Item 2 – Material Changes

This section includes only material changes made to this Brochure since our last annual update (March 2020) and does not include all changes since the last update.

Item 5 – Fees and Compensation (sections A and B) have been updated to reflect potential conflicts of interest and fees clients will pay for non-billable accounts more accurately.

Item 8 – Methods of Analysis, Investment Strategies & Risk of Loss (section C) has been updated to include more details about relationships our firm has with private funds, alternative investments, and hedge funds we recommend to our clients, and about mutual funds we use to allocate client assets we manage.

We believe this additional information will help our clients and prospects gain a better understanding of these items. In addition to the above, the Brochure includes various immaterial adjustments to provide clarity and further information throughout.

Item 4 – Advisory Business

A. Describe your advisory firm, how long you have been in business and identify principal owners.

Beaumont Financial Partners, LLC (“Beaumont”), an investment adviser registered with the Securities and Exchange Commission (“SEC”), organized in 1999. Its predecessor firm, Beaumont Trust Associates, became a registered investment adviser in 1981.

Beaumont delivers a comprehensive range of wealth management and family office services to affluent individuals and families, small businesses, and select institutions. Our seasoned tax preparation and financial planning capabilities and services complement our core investment management business.

The Class A member (managing partner) ownership includes Thomas J. Cahill and Lawrence A. Fiore, while Class B (non-voting) members are Philip Dubuque, James Oates, and Richard Burnes Jr.

B. Describe the types of advisory services offered.

Beaumont provides investment management for its clients with one or more custodians used to maintain accounts. Each relationship typically begins by gathering information from prospective clients including, but not limited to the following:

- financial situation.
- investment objectives.
- income needs, risk tolerance, and time horizon.
- current investments and existing portfolio composition; and
- other factors pertaining to their unique situation and familial considerations.

Beaumont uses this information to develop a target asset allocation, for each client or household, consistent with and appropriate for each clients’ response. From that point, the relationship manager will manage the client’s assets according to the agreed upon target investment allocation. Beaumont provides additional services to many investment clients, such as assistance with tax preparation and/or financial planning, typically for an additional fee. The individual needs and goals of each client determines the depth and formality of the planning process. Ongoing planning or plan updates are also available.

C. Explain if, and how, you tailor your advisory services to the individual needs of clients. Also, explain if clients may impose restrictions on securities or types of securities.

Beaumont takes the opportunity to learn about the financial condition, needs, goals and objectives of each client. This information, combined with their risk tolerance, determines which of our investment profiles/target allocations are most appropriate for each client. Beaumont manages each client account consistent with these and other relevant factors in mind, however, reserves the right to invest their accounts more conservatively at any time.

A client’s actual holdings will vary from their long-term target allocations due to market fluctuation, investment gains/losses, contributions and/or withdrawals, non-managed securities, active management (by the client), client-imposed restrictions, client requests and other circumstances (i.e., tax loss selling).

Clients may impose restrictions, if done so in writing, on certain securities or types of securities. These restrictions would typically be documented in the clients’ initial paperwork and within their profile in our client relationship management (CRM) database. The same process is followed for restrictions added later in the relationship. In addition, as appropriate, the traders will add the client trade restriction into our trading software to make it more easily identifiable when trading.

D. If you participate in wrap fee programs by providing portfolio management services, describe the differences, if any, between how you manage wrap fee accounts and how you manage other accounts, and explain that you receive a portion of the wrap fee for your services.

Beaumont is not a portfolio manager for a wrap fee program, instead it invests client assets in individual equities, bonds, mutual funds, ETFs, and other investment options. The Beaumont Investment Committee makes investment recommendations for Beaumont client accounts with the individual relationship managers (“RMs”) ultimately deciding how much, which, and when to buy or sell an investment for their clients’ accounts. Beaumont periodically utilizes a “specialized” sub-advisor or money manager for a certain allocation of a client’s overall portfolio. Any additional fees incurred by the client will be disclosed prior to the use of the sub-advisor/manager. These fees will vary depending on the sub-advisor used. Beaumont does not receive an additional fee in these arrangements.

