discretionary client assets.

Item 5 - Fees and Compensation

An annual advisory service fee is charged at the beginning of the month of each quarter and is based on the value of the advisor account. If the account is opened after the start of the quarter, a pro-rated fee will be applied. The normal fee schedule is as follows, but may vary among clients:

• 1.25% annually (.3125% quarterly)	up to $1,000,000
• 1.00% annually (.25% quarterly)	$1,000,001 to $2,000,000
• .85% annually (.2125% quarterly)	$2,000,001 to $5,000,000
• .70% annually (.1375% quarterly)	$5,000,001 to $10,000,000
• Negotiable	$10,000,001 and Above.

The fee is charged only against investment assets which Tessara Advisors advises. Assets such as real estate holdings or limited partnerships or LLCs and the like, would not be charged unless approved by the client.

Currently, Mr. Krause's billable hourly rate is $325; Ms. Lake's hourly rate is $275, and the Administrative Department hourly rate is $75. Should the client choose to execute any transactions through KW Securities Corporation and RBC Capital Markets, LLC at no time will there be a separate commission charge for any stock, bond, or mutual fund transaction.

However, RBC Capital Markets, LLC will assess an annual fee and charge the client account on a quarterly basis at the beginning of each quarter. The additional annual fee is calculated as follows:

• $25,000-$99,999	35 basis points
• $100,000-$249,999	25 basis points
• $250,000-$499,999	18 basis points
• $500,000-$999,999	13 basis points
• $1,000,000-$1,999,999	11 basis points
• $2,000,000-$2,999,999	9 basis points
• $3,000,000-$4,999,999	7 basis points

- $5,000,000-$9,999,999 5 basis points
- $10,000,000 and above Negotiable

Based on the provisions of the management agreement with clients, unless otherwise specified, RBC Capital Markets will automatically deduct the fees from the client account. In accordance with California Code of Regulations Section 260.238(j), Tessara Advisors hereby discloses to clients that lower fees for comparable services may be available from other sources.

Item 6 - Performance-Based Fees and Side-By-Side Management

Tessara Advisors does not have performance-based fees or side-by-side management arrangements.

Item 7 - Types of Clients

Tessara Advisors provides complete financial planning and wealth management services to individuals and couples, salaried executives, small business owners, professionals, and retirees. In addition, services are available for IRAs, pensions and profit-sharing plans, trusts, non-profit organizations and estates.

Item 8 - Methods of Analysis, Investment Strategies, and Risk of Loss

A fundamental evaluation of factors affecting investment decisions includes (but not limited to) economic growth potential, interest rate trends, currency movements, government regulatory and tax policy, and budget deficits. Based upon these factors, an assessment is made to both the short and long-term prospects of various asset classes and their identification to include in client portfolios.

Investment strategies

Less volatile fixed-income assets are combined with growth-oriented and inflation hedged investments in search of an optimal balance between safety and growth and the client's risk tolerance. Capital preservation is the priority but not at the expense of inflation and loss of purchasing power. The fixed income segment is allocated according to the expectation of rising or falling interest rates (short vs. long maturities) and an expanding or contracting economy (lower vs. higher grade credits).

Equity investments are diversified over a variety of market industries. And tactical allocation and/or modern portfolio theory may also be used.

Risk Factors

All investments involve the risk of loss, including (among other things) loss of principal, a reduction in earnings (including interest, dividends, and other distributions), and the loss of future earnings. These risks include market risk, interest rate risk, issuer risk, and general economic risk. Although Tessara Advisors advises assets in a manner consistent with risk tolerances, there can be no guarantee that our efforts will be successful. The investor should be prepared to bear the risk of loss.

Market Risks

Competition. The securities industry and the varied strategies and techniques to be engaged in by the Adviser are extremely competitive and each involves a degree of risk. The Adviser will compete with firms, including many of the larger securities and investment banking firms, which have substantially greater financial resources and research staff.

Market Volatility. The profitability of the Adviser substantially depends upon it correctly assessing the future price movements of stocks, bonds, options on stocks, and other securities and the movements of interest rates. The Adviser cannot guarantee that it will be successful in accurately predicting price and interest rate movements.

