Item 4 – Advisory Business

KilterHowling is a Boulder-based investment adviser that was formed under the laws of the State of Colorado and state-registered beginning in 2014. KilterHowling registered with the SEC in March 2020.

KilterHowling is owned and managed by Kreighton Bieger and William Stites, each of whom hold a 50% ownership stake in and serve as a Managing Partner of the Firm. Mr. Stites also serves as the Firm's Chief Compliance Officer.

Description of Advisory Services

Asset Management

We provide professional management of client investment portfolios in accordance with our clients' needs. We primarily invest client assets in mutual funds and exchange-traded funds ("ETFs"), and to a lesser extent in individual equity securities, bonds and alternative investments, and in accordance with model portfolios which correspond to our clients' investment objectives and risk tolerance.

The investment advisory services we offer include the following with respect to clients' accounts, where appropriate and desired by the client:

- Analysis and review of clients' current investment assets;
- Assistance in determining investment goals and risk tolerances based on investment experience, expectations and evolving financial needs;
- Development and implementation of an investment plan;
- Monitoring and supervision of investments and recommended possible changes; and
- Providing periodic performance reporting.

We will need to obtain certain information from you to determine your financial situation and investment objectives. You will be responsible for notifying us of any updates regarding your financial situation, risk tolerance or investment objective and whether you wish to impose or modify existing investment restrictions; however we will contact you at least annually to discuss any changes or updates regarding your financial situation, risk tolerance or investment objectives. We are always reasonably available to consult with you relative to the status of your Account. You have the ability to impose reasonable restrictions on the management of your accounts, including the ability to instruct us not to purchase certain securities.

Financial Planning

For those asset management clients who seek additional guidance, we offer financial planning services at no additional cost to the client.

Our financial planning services involve preparing a written financial plan covering specific or multiple topics such as wealth planning, tax and estate plan coordination, charitable gifting strategies, and diversification planning. When providing financial planning and consulting services, the role of your investment adviser representative is to find ways to help you understand your overall financial situation and help you set financial objectives. You have the sole responsibility for determining whether to implement our financial planning and consulting recommendations.

We also offer consultations in order to discuss financial planning issues when you do not need a written financial plan. These “as-needed” consultations are limited to consultations in response to a particular investment or financial planning issue raised or request made by you. Under an “as-needed” consultation, it will be incumbent upon you to identify those particular issues for which you are seeking our advice or consultation.

Retirement Consulting

We provide consulting services to participants in retirement plans (401(k) plans, profit sharing plans, etc.). When providing these services, we review your financial situation, goals and objectives as well as the investment options available in the retirement plan. We will review your retirement plan account periodically and will make such recommendations from the list of available investment options in your retirement plan account as are deemed appropriate and consistent with your stated investment objectives and risk tolerance. These services do not constitute asset management services for your retirement plan account; we do not have investment discretion or trading authority over your retirement plan account unless that account is managed by KilterHowling through a self-directed brokerage account. You determine whether or not to implement our advice. The implementation of any trades in your retirement plan account is your responsibility.

Retirement Plans

We offer investment advisory services to participant-directed retirement plans. We are responsible for selecting the investment options offered by the retirement plan and for monitoring the performance of the investment options.

Client Assets Managed by KilterHowling

As of 6/15/2021, KilterHowling manages $197,502,552 in client assets on a discretionary basis. We do not manage client assets on a non-discretionary basis. As a courtesy to our clients, we do provide client reporting for additional assets that we do not manage, supervise or charge our clients for.

Item 5 – Fees and Compensation

Asset Management Services

Our fee for asset management services is based on a percentage of your assets under our management and is specified in your client agreement with us. Fees are typically calculated based on the average daily values of your account during the billing period and billed on a calendar quarter basis in arrears (at the end of the billing period). For the initial billing period, fees are prorated (based on the number of days service is provided during the initial billing period) and billed in arrears.