E. Assets Under Management: discretionary and non-discretionary.

As of December 31, 2020, Beaumont had ~ $2.45 B in total assets under management and assets under advisement:

Discretionary: ~$1.81 B Non-discretionary: ~$637 M

Item 5 – Fees and Compensation

A. Describe how you are compensated for your advisory services. Provide a fee schedule and disclose if fees are negotiable.

The annual investment management fees for Beaumont Wealth Management clients are typically:

- charged as a percentage of assets under management.
- between 0.60% to 1.00% for diversified accounts.
- .50% for bond ladder only accounts.

Beaumont fees are typically based on total client AUM, asset mix, complexity, and other variables and circumstances. The managing partners reserve the right to waive a portion, or all, of a client’s fee and any minimum account size requirement.

Beaumont also offers financial planning services, tax preparation, and accounting services for an additional fee. The cost for these services varies depending on the complexity of the clients’ finances and time required to complete them. Considerations are given if Beaumont manages the clients’ investment assets. Some clients elect to “bundle” the fees for multiple services into the management fee.

Beaumont receives compensation through certain client relationships solely for providing research, typically pertaining to alternative investments. The compensation structure varies for these relationships, including time spent, scope and limit of investment, reach, etc.; however, it is determined prior to the start of the relationship and services provided.

A portion of the relationship manager’s compensation is determined by the total assets they manage for clients. The more assets they manage, can bring into the firm, and grow their client assets under management, the more compensation they can receive. The compensation paid to the relationship managers are paid from the client’s advisory fee paid to the firm, not an additional fee. This presents a conflict to the financial professional to give preferential treatment to maintain larger clients, although internal policies and controls exist to address and discourage this from occurring. With both the firm and the relationship managers being compensated from the fees received from assets under management, a conflict exists as there is incentive for Beaumont to encourage clients to increase their assets managed by the firm. Alternatively, this creates an incentive for the relationship manager to appropriately invest and grow their clients' account assets, aligning the client's interest with the advisor's.

Describe whether you deduct fees from clients' assets or bill clients for fees incurred. Disclose if clients may choose which method they prefer. Explain how often clients are billed or have fees deducted.

The investment advisory agreement states that client fees will be deducted directly from their account. The client can request an alternate form of payment which will be reviewed on a case-by-case basis. Beaumont clients can request an invoice, showing how fees were calculated, at any time. For most investments, the fees will be deducted directly from the client account unless they request to be invoiced. Beaumont recommends having the ability to deduct fees directly from accounts to simplify the recordkeeping and payment process. Wealth management clients can choose to receive a quarterly billing notification (statement) showing the calculation used to determine their fee, or request one at any time, regardless of the payment method chosen. Custodial statements will reflect fees deducted from an account along with any other account activity during the period. Clients are encouraged to compare their billing notification (statement) with the fee that appears on their custodial statement to ensure accuracy.

Fixed advisor management fees will be determined as of January 1st and will be broken out into four (4) equal quarterly bills/invoices unless the client requests another arrangement. This arrangement, and the management fee, can be revisited if the complexity of the client's investments, overall portfolio, financial planning changes or if there are substantial changes to the assets managed for the client. For fees paid as a percent of assets under management, Beaumont primarily bills clients' investment management fees quarterly, in arrears, based on an average (available) daily market value of the portfolio for each calendar quarter. Fees are charged or refunded in a prorated manner to the end of the quarter upon inception or termination of an account. A client, or Beaumont, may end the relationship by providing 5-days written notice to the other party. The notice period is to allow any outstanding transactions (trades, outstanding checks, transfers, etc.) to settle. There are limited arrangements where a sub-manager deducts quarterly management fees in advance, however this would be disclosed to the client prior to utilizing that third-party manager.