Adviser's Investment Activities. The Adviser's investment activities involve a significant degree of risk. The performance of any investment is subject to numerous factors that are neither within the control of nor predictable by the Adviser. Such factors include a wide range of economic, political, competitive, technological and other conditions (including acts of terrorism and war) that may affect investments in general or specific industries or companies. The securities markets may be volatile, which may adversely affect the ability of the Adviser to realize profits.

Material Non-Public Information. By reason of their responsibilities in connection with other activities of the Adviser and/or its affiliates, certain principals or employees of the Adviser and/or its affiliates may acquire confidential or material non-public information or be restricted from initiating transactions in certain securities. The Adviser will not be free to act upon any such information. Due to these restrictions, the Adviser may not be able to initiate a transaction that it otherwise might have initiated and may not be able to sell an investment that it otherwise might have sold.

Accuracy of Public Information. The Adviser selects investments, in part, on the basis of information and data filed by issuers with various government regulators or made directly available to the Adviser by the issuers or through sources other than the issuers. Although the Adviser evaluates all such information and data and sometimes seeks independent corroboration when it's considered appropriate and reasonably available, the Adviser is not in a position to confirm the completeness, genuineness or accuracy of such information and data, and in some cases, complete and accurate information is not available.

Investments in Undervalued Securities. The Adviser intends to invest in undervalued securities. The identification of investment opportunities in undervalued securities is a difficult task, and there are no assurances that such opportunities will be successfully recognized or acquired. While investments in undervalued securities offer opportunities for above-average capital appreciation, these investments involve a high degree of financial risk and can result in substantial losses. Returns generated from the Adviser's investments may not adequately compensate for the business and financial risks assumed.

Investment Risks

Portfolios may invest substantially all of their available capital principally in securities, engages in short sales of securities and trades in options (including covered and uncovered puts and calls and over-the-counter options) and other derivative instruments, private securities and money market instruments. Markets for such instruments fluctuate and the market value of any particular investment may vary substantially. In addition, such securities may be issued by unseasoned companies and may be highly speculative. The Fund's portfolio may not generate any income or appreciate in value.

Portfolio Turnover. The investment strategy of the Portfolio may require active trading of the portfolio, and as a result, turnover and brokerage commission expenses may significantly exceed those of other investment entities of comparable size.

Small-Cap Companies. The Portfolio may invest a portion of its assets in the stocks of companies with small market capitalizations. While Tessara Advisors believes these investments often provide significant potential for appreciation, those stocks involve higher risks in some respects than do investments in stocks of larger companies. For example, prices of such stocks are often more volatile than the prices of large-capitalization stocks. In addition, due to thin trading in some such stocks, an investment in these stocks may be more illiquid than that of larger capitalization stocks.

Lack of Diversification. The Portfolio portfolios may not be widely diversified among sectors, industries, geographic areas or types of securities. Further, the portfolios may not necessarily be diversified among a wide range of issuers. Accordingly, the portfolios may be subject to more rapid change in value than would be the case if the Investment Vehicles were required to maintain a wide diversification among companies or industry groups.

Short-Sales. Tessara Advisors may sell securities short. Short sales can, in certain circumstances, substantially increase the impact of adverse price movements on the portfolios. A short sale involves the risk of a theoretically unlimited increase in the market price of the particular investment sold short, which could result in an inability to cover the short position and a theoretically unlimited loss. There can be no assurance that securities necessary to cover a short position will be available for purchase.

Leverage. The Portfolio will use leverage by engaging in short sales, entering into swaps and other derivatives contracts and other leveraging strategies. Such leverage increases the risk of loss and volatility. In addition, the use of leverage requires the pledging of assets as collateral. Margin calls or changes in margin requirements can cause the Portfolio to be required to pledge additional collateral or liquidate the Portfolio holdings, which could require the portfolio to close positions at substantial losses that would not otherwise be realized.