Our fee schedule is as follows:

ADVISORY FEE SCHEDULE
Market Value of Assets	Tiered Rate
Up to $1,000,000	1.00%
$1,000,001-$2,000,000	0.75%
$2,000,001 and greater	0.50%
The listed rate applies only to assets in that tier.

The asset management services continue in effect until terminated by either party (i.e., KilterHowling or you) by providing written notice of termination to the other party. In the event that there is a remaining balance for any unpaid fees due to KilterHowling upon termination, those fees will be due to KilterHowling immediately.

Fees charged for our asset management services are negotiable based on the investment adviser representative providing the services, the type of client, the complexity of the client's situation, the composition of the client's account (i.e., equities versus mutual funds), the potential for additional account deposits, the relationship of the client with the investment adviser representative, and the total amount of assets under management for the client.

The investment advisory fees will be deducted from your account and paid directly to our firm by the qualified custodian(s) of your account. You will authorize the qualified custodian(s) of your account to deduct fees from your account and pay such fees directly to our firm. Our firm will send you a billing statement as part of the quarterly performance report. The billing statement will detail the formula used to calculate the fee, the assets under management and the time period covered. See Item 15 – Custody for more details.

In the situation wherein we are using a third-party money manager with your account, that money manager may be processing your quarterly bill for both their fee as well as KilterHowling's advisory fee. In these cases, it is likely that the fees will be calculated quarterly, in advance based on the period ending value. As always, the fees will be deducted from your account by the qualified custodian and paid directly to our firm. In the event, your account is no longer under our management during a quarter, then the pro rata portion of the quarter's fees will be paid back to that account.

You should review your account statements received from the qualified custodian(s) and verify that appropriate investment advisory fees are being deducted. The qualified custodian(s) will not verify the accuracy of the investment advisory fees deducted.

In addition to our fee, clients are responsible for the fees and expenses associated with the investment of their assets. Brokerage commissions and/or transaction ticket fees and/or asset-based fees charged by the qualified custodian will be billed directly to Client by the qualified custodian. KilterHowling will not receive any portion of such commissions or fees from the qualified custodian or Client. In addition, Client may incur certain charges imposed by third parties other than KilterHowling in connection with investments made through the Account including, but not limited to, mutual fund, ETF (exchange traded fund) private investment fund and third-party manager expenses, such as management fees, performance fees, sales loads, 12(b)-1 fees and surrender charges, variable annuity fees and surrender charges, IRA and qualified retirement plan fees, and charges imposed by the qualified custodian(s) of the Account. A description of these fees and expenses are available in each investment company security's prospectus, offering memorandum or Form ADV 2A brochure. Certain assets may incur a custodial fee that is charged by and paid directly to the custodian for holding certain assets, such as certain non-liquid alternative investments.

No supervised person of KilterHowling accepts compensation for the sale of securities or other investment products. As discussed above, clients may incur fees for the sale of certain securities or investment products. But those fees will never be paid to or accepted by any supervised person affiliated with KilterHowling.

Financial Planning & Consulting Services

Financial planning and consulting services are only available to clients of KilterHowling that utilize our asset management services. KilterHowling does not charge separate fees for financial planning.

When providing services to you, if we deem it helpful and if you consent, we may consult with attorneys, accountants or other outside professionals on your behalf. Fees for the services of such outside professionals will be in addition to and separate from the fees charged by KilterHowling, and clients will be responsible for the payment of the fees for the services of such an outside professional.

Item 6 – Performance-Based Fees and Side-By-Side Management

In this section, advisers are required to discuss any potential conflicts of interest arising from side-by-side management of client portfolios that pay performance-based fees with those that pay asset-based or other types of fees. This section is not applicable to us because we do not charge or accept performance-based fees.

Item 7 – Types of Clients

KilterHowling generally provides investment advice to individuals, high net worth individuals and retirement plans.

Minimum Investment

We have no required minimum investment amount for establishing an account with us. However, we must mutually agree to the arrangement and memorialize its terms in an investment advisory agreement.