B. Describe any other types of fees or expenses clients may pay in connection with your advisory services.

Beaumont has several relationships that include non-billable accounts. These relationships exist for both fee paying and non-fee-paying clients. The firm is charged an account-based administrative, or user, fee for accounts maintained on their platform. Beaumont, with limited exceptions, will be charging/deducting this fee from non-billable accounts beginning as early as April 1, 2021, and are subject to an annual minimum fee of ~$25 per account. Client will likely see this charge taken from non-billable accounts going forward.

Beaumont clients should be aware that investments in mutual funds, ETFs, alternative investments, and certain other securities result in the payment of multiple fees including the fees and expenses of the ETFs, alternative investments, and mutual funds themselves (expense ratio, etc.). These fees and expenses are customary, and an inherent cost associated with investing. Trading fees are an additional cost incurred in the management of an account. These additional expenses are incurred directly at the investment/custodian/broker-dealer level; and Beaumont does not receive compensation from these additional expenses, nor does it receive commissions for using specific investments.

It is important to note that other fees, including platform fees, mutual fund transaction fees, custodial and trading fees, apply at each custodian. Other fees that clients could pay include short-term trading fees, alternative investment fees, wire fees, and other miscellaneous fees as applicable. Commissions and fees are sometimes negotiable at each custodian. The custodian/broker keeps all commission and transaction fees. A platform sponsor or custodian may charge an additional fee if certain minimums, or other requirements, are not met. Beaumont will not receive any of the fees mentioned in this paragraph.

Additionally, Beaumont is permitted to “trade away” while seeking best execution. The firm will consider the trade-away fee charged by the custodian, security price and other factors prior to using this tactic. The fees and/or commissions vary by custodian and broker, and, because of these additional fees, may not be advantageous to the client. The typical fee, charged by a custodian or trading desk, for trading away ranges from ~$10-50, or more, per transaction. Beaumont does not receive a fee, commission, or other compensation for trading away.

See Item 4.D for fees related to sub-advisors and Item 12 for additional information about our Brokerage Practices.

C. Disclose if your clients either may or must pay your fees in advance, and how they may obtain a refund and how it would be calculated if the advisory contract is terminated.

See Item 5.A. for information about refund calculations and prorated fees.

D. Disclose if you or any of your supervised persons accepts compensation for the sale of securities or other investment products.

No compensation is tied directly to the sale of securities or other investment products.

See Item 6 for related information.

Item 6 – Performance-Based Fees & Side-By-Side Management

If you or any supervised person accept performance-based fees or manage accounts that are charged a performance-based fee and charged another type of fee.

Beaumont does not currently charge performance-based fees.

Item 7 – Types of Clients

Describe the types of clients to whom you generally provide investment advice.

Beaumont provides investment advice to many types of clients including:

- Individuals/families
- Trusts/estates
- IRAs
- Pension, profit sharing and retirement plans (i.e., defined benefit and defined contribution)
- Corporations, non-profits, and college endowments
- Unaffiliated RIAs and broker/dealers
- Trust companies

A client relationship includes any family, professional, or other logical association. Beaumont typically aggregates family accounts, of a client relationship, with respect to the fee schedules and the minimum client account requirements. There are client relationships, and their family members, grandfathered from current requirements based upon their original conditions for starting or maintaining their accounts.

Item 8 – Methods of Analysis, Investment Strategies & Risk of Loss

A. Describe the methods of analysis and investment strategies you use in formulating investment advice or managing assets. Explain the risk of loss that clients should be prepared to bear.

Beaumont employs both technical and fundamental analytics when reviewing securities. In addition to these measures, our analysis includes studying, and the daily review of, numerous trade publications, brokerage research and corporate reports. We also utilize resources such as Bloomberg and Value Line. Additionally, Beaumont utilizes computer software programs to aid in the preparation of financial plans and plan updates.