Market or Interest Rate Risk. The price of most fixed income securities moves in the opposite direction of the change in interest rates. For example, as interest rates rise, the price of fixed income securities falls. If the Adviser holds a fixed-income security to maturity, the change in its price before maturity may have little impact on the Adviser's performance; however, if the Adviser has to sell the fixed income security before the maturity date, an increase in interest rates could result in a loss to the Adviser.

Fixed Income Call Option Risk. Many bonds, including agency, corporate and municipal bonds, and all mortgage-backed securities, contain a provision that allows the issuer to "call" all or part of the issue before the bond's maturity date. The issuer usually retains this right to refinance the bond in the future if market interest rates decline below the coupon rate. There are three disadvantages to the call provision. First, the cash flow pattern of a callable bond is not known with certainty. Second, because the issuer will call the bonds when interest rates have dropped, the Adviser is exposed to reinvestment rate risk – the Adviser will have to reinvest the proceeds received when the bond is called at lower interest rates. Finally, the capital appreciation potential of a bond will be reduced because the price of a callable bond may not rise much above the price at which the issuer may call the bond.

Inflation Risk. Inflation risk results from the variation in the value of cash flows from a security due to inflation, as measured in terms of purchasing power. For example, if the Adviser purchases a 5-year bond in which it can realize a coupon rate of 5%, but the rate of inflation is 6%, then the purchasing power of the cash flow has declined. For all but inflation-linked bonds, adjustable bonds or floating rate bonds, the Adviser is exposed to inflation risk because the interest rates the issuer promises to make is fixed for the life of the security.

Investments in Non-U.S. Investments. From time to time, the Adviser may invest and trade a portion of its assets in non-U.S. securities and other assets (through ADRs and otherwise), which will give rise to risks relating to political, social and economic developments abroad, as well as risks resulting from the differences between the regulations to which U.S. and foreign issuers and markets are subject. Such risks may include:

- Political or social instability, the seizure by foreign governments of company assets, acts of war or terrorism, withholding taxes on dividends and interest, high or confiscatory tax levels, and limitations on the use or transfer of portfolio assets;
- Enforcing legal rights in some foreign countries is difficult, costly and slow, and there are sometimes special problems enforcing claims against foreign governments;
- Foreign securities and other assets often trade in currencies other than the U.S. dollar, and the Adviser may directly hold foreign currencies and purchase and sell foreign currencies through forward exchange contracts. Changes in currency exchange rates will affect the Adviser's net asset value, the value of dividends and interest earned, and gains and losses realized on the sale of investments. An increase in the strength of the U.S. dollar relative to these other currencies may cause the value of the Adviser's investments to decline. Some foreign currencies are particularly volatile. Foreign governments may intervene in the currency markets, causing a decline in the value or liquidity of the Adviser's foreign currency holdings. If the Adviser enters into forward foreign currency exchange contracts for hedging purposes, it may lose the benefits of advantageous changes in exchange rates. On the other hand, if the Adviser enters forward contracts for the purpose of increasing return, it may sustain losses;
- Non-U.S. securities, commodities and other markets may be less liquid, more volatile and less closely supervised by the government than in the United States. Foreign countries often lack uniform accounting, auditing, and financial reporting standards, and there may be less public information about the operations of issuers in such markets.

Lack of Liquidity. The Portfolio may invest in thinly traded and relatively illiquid securities or those securities may not be traded at the time the Portfolio invest or may cease to be traded after the Portfolio invests. The Portfolio also may acquire significant positions in some securities. In such cases and in the event of extreme market activity, the Portfolio may not be able to liquidate its investments promptly if necessary. In addition, the Portfolio sales of thinly traded securities could depress the market value of those securities and thereby reduce the Portfolios profitability or increase its losses. Such circumstances or events could affect the Portfolios gain or loss materially and adversely.

Risk of Default or Bankruptcy of Third Parties. The Adviser may engage in transactions in securities, commodities, other financial instruments and other assets that involve counterparties. Under certain conditions, the Adviser could suffer losses if a counterparty to a transaction were to default or if the market for certain securities, commodities, other financial instruments and/or other assets were to become illiquid.

Regulatory Risks

Strategy Restrictions. Certain institutions may be restricted from directly utilizing investment strategies of the type in which the Adviser may engage. Such institutions, including entities subject to ERISA, should consult their own advisors, counsel, and accountants to determine what restrictions may apply and whether an investment in the Adviser is appropriate.

