4. A. Advisory Firm Description

Easterly EAB Solutions LLC (the "Advisor") is a Delaware Limited Liability Company that was formed in 2020. The principals of the Advisor are Edward Boll, William Visconto, and James Ryan (the "Principals").

The Advisor is under common ownership and control with EAB Investment Management Group, LLC ("EAB"), a related adviser to the Advisor. As described further in Item 10, the Advisor was formed as a strategic partnership between EAB and Easterly Asset Management LP ("Easterly Asset Management") and its affiliated broker dealer, Easterly Securities LLC ("Easterly Securities") in December 2020. In connection with this partnership, the Advisor. EAB is an SEC registered investment adviser and is the managing member of the Advisor.

4. B. Types of Advisory Services

The Advisor provides investment advisory and sub-advisory services to institutional clients on both a discretionary and non- discretionary basis. The Advisor also provides investment consulting services to institutional clients which may include advice on hedging, asset allocation, review of existing investment portfolios, and market analysis.

The Advisor provides a variety of consulting services, which may include but is not limited to advice on stock hedging and sector allocation. The Advisor tailors its consulting services based on the needs of the client.

4. C. Client Investment Objectives/Restrictions

The Advisor tailors its services to the individual needs of the client. Through discussions, in which goals and objectives based on a client's particular circumstances are established, the Advisor develops the client's personal investment policy and creates and manages a portfolio based on that policy. The Advisor manages each account according to the investment objectives of the strategy selected by the client and any restrictions placed on the account by the client. Investments for separately managed client accounts are managed in accordance with each client's stated, investment objectives, restrictions and guidelines.

4. D. Wrap and UMA Programs

The Advisor does not participate in wrap fee programs.

4. E. Assets Under Management:

As of December 31, 2020, the Advisor did not have assets under management.

Item 5 - Fees and Compensation

5. A. Adviser Compensation

The Advisor's fees are described generally below and detailed in each client's advisory agreement or applicable account documents. All fees are subject to negotiation, at the sole discretion of the Advisor.

The Advisor's current fee structure is 25 to 100 basis points per year of assets under management for each client account.

The Advisor's fees are generally negotiable. Fees may change over time and, as discussed below, different fee schedules may apply to different types of clients, strategies and advisory arrangements. The Advisor reserves the right to waive or reduce the fees charged to a particular client in its sole and absolute discretion. An advisory agreement may be terminated according to the terms of the contract, including providing written notice to the other party as required by the agreement. Upon termination, fees will be prorated to the date of termination. If any fees are prepaid, unearned fees will be promptly refunded.

5. B. Direct Billing of Advisory Fees

The Advisor does not typically debit a client's account for fees. The Advisor will invoice clients directly on a monthly basis for fees. Clients may request that fees owed to the Advisor be deducted directly from the client's custodial account. In instances where a client has authorized direct billing, the Advisor takes steps to assure itself that the client's qualified custodian sends periodic account statements, no less frequently than quarterly, showing all transactions in the account, including fees paid to the Advisor, directly to the client. Generally, the Advisor will invoice clients for their advisory fees, regardless of whether direct billing is used. Clients have the option to be billed by invoice to make a direct payment for fees rather than having fees deducted from their account.

5. C. Other Non-Advisory Fees

The Advisor's fee is exclusive of brokerage commissions, transaction fees, and other related costs and expenses which shall be incurred by the client. Clients may incur certain charges imposed by custodians, brokers and other third parties such as fees charged by managers, custodial fees, deferred sales charges, odd-lot differentials, transfer taxes, wire transfer and electronic fund fees, and other fees and taxes on brokerage accounts and securities transactions. A client's portfolio may include positions in mutual funds or exchange traded funds which also charge internal management fees, which are disclosed in those funds' prospectuses.

Please see Item 12 for additional information regarding the Advisor's brokerage practices.

5. D. Advance Payment of Fees

The Advisor does not charge client fees in advance.

5. E. Compensation for Sale of Securities or Other Investment Products

The Advisor does not accept compensation for the sale of securities or other investment products in its capacity as an investment advisor. Notwithstanding the foregoing, Edward Boll, James Ryan, William Viscontio, Randy Chandra, and Arnim Holzer are registered representatives of a broker dealer (the "Broker-Dealer"). EAB may direct trades for certain advisory clients through the Broker-Dealer and / or provide research and brokerage advice to non-discretionary clients with respect to transactions placed through the Broker Dealer, which creates a conflict of interest due to the compensation arrangements in place between the Broker-Dealer and the aforementioned employees. Please see Item 10 below for additional information regarding the ways in which the firm mitigates the conflict.