The analysts typically meet weekly, as part of the Investment Committee, to discuss investment opportunities believed to be worth pursuing as well as reviewing current holdings. Once the committee determines a security is appropriate for client accounts, the committee will discuss client strategies that are most suitable for that security to be allocated (given the clients' objective, risk tolerance, cash needs, etc.) and the appropriate weighting for the position. The RMs ultimately determine the suitability of the securities recommended by the Investment Committee for each of their clients' accounts.

It is important for investors to understand that investing in any type of security involves the risk of loss of principal. Equity securities (and similar vehicles) have typically experienced more volatility over time, while historically less-volatile securities, such as bonds (or cash), come with their own inherent risks including interest rate risk, credit risk, and/or inflation risk. The RMs discuss investment risks with clients at the onset of the relationship to ensure the investor understands the risks associated with their investment strategy before investing their money.

Instead of the simplistic cash-bond-stock breakdown, Beaumont uses a more encompassing method of security definition called The Dominant Benefit Theory of Investing. Using this theory, Beaumont categorizes investments into one of the following five distinct categories based on the dominant characteristics of the investment:

1. Safety: The goal is stability of the investment principal. Risk and commensurate reward are relatively low. Examples include money market funds, certificates of deposit and fixed annuities.
2. Income: The goal is current interest income. While principal risk exists, the dominant benefit is the anticipated steady income by the security. Examples include most types of bonds.
3. Equity Income: The goal is current, relatively high dividend income, with growth as a secondary objective. Capital appreciation/depreciation potential and risk are more correlated to Growth investments. This includes preferred stock, private placement notes, alternative investments, and real estate limited partnerships.
4. Growth: The goal is capital appreciation, any income paid provides a secondary benefit. Examples include common stocks with dividends, mutual funds containing growth stocks and alternative investments. Principal is at a higher risk of loss.
5. Aggressive Growth: The goal is to obtain significant capital appreciation. Typically, these types of securities do not provide income, and the risk of principal is higher than with the other categories. Examples include non-dividend paying stocks, aggressive growth mutual funds, alternative investments, most commodity-based investments, cryptocurrency (bitcoin), and initial public offerings.

While the target allocations are a strategic, long-term guide that Beaumont uses to manage client accounts, Beaumont reserves the right to become more conservative, or significantly reduce exposure to any category, at any time. This would be more likely to occur when the firm's outlook on the market is not optimistic about Growth or Aggressive Growth investments. In doing so, Beaumont may shift assets into "Safety," Fixed Income or Equity Income investments as defined above. Beaumont may only become more aggressive in a client's allocation after discussing with the client ahead of time to ensure more risk is appropriate and consistent with their goals.

In addition, Beaumont has a suite of portfolio allocations (models), with varying risk levels, to use depending on the client's risk profile. Each allocation starts with the Beaumont Dominant Benefit Theory of Investing, along with Beaumont's current allocation models, to create a portfolio mix comprised primarily of low-cost index mutual funds and exchange traded funds. The six portfolio allocation choices can range from 100% Equity/0% Fixed Income to 0% Equity/100% Fixed Income. While the portfolios are using the overall allocation as a strategic long-term guide, each also utilizes various analytics to review the current state of the market and economy which can allow for the portfolio to become more defensive in times of market or economic weakness as the outlook warrants. The portfolio will also utilize traditional bond funds or a bond ladder approach using defined maturity ETFs for liquidity and diversification to manage the fixed income side with an eye towards income and capital preservation in a changing interest rate environment. Interval funds are also incorporated into the models. The interval funds are not as liquid as other investments (such as ETFs or mutual funds) and have trading windows for redemptions. The timing will vary from one interval fund to another, and could be monthly, quarterly, semi-annually, annually, or another schedule. The portfolio manager is aware of the trading windows and will use them as an opportunity to rebalance the allocation as needed.