Trading Limitations. For all securities, instruments and/or assets listed on an exchange, including options listed on a public exchange, the exchange generally has the right to suspend or limit trading under certain circumstances. Such suspensions or limits could render certain strategies difficult to complete or continue and subject the Adviser to loss. Also, such a suspension could render it impossible for the Adviser to liquidate positions and thereby expose the Adviser to potential losses.

Conflicts of Interest: In the administration of client accounts, portfolios, and financial reporting, the Adviser faces inherent conflicts of interest which are described in this brochure. Generally, the Adviser mitigates these conflicts through its Code of Ethics which provides that the client's interest is always held above that of the Firm and its associated persons.

Supervision of Trading Operations. The Adviser, with assistance from its brokerage and clearing firms, intends to supervise and monitor trading activity in the portfolio accounts to ensure compliance with firm and client objectives. Despite the Adviser's efforts, however, there is a risk that unauthorized or otherwise inappropriate trading activity may occur in portfolio accounts.

Depending on the nature of the investment management service selected by a client and the securities used to implement the investment strategy, clients will be exposed to risks that are specific to the securities in their particular investment portfolio.

Reliance on Management and Key Personnel. Investors have no right or power to take part in the management of Tessara Advisors. Accordingly, no investor should invest with Tessara Advisors unless such an investor is willing to entrust all aspects of management to Tessara Advisors. The investment performance of Tessara Advisors portfolios depends largely on the skill of key personnel of Tessara Advisors, including, in particular, its sub-advisors. If key personnel were to leave Tessara Advisors, it might not be able to find equally desirable replacements and the performance of the Tessara Advisors portfolios could, as a result, be adversely affected.

Security Specific Risks

Liquidity. Liquidity is the ability to readily convert an investment into cash. Securities, where there is a ready market that is traded through an exchange, are generally more liquid. Securities traded over the counter or that do not have a ready market or are thinly traded are less liquid and may face material discounts in the price level in a liquidation situation. The Portfolios may invest in thinly traded and relatively illiquid securities or those securities may not be traded at the time the Portfolios invest or may cease to be traded after the Portfolios invest. The Portfolios also may acquire significant positions in some securities. In such cases and in the event of extreme market activity, the Portfolios may not be able to liquidate its investments promptly if necessary. In addition, the Portfolio sales of thinly traded securities could depress the market value of those securities and thereby reduce the Portfolios profitability or increase its losses. Such circumstances or events could affect the Portfolios gain or loss materially and adversely.

Currency. Overseas investments are subject to fluctuations in the value of the dollar against the currency of the investment's originating country. This is also referred to as exchange rate risk.

Lack of Registration. LP interests have neither been registered under the Securities Act nor under the securities or "blue sky" laws of any state and, therefore, are subject to transfer restrictions.

Withdrawal of Capital. The ability to withdraw funds from LP interests is usually restricted in accordance with the withdrawal provisions contained in an Offering Memorandum. In addition, substantial withdrawals by investors within a short time could require a fund to liquidate securities positions and other investments more rapidly than would otherwise be desirable, possibly reducing the value of the fund's assets and/or disrupting the fund's investment strategy.

Lastly, market timing is not applied.

Item 9 - Disciplinary Information

In 1997, the Securities & Exchange Commission found Lawrence A. Krause and Lawrence A. Krause & Associates to be in violation of SEC Rule 17(A) and Sections 10(b) and 10(B)5 in that Krause, acting through Lawrence A. Krause & Associates.

The violations stemmed from Krause, acting as a general partner of a limited partnership, borrowed funds without proper authorization from the partnership. The funds were repaid to the partnership plus interest each year in which funds were borrowed. The partnership did not suffer any damages. Mr. Krause was fined $15,000 and suspended for a period of one year from October 1997 to October 1998. The fine was paid and the terms of the suspension were fulfilled as ordered.

Such a referral fee represents a share of our investment advisory fee charged to our clients. This arrangement will not result in higher costs to you.