Item 8 – Methods of Analysis, Investment Strategies and Risk of Loss

KilterHowling uses the following investment strategies when managing client assets and/or providing investment advice:

KilterHowling Global Growth (KHGG)

A portfolio diversified not just by asset class but by investment style as well so as to focus on return relative to the risk taken over many types of market cycles. KilterHowling Global Growth will include several investment sub-strategies chosen to be complementary over various market cycles. These sub-strategies may include but not be limited to allocations to KHGV (see below), mutual funds, tactical asset allocation strategies, alternative strategy mutual funds, and from time to time third party managers.

KilterHowling Capital Preservation (KHCP)

A fixed income strategy designed to provide returns modestly above inflation while seeking to limit volatility and risk of permanent loss. KHCP strives to deliver additional return comparable to traditional fixed income approaches while keeping a focus on risk-adjusted results. We will also use our Municipal Bond and Income portfolios as supplements to KHCP when appropriate.

KilterHowling also offers satellite strategies to clients including ESG portfolios, an income oriented strategy, a municipal bond strategy, and an individual stock strategy. KilterHowling will also work with certain third party money managers.

General Implementation of KilterHowling portfolios

KHGG and KHCP are diversified portfolios that are implemented using liquid investment vehicles, potentially including, but not limited to:

- Individual debt and equity securities
- Mutual funds
- Exchange traded funds
- Derivatives
- Third-party managers selected by KilterHowling.

Risk tolerances are specific to each client and therefore the overall client solution will be made risk appropriate by blending each client's exposure to the strategies that KilterHowling offers.

KilterHowling may offer additional portfolio strategies based on specific client objectives, requests, and needs from time to time. Other strategies and investments are subject to the same process as other KilterHowling investments.

It is not our investment strategy to attempt to time the market, but we may decrease or increase exposure to the market modestly as deemed appropriate based on your risk tolerance and our expectations of market behavior. We may modify our investment strategy to accommodate special situations such as low basis stock, stock options, legacy holdings, inheritances, closely held businesses, collectibles, or special tax situations or varying account sizes.

Risk of Loss

Investing involves the risk of loss, including risk of loss of principal invested, which clients should be prepared to bear.

With all investment solutions, past performance is not indicative of future results. Therefore, you should never assume that future performance of any specific investment or investment strategy will be profitable.

Additional risks that you should be prepared to bear include fluctuation in the value of your portfolio, loss of purchasing power, loss of income, and failure to achieve your financial planning objective.

KilterHowling will not explicitly use margin (leverage) to implement investment solutions, but some of the mutual funds or other securities that we use to implement an investment solution may have embedded leverage. Leverage will magnify investment returns, including losses.

The mutual funds and ETFs in which we invest client assets or recommend to clients generally own principally securities and therefore also involve the risk of loss that is inherent in investing in securities. The extent of the risk of ownership of fund shares generally depends on the type and number of securities held by the fund. Mutual funds invested in fixed income securities are subject to the same interest rate, inflation, and credit risks associated with the fund's underlying bond holdings. Fixed income securities may decrease in value as a result of many factors, for example, increases in interest rates or adverse developments with respect to the creditworthiness of the issuer.

An ETF's risks include declining value of the securities held by the ETF, adverse developments in the specific industry or sector that the ETF tracks, capital loss in geographically focused funds because of unfavorable fluctuation in currency exchange rates, differences in generally accepted accounting principles, or economic or political instability, tracking error, which is the difference between the return of the ETF and the return of its benchmark and trading at a premium or discount, meaning the difference between the ETF's market price and NAV. ETFs also are subject to the individual risks described in their prospectus. Although many mutual funds and ETFs may provide diversification, risks can be significantly increased if a mutual fund or ETF is concentrated in a particular sector of the market, primarily invests in small cap or speculative companies, uses leverage to a significant degree, or concentrates in a particular type of security.