A client's actual position weighting may vary from their long-term target allocations due to market fluctuation, investment gains/losses, contributions and/or withdrawals, non-managed securities and client specific restrictions, client requests and other circumstances. Beaumont asks clients to notify their RM promptly, in writing, of changes to their financial situation and/or their investment objectives that may warrant a change to their long-term target allocations. An investment approved by the Investment Committee may or may not be appropriate for all clients. Each RM determines the appropriateness of an investment for their individual client accounts.

For small and mid-sized accounts (typically under $150,000), Beaumont often recommends employing a model portfolio consisting of either mutual funds, exchange-traded funds ("ETF") or a combination of the two. This approach seeks to minimize trading costs, reduce risks caused by having a less diversified smaller account, and helps ensure consistent management.

Beaumont, where appropriate, introduces the client to private placements, hedge funds and other alternative investment opportunities as part of a client's portfolio allocation. Some of these investments are only available through a 3rd party or separate investment advisor. The sponsor typically requires the client to complete subscription documents, or an application, prior to allowing them to participate in these investments. Beaumont does not receive additional compensation from the 3rd party sponsors for using or introducing clients to them; however, Beaumont would include these assets, as part of the client's quarterly Beaumont fee calculation, as a portion of their overall allocation. A separate fee structure may be used for recommending alternative or private placement investments. The RM will inform clients of additional risks associated with these investments to ensure they consider prior to the client investing in the opportunity. These risks, which include regulatory, liquidity, credit, principal, counterparty, lock-up periods, and redemption terms to name a few, are disclosed in the Limited Partnership Agreement and/or offering material furnished by the sponsor.

B. For each significant investment strategy or method of analysis used, explain the material risks involved. Explain any significant or unusual risk and disclose how, if applicable, frequent trading can affect performance.

Please see Item 8.A. above.

As with all investments, there are associated inherent risks, including loss of principal. Fixed income investments are subject to inflationary, credit, market, and interest rate risks. Stock markets, especially foreign markets, are volatile and can decline significantly in response to adverse issuer, political, regulatory, market, or economic developments. Sector investments concentrate in a particular industry and depend heavily on the performance of that industry and be more volatile than the performance of less concentrated investment options and the overall market. Securities of companies with smaller market capitalizations tend to be more volatile and illiquid than larger company stocks. Smaller companies may have no, or relatively short, operating histories or be newly public companies. Foreign securities are subject to interest rate, currency exchange rate, economic, and political risks, all of which are magnified in emerging markets. Fixed income investments carry risks related to interest rate fluctuation, credit changes and inflation, while holding cash involves inflation risk. Diversification does not ensure a profit or guarantee against a loss. The principal amounts invested are not protected, guaranteed, or insured.

Investments in mutual funds, ETFs, alternative investments, and certain other securities result in the payment of multiple relevant fees and fund expenses including the fees and expenses of the ETFs, alternative investments, and mutual funds themselves (expense ratio, etc.). ETFs typically trade like stocks and are subject to investment volatility and the potential for loss. Trading fees incurred in the account would be an additional expense to the advisory fee. These additional expenses are incurred directly at the investment, fund company, custodian, broker-dealer level; Beaumont does not receive any compensation or commission from these additional expenses. These charges are an inherent cost associated with investing. High frequency trading could result in lower returns due to an increase in trading costs, as well as an increase in realized capital gains/losses.

Interval funds offer daily pricing for purchases, but have limited liquidity which could be quarterly, or another defined period depending on the fund, for redemptions. This unique quarterly (or other frequency) liquidity feature can avoid the sometimes-irrational pricing volatility that can come with listed investments. Interval funds must make at least 5% of the overall fund value available for quarterly redemptions. It is possible that it may require more than one quarter to redeem our positions. In addition, the use of interval funds can result in the portfolio actual allocation being unattainable for periods of time. ETFs are not actively managed, trade like stocks and are subject to investment volatility and the potential for loss. The principal amounts invested in ETFs are not protected, guaranteed, or insured.