Item 6 - Performance-Based Fees and Side-By-Side Management

The Advisor is compensated through asset-based fees on managed accounts and does not currently maintain a performance fee arrangement with any clients.

Item 7 - Types of Clients

The Advisor provides investment advisory services to registered investment advisors, registered investment companies and institutional clients. The minimum investment for a client of the Advisor is $2,000,000. Such minimums may be waived or reduced in the discretion of the Advisor.

Item 8 - Methods of Analysis, Investment Strategies and Risk of Loss

8. A. Methods of Analysis and Investment Strategies

The Advisor may (i) construct stock replacement strategies, (ii) hedge short stock positions, (iii) construct a blended equity and index overlay strategy, or (iv) hedge tail risk. Overall the Advisor's goal is to improve the profile of a client's portfolio on a risk adjusted basis.

The Advisor focuses on the following strategies:

1. A risk management or hedging transactions in which the Advisor purchases index put options and sell index calls. This strategy is applied to diversified portfolios in which index put options and put option "spreads" are purchased with a goal of providing some level of downside protection. At the same time, index call options are sold to help offset the cost of the puts.

2. Engage in the sale of call and put spreads using an equity index overlay strategy with the goal of generating premium income in a risk-managed fashion.
3. Call writing in which it sells call options against underlying equity positions. This option overwriting program for single stocks and diversified equity portfolios seeks to reduce volatility and enhance return.
4. The Advisor uses proprietary techniques to deploy and manage protective hedges using various call and put strategies. The majority of hedging is conducted by buying or selling options on individual positions or by shorting stock or other instruments.

8. B. Material Risks of Investment Strategies

There is no guarantee that the Advisor will achieve its goals. The Advisor's investment strategy involves option purchases and sales for its clients, or other suitable strategies that the Advisor develops with respect to a client's equity position(s) and stated tolerance of risk. These strategies may not be suitable for all investors.

Client portfolios are subject to market risk. There is a risk that securities markets and individual securities will increase or decrease in value. Market risk applies to every market, strategy and security. Prices could fluctuate widely over short or extended periods in response to market conditions or economic news. In the event of a general decline in the securities markets, investments may lose value regardless of the business operations of the security issuers. The volatility of security prices or market conditions can impact the value of the portfolio. Markets may also be affected by political or social events and conditions that may not appear to directly relate to such securities, the securities' issuers or the markets in which they trade. There can be no guarantee that any of the Advisor's strategies will outperform the market, or generate profits, during any particular period in the future or at all. Past performance does not guarantee or predict future performance.

Client portfolios are subject to short selling risk, which presents a greater level of risk. "Short selling" means selling securities that the seller does not own, or any sale that is completed by the delivery of a security borrowed by the seller. Short selling assumes that the seller will be able to buy the security at a more favorable price than the price at which it was sold short. In the event the seller is unable to do so, the seller will be liable for the increase in price, which could potentially be unlimited.

8. C. Material Risks of Securities Used in Investment Strategies

The Advisor enters into derivatives transactions to help manage overall risk or to gain or reduce investment exposure on behalf of clients. The derivatives instruments typically used by the Advisor include listed, FLEX and over-the-counter options, over-the-counter prepaid forward sale agreements, swaps, structured notes, and other structured derivative transactions.

There are risks inherent in trading options. These risks include, but are not limited to, volatile movements in the price of the underlying instrument and misjudgments as to the future prices of the options and/or the underlying instrument. Increased option volatility can increase both the profit potential and the risk of trading. While volatility can be monitored and reacted to, there is no cost-effective means of hedging against market volatility. Selling options creates additional risks. The seller of a "naked" call option (or the seller of a put option who has a short position in the underlying instrument) is subject to the risk of a rise in the price in the underlying instrument above the strike price, which risk is reduced only by the premium received for selling the option. In exchange for the proceeds received from selling the call option (in lieu of an outright short position), the option seller gives up (or will not participate in) all of the potential gain resulting from a decrease in the price of the underlying instrument below the strike price prior to expiration of the option.