More information about the risks of any particular market sector can be reviewed in the prospectus for each fund. The following events also could cause mutual funds, ETFs, and other investments managed for Clients to decrease in value:

Market Risk: A decline in the stock market could depress the prices of stocks and other equity securities in a Client's portfolio. An increase in interest rates or a change in the relationship between different market interest rates could depress the prices of bonds and other fixed income securities in a Client's portfolio.

Event Risk: An adverse event affecting a particular company or that company's industry could depress the price of a Client's investments in that company's stocks or bonds. The company, government or other entity that issued bonds in a Client's portfolio could become less able to, or fail to, repay, service or refinance its debts, or the issuer's credit rating could be downgraded by a rating agency. Adverse events affecting a particular country, including political and economic instability, could depress the value of investments in issuers headquartered or doing business in that country.

Liquidity Risk: Securities that are normally liquid may become difficult or impossible to sell at an acceptable price during periods of economic instability or other emergency conditions. Some securities may be infrequently or thinly traded even under normal market conditions.

Domestic and/or Foreign Political Risk: The events that occur in the U.S. relating to politics, government, and elections can affect the U.S. markets. Political events occurring in the home country of a foreign company such as revolutions, nationalization, and currency collapse can have an impact on the security.

Inflation Risk: Countries around the globe may be more, or less, prone to inflation than the U.S. economy at any given time. Companies operating in countries with higher inflation rates may find it more difficult to post profits reflecting its underlying health.

Fixed Income Securities

Fixed Income securities are subject to interest rate risk, credit risk, inflation risk and the risk that they will be sold at a loss in the secondary market, if not held until maturity.

Private Investment Funds

We recommend that certain clients invest in private investment funds. Private investment funds are typically illiquid or less liquid than public market investments and, while they provide portfolio diversification, could expose a client's portfolio to greater risk than publicly investments. Private investments are only appropriate for the portion of a client's portfolio that has no near-term need for liquidity and can risk loss of the entire investment. Other risks associated with these investments are detailed in the private offering memorandum for the relevant fund, which risks clients are strongly urged to review.

Different types of investments involve varying degrees of risk, and it should not be assumed that future performance of any specific investment or investment strategy will be profitable or equal any specific performance level(s).

Item 9 – Disciplinary Information

In this section, advisers are required to disclose certain legal and disciplinary actions that could be materials to a client's evaluation of the adviser or the integrity of its management. We have nothing to disclose in response to this section.

Item 10 – Other Financial Industry Activities and Affiliations

We are an independent registered investment registered adviser and only provide investment advisory and financial planning services. We are not engaged in any other business activities and offer no other services except those described in this Disclosure Brochure.

Item 11 – Code of Ethics, Participation in Client Transactions and Personal Trading

Code of Ethics Summary

An investment adviser is considered a fiduciary and has a fiduciary duty to all clients. KilterHowling has established a Code of Ethics to comply with the requirements of the securities laws and regulations that reflects its fiduciary obligations and those of its supervised persons. The Code of Ethics also requires compliance with federal securities laws. KilterHowling's Code of Ethics covers all individuals that are classified as "supervised persons". All employees, officers, directors and investment adviser representatives are classified as supervised persons. KilterHowling requires its supervised persons to consistently act in your best interest in all advisory activities. KilterHowling imposes certain requirements on its supervised persons which are designed to meet the firm's fiduciary responsibilities to you. The standard of conduct required is higher than ordinarily required and encountered in commercial business.

KilterHowling and its associated persons are permitted to invest in the same securities as our clients. This creates a potential conflict of interest. KilterHowling's Code of Ethics contains controls over the investments of our associated persons which are designed to mitigate conflicts of interest between the trades of associated persons and client trades. Among other things, Firm personnel are prohibited from placing trades designed to take advantage of a client securities transaction, must obtain preclearance for certain transactions and must report certain personal securities holdings and transactions for compliance review.

Clients who would like to review our Code of Ethics may do so by contacting our Chief Compliance Officer and submitting a request.