C. If you recommend primarily a particular type of security, explain the material risks involved.

Beaumont does not recommend a particular type of security. However, there are instances where clients are looking for investment opportunities with different features than those covered for typical Beaumont relationships. Beaumont employees research alternative investments and other private investments, conduct due diligence, and presents ideas believed to offer opportunity to appropriate, eligible clients. Clients are responsible for reviewing provided documents, completing applications or other paperwork, and submitting them to participate in these opportunities. Beaumont will facilitate the process as a service to clients. These opportunities can be as, if not more, volatile as the stock market in general, and run the risk of losing the principal amount invested. These alternatives are generally less transparent, often less liquid, and are not always priced or valued daily.

There are instances where a relationship between an existing client, or an employee's family member, and an alternative investment, mutual fund company, or similar institution creates a perceived or potential conflict of interest.

Beaumont has clients that sponsor, or are associated with the sponsor of, alternative investments recommended to other clients. Beaumont does not receive compensation from the sponsor or the alternative investment for clients that subscribe to/invest in these opportunities. Conversely, these relationships have allowed additional Beaumont clients to participate in these investments via lower investment minimums, reduced fees, or other benefits. There are also Beaumont employees that participate in many of these opportunities.

The investment offering documents typically include the fees the entities (sponsors) will receive from investors. Beaumont employees that invest, or have invested in, these sponsored investment offerings do so alongside our clients and receive the same terms as our clients. There are no special deals or terms for employees, versus the terms clients receive, because of our relationship with the sponsor, their firm, or others. When applicable, Beaumont advisors disclose that a Beaumont client is the sponsor (or other title or relationship) of the investments and that we have a close relationship with them and their firm. The Beaumont clients who sponsor or make these alternative investments available, do not receive special treatment from Beaumont regarding the fees they pay, service provided, or other considerations.

A Beaumont client holds a high-level position at a prominent real estate investment sponsor in Boston. Neither Beaumont (employees) nor our clients receive special fee breaks or benefit from this relationship as we are limited partner investors like other investors in their sponsored offerings. Beaumont informs clients of the “friendly” relationship with several of the key personnel at this sponsor. A benefit, often appreciated by clients, is the transparency we get from these relationships. Neither Beaumont’s personnel nor any clients receive any special fee arrangements because of this relationship.

Another Beaumont client is the managing partner at a firm that sponsors a venture lending fund we have exposure to, both at the (Beaumont) partner level and through some clients. Beaumont does not receive special treatment from the sponsor, nor does the sponsors managing partner receive any special fee breaks from Beaumont. Beaumont’s advisors disclose our close relationship with the sponsor, their managing partner, and his team when showing their fund to prospective investors.

A Beaumont employee’s family member is an operating partner at a firm affiliated with alternative fund offerings. This relationship provides Beaumont and its clients access to hedge funds, which are essentially closed to new investors, for Beaumont clients. Beaumont advisors disclose the familial relationship to clients when introducing the investment to them. Neither Beaumont’s personnel nor any clients receive any special fee arrangements because of this relationship. Another family member of a Beaumont employee is employed by a sponsor interval credit funds used by Beaumont for client accounts. There are no special fees for clients in these funds. It is our understanding that the employee (at the fund sponsor) does not receive additional, direct compensation because of our investment in their fund offerings.

Item 9 – Disciplinary Information

Disclose any legal or disciplinary events that are material to a client’s or prospective client’s evaluation of your advisory business or the integrity of your management.

There are no legal or disciplinary events to report.

Item 10 – Other Financial Industry Activities & Affiliations

A. Disclose any registrations as a broker-dealer or a registered representative.

Beaumont is not registered with the Financial Industry Regulatory Authority ("FINRA") as a broker-dealer, nor is any associate licensed as a Registered Representative with a broker/dealer.