The seller of a "naked" put option (or the seller of a call option who has a long position in the underlying instrument) is subject to the risk of a decline in price of the underlying instrument below the strike price, which risk is reduced only by the proceeds received from selling the option. In exchange for the premium received for selling the put option (in lieu of an outright long position), the option seller gives up (or will not participate in) all of the potential gain resulting from an increase in the price of the underlying instrument above the strike price prior to the expiration of the option.

Due to the inherent leveraged nature of options, a relatively small adverse move in the price of the underlying instrument may result in immediate and substantial losses to the client. For example, if an in-the-money call option is sold for its intrinsic value plus a premium representing the time value of that option, a 10% rise in the value of the underlying stock index does not create a loss equal to just 10% of the value of the option; rather it creates a loss approximately equal to 10% of the value of the underlying instrument, less the time value, which loss may be many times greater than the price for which the client sold the option.

Investing in securities involves risk of loss that clients should be prepared to bear. There is no guarantee that the Advisor will achieve its goals. Past performance is not indicative of future returns, which may vary.

Item 9 - Disciplinary Information

Registered investment advisers are required to disclose all material facts regarding any legal or disciplinary events that would be material to your evaluation of them or the integrity of their management. The Advisor has no information applicable to this Item.

Item 10 - Other Financial Industry Activities and Affiliations

As mentioned in Item 5 above, management persons of the Advisor maintain registration as registered representatives at a broker-dealer with which the employees have compensation arrangements ("Broker-Dealer").

A conflict of interest may arise due to the compensation arrangement between the Broker- Dealer and the management persons of EAB or the Referring Party. For example, the compensation could create an incentive for EAB employees or the Referring Party to effect transactions or, with respect to non-discretionary accounts, recommend transactions to be directed through the Broker-Dealer with which they are employed.

This conflict is mitigated by the fact that the compensation only results from research subscriptions and transactions that are unrelated to clients of the Advisor. Though the Broker-Dealer may be used for client trading at times, there is no compensation received by the Advisor or any related person that results from those transactions. Additionally, EAB has adopted best execution policies and procedures and conducts periodic best execution reviews. Management persons are not registered with nor have an application pending to register, as a futures commission merchant, commodity pool operator, a commodity trading advisor, or an associated person of the foregoing entities.

EAB formed the Advisor to enter into a strategic partnership with Easterly Asset Management and Easterly Asset Management's affiliated broker dealer, Easterly Securities. Easterly Securities is an SEC registered broker-dealer and a member of FINRA. Easterly Securities may act as a placement agent for accounts and funds that may be formed in the future upon such terms as the Advisor and Easterly Asset Management may agree, as well as the standard terms of the Advisor's investment advisory services. As part of this strategic partnership, Easterly Asset Management will share in the management fees and carried interest earned from such accounts and funds. Prospective investors are encouraged to review fund offering and governing documents for additional information regarding Easterly Asset Management and Easterly Securities and certain conflicts of interest created as a result of such arrangement. Conflicts of interest will be mitigated by the fact that investors have been informed of the nature of Easterly Asset Management and Easterly Securities' service as a placement agent and the fact that Easterly Securities is an SEC registered broker-dealer.

The Advisor and EAB have entered into contractual relationships with EAB, pursuant to which EAB provides support services to, and shares certain personnel with, the Advisors. The support services include, but are not limited to, the use of certain facilities and office space of EAB, and certain general and administrative services. In addition, the compliance programs of the Advisor and EAB are administered by the same compliance personnel.

These arrangements among the Advisor and EAB give rise to potential conflicts of interest. For example, a supervised person of the Advisor who is shared with EAB may have an incentive to favor clients of EAB over clients of the Advisor. The Advisor has adopted and implemented policies and procedures that are intended to address such conflicts of interest. Personnel of the Advisor who are shared with EAB are subject to the compliance programs of the Advisor and EAB, including a joint Codes of Ethics, and are considered “associated persons,” as such term is defined under the Investment Advisers Act of 1940, as amended, of the Advisor and EAB.