Item 12 – Brokerage Practices

Brokerage Recommendations

Clients who retain an SEC-registered investment adviser to manage their assets are required to maintain their funds in a segregated account at a qualified custodian (e.g., a bank or broker-dealer). Clients then authorize the investment adviser to direct the execution of securities transactions on their behalf.

We predominantly recommends that clients establish brokerage accounts with the Schwab Institutional division of Charles Schwab & Co., Inc. ("Schwab"), a FINRA-registered broker-dealer, Member SIPC, to maintain custody of clients' assets and select Schwab to effect trades for their accounts. KilterHowling is independently owned and operated and not affiliated with Schwab. KilterHowling may recommend additional unaffiliated broker-dealers to affect fixed income transactions. KilterHowling may use Fidelity or TD Ameritrade, also both FINRA-registered broker-dealers, Member SIPC, to maintain custody of clients' assets and effect trades for their accounts

When we have the authority to select broker-dealers to execute your securities transactions, we assume a duty of best execution. Best execution does not necessarily mean that clients receive the lowest possible commission costs, but rather that all conditions considered, the transaction execution is in your best interest. When considering best execution, we look at a number of factors in addition to prices and rates including, but not limited to:

- Execution capabilities (e.g., market expertise, ease/reliability/timeliness of execution, responsiveness, integration with our existing systems, ease of monitoring investments)
- Financial strength, stability and responsibility
- Reputation and integrity
- Ability to maintain confidentiality

Schwab provides KilterHowling with access to its institutional trading and custody services, which are typically not available to Schwab retail investors but are typically offered to independent investment advisers such as KilterHowling. These services are not contingent upon KilterHowling committing to Schwab any specific amount of business (assets in custody or trading commissions).

For KilterHowling clients' accounts maintained in its custody, Schwab generally does not charge separately for custody services but is compensated by account holders through commissions or other transaction-related or asset-based fees for securities trades that are executed through Schwab or that settle into Schwab accounts.

Schwab's brokerage services include the execution of securities transactions, custody, research, and access to mutual funds and other investments that are otherwise generally available only to institutional investors or would require significantly higher minimum initial investment. Schwab Institutional also makes available to KilterHowling other products or services that benefit KilterHowling but may not directly benefit clients' accounts.

Schwab's products and services that assist KilterHowling in managing and administering clients' accounts include software and other technology that (i) provides access to client account data (such as trade confirmations and account statements); (ii) facilitate trade execution and allocate aggregated trade orders for multiple client accounts; (iii) provide research, pricing and other market data; (iv) facilitate payment of KilterHowling's fees from some of its accounts; and (v) assist with back-office functions, recordkeeping and client reporting.

Schwab Institutional also offers other services intended to help KilterHowling manage and further develop its business enterprise. These services may include: (i) compliance, legal and business consulting; (ii) publications and conferences on practice management and business succession; and (iii) access to employee benefits providers, human capital consultants and insurance providers. Schwab Institutional may discount or waive fees it would otherwise charge for some of these services or pay all or part of the fees of a third-party providing these services to KilterHowling. Schwab Institutional may also provide other benefits such as educational events or occasional business entertainment of KilterHowling personnel. KilterHowling's recommendation that clients maintain their assets in accounts at Schwab may take into account availability of some of the foregoing products and services and other arrangements not solely on the nature of cost or quality of custody and brokerage services provided by Schwab, which creates a conflict of interest. KilterHowling mitigates this conflict through this disclosure and by upholding its responsibility as a fiduciary to recommend only custodians and broker-dealers believed to be in the best interest of clients.

Directed Brokerage

Clients are allowed to select the broker-dealer that will be used for their accounts provided KilterHowling is able to establish a relationship with the client's chosen broker-dealer. Clients directing the use of a particular broker/dealer or other custodian that we have not recommended must understand that we may not be able to obtain the best prices and execution for the transaction. Under a client-directed brokerage arrangement, clients may receive less favorable prices than would otherwise be the case if the client had not designated a particular broker-dealer or custodian. Directed brokerage account trades are generally placed by KilterHowling after effecting trades for other clients of KilterHowling. In the event that a client directs KilterHowling to use a particular broker or dealer that we did not recommend, KilterHowling may not be authorized to negotiate commissions and may be unable to obtain volume discounts or best execution. In addition, under these circumstances a disparity in commission charges may exist between the commissions charged to clients who direct KilterHowling to use a particular broker or dealer versus clients who do not direct the use of a particular broker or dealer.

