Advisory Business

4(A):

Casilio Leitch Investments, LLC ("CLI") is a California limited liability company that was formed in 2011. CLI is owned by William Leitch and Corey Casilio. The firm is registered with the Securities & Exchange Commission. CLI provides investment management services to individuals, high net worth investors, trusts and estates.

4(B):

CLI offers the following services:

Asset Management

CLI will structure account portfolios tailored to the client's needs and objectives. Client assets will be held at custodial broker dealers to be selected by the client. CLI maintains limited power of attorney in client accounts held at the custodial broker dealers. The limited power of attorney authorizes CLI to purchase and sell securities without obtaining prior permission to execute the transactions. All transactions are executed in accordance with the client's investment objectives that have been discussed and agreed upon in advance with CLI and the client. Accounts are managed on a discretionary basis.

Fees for asset management services will be charged on a percentage of assets under management. The fees will be discussed and agreed upon in advance by the CLI Investment advisory representative and the client and will be charged in advance on a monthly basis. Communication with clients is very important and CLI prepares written quarterly reports for clients with a portfolio review included. Either CLI or the client can terminate the investment advisory agreement by written notice to the other party. In certain instances, the client may receive a pro-rated refund, based on the fee calculation method being used and the amount of work already completed.

Fees may be decreased, or waived on an individual basis, but will be agreed upon, in writing, in advance, between CLI and the client.

5(C): Other Fees and Expenses

In addition to the fees charged by CLI, each mutual fund company in which a client's funds may be invested utilizes fees paid by the investors that are deducted from the mutual fund's assets. These fees, called 12b-1 fees, pay for marketing and distribution expenses, such as brokers' commissions. The fees are categorized as annual operating expenses. Rule 12b-1 fees are disclosed in a mutual fund's prospectus and typically are less than 1 percent. Fees will be fully disclosed to clients and they are under no obligation to purchase these securities through the Investment advisory representative or CLI.

5(D): Fees Paid In Advance

Generally, it is CLI policy to bill client managed accounts in advance, for canceled accounts that are billed in advance, the client may receive a pro-rated refund, based on the fee calculation method being used and the amount of work already completed.

5 (E):

CLI does not accept compensation for the sale of securities or other investment products including asset based sales charges or service fees from the sale of mutual funds.

Investment Policy Statements

CLI creates an Investment Policy Statement (IPS) needed for its clients that provides a foundation to govern the responsibilities of CLI and expectations of the client. The IPS includes establishing guidelines for portfolio liquidity requirements, a systematic review process, and benchmark portfolio references to monitor performance. Additionally, the IPS will outline the various investment vehicles that will be used in managing the portfolio, specific investment restrictions and constraints, portfolio objective, and investment strategy employed to manage each client's portfolio.

ADV Item 8:

Methods of Analysis, Investment Strategies and Risk of Loss

The foundation of CLI's financial analysis is rooted in overlaying a top-down evaluation of the global economic landscape in conjunction with a bottom-up security specific analysis of individual investments that combine to build a prudently diversified portfolio that will withstand the fluctuations of capital markets over the long-term. Furthermore, CLI's approach to investment management is built upon the basis of Modern Portfolio Theory, where risk management and return achievement are best optimized through proper diversification of various asset classes of investments. Past performance is no guarantee of future performance; and all clients are made aware of this fact and of the inherent risk of any type of investing. CLI utilizes methods of analysis and investment strategies, including but not limited to , fundamental, technical, credit, and economic analysis, recommending general securities in client portfolios that include but are not limited to individual stocks, individual bonds, government securities, commercial paper, certificates of deposit, government securities, ETF's, hedge funds, and occasionally mutual funds.

ADV Item 12:

Brokerage Practices

Generally securities are purchased for long term holdings. CLI does not "trade" securities or use short sales, purchase options, or use margin transactions, unless directed by the client.

CLI recommends Fidelity as the custodial broker dealer however clients ultimately may select the custodial broker dealer of their choice. Generally, these recommendations are based on CLI's perception of the breadth of services offered, and quality of execution. The custodial broker-dealers may make available to CLI other products and services that benefit CLI but may not benefit its clients' accounts. Fidelity is routinely used as a recommended custodial broker dealer. Fidelity provides products and services that assist CLI in managing and administering customer accounts.

These include software and other technology that provide access to customer account data (such as trade confirmations and account statements); facilitate trade execution (and allocation of aggregated trade orders for multiple Customer accounts); provide research, pricing information and other market data; facilitate payment of CLI's fees from its customers' accounts; and assist with back-office functions, recordkeeping and Customer reporting. The custodial broker-dealers also make available to CLI other services intended to help CLI manage and further develop its business enterprise. These services may include consulting, publications and conferences on practice management, information technology, business succession, regulatory compliance and marketing. In addition, the custodial broker-dealers may make available, arrange and/or pay for these types of services rendered to CLI by independent third parties.

Research and Other Soft Dollar Benefits

See response to item 12.

Block Trading: CLI may combine orders into block trades when more than one account is participating in the trade. This blocking or bunching technique must be equitable and potentially advantageous for each such account (e.g. for the purposes of reducing brokerage commissions or obtaining a more favorable execution price). Block trading is performed when it is consistent with the duty to seek best execution and is consistent with the terms of CLI's investment advisory agreements. Equity trades are blocked based upon fairness to client, both in the participation of their account, and in the allocation of orders for the accounts of more than one client. Allocations of all orders are performed in a timely and efficient manner. All managed accounts participating in a block execution receive the same execution price (average share price) for the securities purchased or sold in a trading day. Any portion of an order that remains unfilled at the end of a given day will be rewritten on the following day as a new order with a new daily average price to be determined at the end of the following day. Open orders are worked until they are completely filled, which may span the course of several days. If an order is filled in its entirety, securities purchased in the aggregated transaction will be allocated among the accounts participating in the trade in accordance with the allocation statement. If an order is partially filled, the securities will be allocated pro rata based on the allocation statement. CLI may allocate trades in a different manner than indicated on the allocation statement (non-pro rata) only if all managed accounts receive fair and equitable treatment.

Best Execution: On an annual basis, CLI will obtain each custodian's written best execution policy to compare the services and fees offered by the different firms. Best execution is not the only factor to be considered in providing investment management services to clients. We believe that several of the custodial broker-dealers provide good execution for our clients' transactions. In addition, they provide our firm and our clients with other valuable information on their accounts both electronically and by mail. They also provide a forum for advisory professionals to meet and to discuss compliance issues, rules and regulations that are important for the client and for our firm. We will review our agreements with the custodial broker-dealers on an annual basis and will compare them with firms offering comparable services to investment advisory firms and their clients.