Item 11 - Code of Ethics, Participation or Interest in Client Transactions and Personal Trading

11. A. Code of Ethics Document

The Advisor has adopted a Code of Ethics pursuant to Rule 204A-1 of the Investment Advisers Act of 1940, as amended. A basic tenet of the Advisor’s Code of Ethics is that the interests of clients are always placed first. The Code of Ethics includes standards of business conduct requiring covered persons to comply with the federal securities laws and the fiduciary duties an investment advisor owes to its clients. A copy of the Code of Ethics is available to any client or prospective client upon request.

11. B. Recommendations of Securities and Material Financial Interests

As a matter of policy, the Advisor does not engage in principal transactions or agency cross transactions. Any exceptions to this policy must be approved in advance by the Chief Compliance Officer or his designee.

11. C. Personal Trading

The Advisor, its affiliates and related persons may trade in the same securities traded for clients. This may cause a conflict of interest, since both client and the related persons of the Advisor may be selling (or buying) the same financial product at the same time. To address this potential conflict of interest, the Advisor agrees, not to favor itself to the client's financial detriment.

The Advisor monitors the personal securities transactions of all access persons. In addition, the Advisor has adopted a written Code of Ethics in compliance with SEC Rule 204A-1 (the “Code”). The Code is based on the principle that the officers, directors, and employees (or persons having similar status or function) of the Advisor have a fiduciary duty to place the interests of the clients ahead of their own interests. The Code applies to all “access persons”, as defined by the Code, and focuses on monitoring and reporting personal transactions in securities. Access persons must generally avoid activities, interests and relationships that might interfere with making decisions in the best interests of clients.

The Advisor adheres to the following principles:

- All personal securities transactions will be conducted a manner consistent with the Code of Ethics.

- Generally, access persons should avoid any actual or potential conflict of interest or any abuse of an access person's position of trust and responsibility.
- Access persons may not, for example, use their knowledge of portfolio transactions to profit by the market effect of such transactions.
- Independence in the investment decision-making process is paramount.

11. D. Timing of Personal Trading

The Advisor has policies and procedures in place to ensure that clients are not disadvantaged when similar securities are bought and sold. As a general rule, employees must obtain pre-clearance prior to placing personal transactions unless an exemption is available under the Advisor's Code. Additionally, policies and procedures are in place to monitor reportable transactions of employees.

Item 12 - Brokerage Practices

12. A. Selection of Broker/Dealers

Research and Other Soft Dollar Benefits

The Advisor does not currently have any soft dollar arrangements.

Brokerage for Client Referrals

The Advisor does not select brokers based upon whether the Advisor will receive client referrals from a broker dealer or third party.

Directed Brokerage

Unless otherwise directed by the client, the Advisor recommends a broker to certain clients. Clients who, in whole or in part, direct Advisor to use a particular broker-dealer to execute transactions for their accounts should be aware that transactions for a client that directs brokerage are generally unable to be combined or "blocked" for execution purposes with orders for the same securities for other accounts managed by the Advisor and will be traded after client accounts that are not directed to a particular broker. As a result, the client may pay higher commissions or other transaction costs, experience greater spreads, or receive less favorable net prices, on transactions for the account than would otherwise be the case if the Advisor could negotiate commission rates or spreads freely or select broker-dealers based on best execution. Consequently, best price and execution may not be achieved.

When recommending a broker, the Advisor considers a number of factors including cost, best execution, price, reputation, access to various markets, reporting, and security of client funds. Clients may limit the Advisor's discretionary authority and may occasionally direct the Advisor to use a particular broker-dealer to execute transactions for their accounts.

12. B. Aggregation of Orders

The Advisor may aggregate trades of the same security, including aggregating such trades with clients of EAB, when it reasonably believes that doing so will provide better prices for clients than executing the transactions individually. When the Advisor aggregates trades, it does so in a manner it deems to be consistent with the best interests of all participating clients. Additionally, the Advisor ensures transactions for each account receive an average security price.

As mentioned above in Item 12.A., clients who direct the Advisor to use a particular broker-dealer and/or non-discretionary client accounts will generally not be aggregated with other clients, which may result in a higher commission. Additionally, when a client directs brokerage, the trades will generally be traded after transactions in the same security for Clients who have not directed brokerage.

The Advisor is not obligated to include any client transaction in an aggregated trade. Aggregated trades will not be effected for a client's account if doing so is prohibited or otherwise inconsistent with that client's advisory agreement.

