APPENDIX A

Part 2B, Item 2, requires the disclosure of the educational backgrounds of the individuals listed in this Brochure Supplement. The disclosure of professional designations is not required. However, if a professional designation is disclosed, then it must be accompanied by a description of the minimum qualifications required to obtain the designation.

CFA Institute has prepared the following paragraph, which describes the minimum qualifications for the “CFA” professional designation.

The Chartered Financial Analyst (CFA) charter is a professional designation established in 1962 and awarded by CFA Institute. To earn the CFA charter, candidates must pass three sequential, six-hour examinations over two to four years. The three levels of the CFA Program test a wide range of investment topics, including ethical and professional standards, fixed-income analysis, alternative and derivative investments, and portfolio management and wealth planning. In addition, CFA charter holders must have at least four years of acceptable professional experience in the investment decision-making process and must commit to abide by, and annually reaffirm, their adherence to the CFA Institute Code of Ethics and Standards of Professional Conduct.