Soft Dollar Benefits

An investment adviser receives soft dollar benefits from a broker-dealer when the investment adviser receives research or other products and services in exchange for client securities transactions or maintaining an account balance with the broker-dealer.

While as disclosed above, Schwab makes research available to us, the research is not provided based on the execution of specific securities transactions.

We do not have any soft dollar agreements with broker-dealers.

Handling Trade Errors

KilterHowling has implemented procedures designed to prevent trade errors; however, trade errors in client accounts cannot always be avoided. Consistent with its fiduciary duty, it is the policy of KilterHowling to correct trade errors in a manner that is in the best interest of the client. In cases where the client causes the trade error, the client is responsible for any loss resulting from the correction. Depending on the specific circumstances of the trade error, the client may not be able to receive any gains generated as a result of the error correction. In situations where the client does not cause the trade error, the client is made whole and any loss resulting from the trade error is absorbed by KilterHowling if the error is caused by KilterHowling. If the error is caused by the broker-dealer, the broker-dealer is responsible for handling the trade error. If an investment gain results from the corrected trade, the gain remains in the client's account unless the same error involved other client account(s) that should also receive the gains. It is not permissible for all clients to retain the gain. KilterHowling may also confer with a client to determine if the client should forego the gain (e.g., due to tax reasons).

Block Trading Policy

We may elect to purchase or sell the same securities for several clients at approximately the same time. This process is referred to as aggregating orders, batch trading or block trading and is used by our firm when KilterHowling believes such action may prove advantageous to clients by achieving better execution, more favorable commission rates or allocation of orders among clients on a more equitable basis, or avoiding differences in prices and transaction fees or other transaction costs that might be obtained when orders are placed independently. If and when we aggregate client orders, we seek to allocate securities among client accounts on a fair and equitable basis. In the event that we receive a partial fill of an aggregated order, we would typically allocate the fill on pro rata basis among participating client accounts.

Agency Cross Transactions

Our supervised persons are prohibited from engaging in agency cross transactions, meaning we cannot act as brokers for both the sale and purchase of a single security between two different clients and cannot receive compensation in the form of an agency cross commission or principal mark-up for the trades.

Item 13 – Review of Accounts

Account Reviews and Reviewers

Client accounts managed by KilterHowling are reviewed by the Firm's advisers at least semi-annually. While the calendar is the main triggering factor, reviews can also be conducted at your request. Account reviews will include investment strategy and objectives review and making a change if strategy and objectives have changed.

Reports

For our asset management services, you are provided with transaction confirmation notices and regular monthly account statements directly from the qualified custodian. Additionally, KilterHowling will provide position or performance reports to you quarterly and upon request.

You are encouraged to always compare any reports or statements provided by us against the account statements delivered from the qualified custodian. When you have questions about your account statement, you should contact our firm and the qualified custodian preparing the statement.

Item 14 – Client Referrals and Other Compensation

KilterHowling does not directly or indirectly compensate any person for client referrals.

In the course of business, we are offered and sometimes accept meetings with mutual fund, ETF, and certain service (software) providers. We often receive research that is widely disseminated (such as quarterly market commentary and economic chart books) from these providers. The economic benefits received by KilterHowling's supervised persons from product sponsors can include, but are not limited to, financial assistance or the sponsorship of conferences and educational sessions, marketing support, payment of travel expenses, and tools to assist the firm's principals, representatives and employees in providing various services to clients. We do not provide any commitment in exchange for these materials, and they are always widely distributed. We accept business meals on occasion from vendors.