Item 13 - Review of Accounts

13. A. Frequency and Nature of Review

Account performance is generally reviewed monthly by Edward Boll, William Viscontino and James Ryan, or more frequently if deemed necessary by the Advisor. Reviews may also be conducted upon receiving request from the client.

13. B. Factors That May Trigger an Account Review Outside of Regular Review

Account review is a routine firm function, but it can be triggered or intensified by unexpected performance, shifting market conditions, or changing client preferences or circumstances.

13. C. Content and Frequency of Reports

Clients of the Advisor participate in risk calls. In general, the only reports prepared by the Advisor are a value at risk and correlation analysis for each client. Risk reports and transaction reports are provided directly to each client via their respective prime broker or custodian. Clients are reminded to compare such reports to those reports provided by the Advisor.

Item 14 - Client Referrals and Other Compensation

The Advisor compensates certain employees of EAB for successfully referring clients to the Advisor (a “Referring Party”). Prior to compensating the Referring Party, the Advisor, EAB and the Referring Party must enter into a solicitation agreement.

Such solicitation agreements present potential conflicts of interest since a Referring Party has an incentive to recommend the Advisor as a result of the compensation paid by the Advisor. The Advisor and EAB mitigate these potential conflicts as follows:

- The Advisor provides any referred client with a copy of this Disclosure Brochure, as required by the Investment Advisers Act of 1940.
- The referred client also will complete a Solicitor’s Disclosure Statement document.
- If the Referring Party is an unaffiliated registered investment adviser firm, then the client will also receive a copy of the referring party’s Form ADV Part 2 Disclosure Brochure.
- While a referral fee will be paid to the referring party when the referred client enters into an advisory agreement with the Advisor, the client will not be charged an additional amount. Rather, the client will pay the customary advisory fees charged for the advisory services provided.

As described in Item 10 above, EAB entered into a strategic partnership with Easterly Asset Management and Easterly Securities and formed the Advisor. Easterly Securities will act as a placement agent for accounts and funds that may be formed in the future upon such terms as the Advisor and Easterly Asset Management may agree, as well as the standard terms of the Advisor’s investment advisory services. As part of this strategic partnership, Easterly Asset Management will share in the management fees and carried interest earned from such accounts and funds. Prospective investors are encouraged to review fund offering and governing documents for additional information regarding Easterly Securities and certain conflicts of interest that exist, as a result of such arrangement.

Item 15 – Custody

The Advisor does not maintain custody of client assets. Clients should receive quarterly statements from the broker-dealer, bank or other qualified custodian that holds and maintains client’s account assets. The Advisor takes steps to ensure that the client’s qualified custodian sends periodic account statements to the client, no less frequently than quarterly, showing all transactions in the account, including fees paid to Advisor.

Item 16 - Investment Discretion

The Advisor provides investment advisory services on a discretionary and non-discretionary basis.

When discretionary investment advisory services are provided, the Advisor's Investment Management Agreement grants the Advisor discretionary investment authority over the securities account of its client. This authority gives the firm the power to decide which securities to buy and sell and in what quantities. Additionally, each client will be required execute an agreement with its prime broker that grants limited trading authority to the Advisor over such client's account.

Item 17 - Voting Client Securities

The Advisor generally does not vote proxies on behalf of its Clients, unless directed to do so by the Client. When directed to do so, the Advisor will vote such securities for the exclusive benefit, and in the best economic interest, of those clients and their beneficiaries, as determined by the Advisor in good faith, subject to any restrictions or directions from the client. The Advisor is unable to accept direction from clients on a particular solicitation.

The Advisor has adopted policies and procedures for voting client proxies in the best interest of clients. In the event a conflict exists and the Advisor determines the matter is not covered under the Proxy Voting Procedures, the Advisor will contact the client for instructions on voting.

A copy of the Advisor's proxy voting policy is available upon request. Clients will receive all proxies directly from their respective prime brokers. Clients may contact the Advisor with questions regarding such solicitations and they will be directed to the appropriate party at their prime broker.

Item 18 - Financial Information

18. A. Advance Payment of Fees

The Advisor does not require or solicit prepayment of fees from clients, six months or more in advance.

18. B. Financial Condition

The Advisor has no financial commitments that impair its ability to meet contractual commitments and fiduciary commitments to clients.

18. C. No Bankruptcy Proceedings

The Advisor has not been the subject of a bankruptcy proceeding.