The only compensation received for advisory services is the fees charged for providing investment advisory services as described in Item 5 of this Disclosure Brochure.

Item 15 – Custody

We do not have physical custody over your assets because your assets are held at a qualified custodian (a bank or broker-dealer). The SEC has defined custody to include having access or control over client funds and/or securities.

We are deemed to have legal custody of client funds and securities whenever KilterHowling is given the authority by a client to have fees deducted directly from the client's accounts. KilterHowling will not deduct fees from a client's accounts without written authority from the client.

For accounts in which KilterHowling is deemed to have custody, client funds and securities must be held at a qualified custodian in a separate account for each client under that client's name. Clients or an independent representative of the client will direct, in writing, the establishment of all accounts and therefore are aware of the qualified custodian's name, address and the manner in which the funds or securities are maintained. The qualified custodians must deliver statements to the clients at least quarterly.

Clients are encouraged to review their custodial statements to verify their assets and the calculation of their advisory fees.

Item 16 – Investment Discretion

When providing asset management services, KilterHowling maintains trading authorization over your Account and primarily provides management services on a discretionary basis. This means that we will have the authority to determine the type of securities and the amount of securities that can be bought or sold for your portfolio without obtaining your consent for each transaction. Clients provide us with discretionary trading authority through a limited power of attorney contained in their investment advisory agreements with us and in the custodian's account opening document specific to each account.

KilterHowling does not typically provide non-discretionary management services, and will do so only on a case-by-case basis. If we agree that KilterHowling only will have trading authorization on a non-discretionary basis, we will be required to contact you to obtain your consent prior to implementing changes in your account. This could cause delays that in some cases could prevent us from taking action to protect the assets in your account.

Item 17 – Voting Client Securities

Proxy Voting

KilterHowling does not vote proxies on behalf of Clients. We have determined that taking on the responsibilities for voting client securities does not add enough value to the services provided to you to justify the additional compliance and regulatory costs associated with voting client securities. Therefore, it is your responsibility to vote all proxies for securities held in Account.

You will receive proxies directly from the qualified custodian or transfer agent; we will not provide you with the proxies. You are encouraged to read through the information provided with the proxy-voting documents and make a determination based on the information provided.

Item 18 – Financial Information

This section requires advisers to submit a balance sheet if they require or solicit prepayment of more than $1,200 in fees per client, six months or more in advance, to disclose any financial condition that is reasonably likely to impair the adviser's ability to meet contractual commitments to clients, and any bankruptcy petition within the past 10 years.

This item is inapplicable to KilterHowling.

Item 19 – Requirements for State-Registered Advisers

KilterHowling is registered with the SEC, so this item is inapplicable.

Professional Designations

Chartered Financial Analyst (CFA)

The Chartered Financial Analyst (CFA) designation is issued by the CFA Institute, formerly known as the Association for Investment Management and Research (AIMR). The CFA Program is a graduate-level program for investment specialists such as securities analysts, money manager, and investment advisers. To become a CFA charterholder, an individual must have at least four years of acceptable professional experience in the investment decision-making process, must pass three sequential, six-hour examinations. Each of the 3 course level exams must be passed and each course level is a self-study program involving approximately 250 hours of study time. There are no continuing education requirements to maintain the CFA designation. CFA charterholders must commit to abide by and annually reaffirm adherence to the CFA Institute Code of Ethics and Standards of Professional Conduct.

CFA Institute Financial Adviser Statement for SEC Form ADV

The Chartered Financial Analyst (CFA) charter is a globally respected, graduate-level investment credential established in 1962 and awarded by CFA Institute — the largest global association of investment professionals.

There are currently more than 90,000 CFA charterholders working in 134 countries. To earn the CFA charter, candidates must: 1) pass three sequential, six-hour examinations; 2) have at least four years of qualified professional investment experience; 3) join CFA Institute as members; and 4) commit to abide by, and annually reaffirm, their adherence to the CFA Institute Code of Ethics and Standards of Professional Conduct.

High Ethical Standards

The CFA Institute Code of Ethics and Standards of Professional Conduct, enforced through an active professional conduct program, require CFA charterholders to:

- Place their clients' interests ahead of their own
- Maintain independence and objectivity
- Act with integrity
- Maintain and improve their professional competence
- Disclose conflicts of interest and legal matters

Global Recognition

Passing the three CFA exams is a difficult feat that requires extensive study (successful candidates report spending an average of 300 hours of study per level). Earning the CFA charter demonstrates mastery of many of the advanced skills needed for investment analysis and decision making in today's quickly evolving global financial industry. As a result, employers and clients are increasingly seeking CFA charterholders—often making the charter a prerequisite for employment.

Additionally, regulatory bodies in 22 countries and territories recognize the CFA charter as a proxy for meeting certain licensing requirements, and more than 125 colleges and universities around the world have incorporated a majority of the CFA Program curriculum into their own finance courses.

Comprehensive and Current Knowledge

The CFA Program curriculum provides a comprehensive framework of knowledge for investment decision making and is firmly grounded in the knowledge and skills used every day in the investment profession. The three levels of the CFA Program test a proficiency with a wide range of fundamental and advanced investment topics, including ethical and professional standards, fixed-income and equity analysis, alternative and derivative investments, economics, financial reporting standards, portfolio management, and wealth planning.

The CFA Program curriculum is updated every year by experts from around the world to ensure that candidates learn the most relevant and practical new tools, ideas, and investment and wealth management skills to reflect the dynamic and complex nature of the profession.

CERTIFIED FINANCIAL PLANNER™, CFP®

CFP® Certification Explanation Statement provided by CFP Board

The CERTIFIED FINANCIAL PLANNER™, CFP® and federally registered CFP (with flame design) marks (collectively, the “CFP® marks”) are professional certification marks granted in the United States by Certified Financial Planner Board of Standards, Inc. (“CFP Board”).

The CFP® certification is a voluntary certification; no federal or state law or regulation requires financial planners to hold CFP® certification. It is recognized in the United States and a number of other countries for its (1) high standard of professional education; (2) stringent code of conduct and standards of practice; and (3) ethical requirements that govern professional engagements with clients. Currently, more than 71,000 individuals have obtained CFP® certification in the United States.

To attain the right to use the CFP® marks, an individual must satisfactorily fulfill the following requirements:

Education – Complete an advanced college-level course of study addressing the financial planning subject areas that CFP Board’s studies have determined as necessary for the competent and professional delivery of financial planning services, and attain a Bachelor’s Degree from a regionally accredited United States college or university (or its equivalent from a foreign university). CFP Board’s financial planning subject areas include insurance planning and risk management, employee benefits planning, investment planning, income tax planning, retirement planning, and estate planning;

Examination – Pass the comprehensive CFP® Certification Examination. The examination includes case studies and client scenarios designed to test one’s ability to correctly diagnose financial planning issues and apply one’s knowledge of financial planning to real world circumstances;

Experience – Complete at least three years of full-time financial planning-related experience (or the equivalent, measured as 2,000 hours per year); and

Ethics – Agree to be bound by CFP Board’s Standards of Professional Conduct, a set of documents outlining the ethical and practice standards for CFP® professionals.

Individuals who become certified must complete the following ongoing education and ethics requirements in order to maintain the right to continue to use the CFP® marks:

Continuing Education – Complete 30 hours of continuing education hours every two years, including two hours on the Code of Ethics and other parts of the Standards of Professional Conduct, to maintain competence and keep up with developments in the financial planning field; and Ethics – Renew an agreement to be bound by the Standards of Professional Conduct. The Standards prominently require that CFP® professionals provide financial planning services at a fiduciary standard of care. This means CFP® professionals must provide financial planning services in the best interests of their clients.

CFP® professionals who fail to comply with the above standards and requirements may be subject to CFP Board's enforcement process, which could result in suspension or permanent revocation of their CFP® certification.