B. Disclose any registrations (i.e., futures commission merchant, commodities, etc.).

There are no registrations to report.

C. Describe any relationship or arrangement, material to your advisory business or to your clients, that you or any of your management persons have with any related person listed below:

1. Broker-dealer, municipal securities dealer, or government securities broker or dealer

2. Investment company or other pooled investment vehicle (including a mutual

Please reference previous Items for additional information.

Beaumont offers and provides financial planning and tax preparation services. Lawrence Fiore is the Director of Beaumont's tax practice. Mr. Fiore and Thomas Cahill are both members of the Massachusetts Society of CPAs. Mr. Cahill is also a member of the AICPA. Beaumont has two associates dedicated to the tax department, with other Beaumont associates, and potentially outside accountants, assisting the tax department during peak times.

Beaumont also has less than half-dozen solicitor arrangements. The firm does not receive additional compensation due to this relationship, other than through fees generated from additional client AUM, nor does the client pay additional fees because of these arrangements. The compensation is between Beaumont and the solicitor and does not impact the client fee. The solicitor is required to provide notice and required documentation to the client prior to referring them to Beaumont.

D. Disclose if you receive compensation, directly or indirectly, for recommending or selecting other investment advisors for your clients.

Beaumont does not receive compensation for recommending or selecting other advisors. The sub-advisors request the custodian deduct fees directly and submit to them.

Please reference Item 8.A and 8.C for additional information.

Item 11 – Code of Ethics, Participation or Interest in Client Transactions and Personal Trading

A. If you are an SEC-registered advisor, briefly describe your code of ethics adopted pursuant to SEC rule 204A-1 (or similar state rule). Explain that you will provide a copy of your Code of Ethics to any client or prospective client upon request.

As an SEC-registered advisor, Beaumont has a Code of Ethics (the “Code”) which is reviewed and revised, as necessary. As summarized by the SEC, rule 204A-1 states:

The codes of ethics must set forth standards of conduct expected of advisory personnel and address conflicts that arise from personal trading by advisory personnel. Among other things, the rule requires advisers' supervised persons to report their personal securities transactions...

New Beaumont employees receive training and sign an acknowledgement of their understanding of the Code upon starting with the firm. Additionally, each year all employees recertify their understanding and compliance of the Code. The Code specifically addresses employee trading, conflicts of interest and compliance protocol to better educate employees to ultimately prevent wrongdoing. It also includes a section regarding Compliance review of initial employee holdings and the quarterly review all employees' personal trades to ensure preapproval was obtained (when necessary).

Subsequent items addressed include, but are not limited to, employees reporting violations they discover, insider trading, employee education and acknowledgement, and record keeping requirements.

Beaumont will provide a copy of its Code of Ethics, upon request, to any client or prospective client. Submit requests by email (msnyder@bfpartners.com) or by phone (781-400-2800).

B. If securities in which you or a related person has a material financial interest are recommended to clients, or bought or sold for client accounts, describe your practice, and discuss the conflicts of interest it presents.

Client fees are not based on the securities bought or sold in their accounts; nor is employee compensation based on the investments made on behalf of clients or by recommending or using specific investment companies. We have policies in place to address front-running when buying or selling a security could impact others that are invested in a specific security. However, most names are large and publicly traded reducing the likelihood of our ability to move a market or have a financial impact to others invested in a specific holding.

C. If you or a related person invests in the same securities, or related securities, that you recommend to clients, describe your practice, and discuss the conflicts of interest this presents.

Beaumont associates can, and often do, invest in the same securities or strategies we use in client accounts. When this situation arises, the traders will aggregate (block) like buy and sell transactions resulting in clients and associates receiving the same daily average buy/sell price for that security. When an employee submits a trade for pre-approval, and no trades are scheduled for client accounts, the compliance officer has the option of holding the employee's trade until trades will be made in client accounts or allowing it to be traded when requested. Alternatively, depending on the type of security and size of trade, Compliance has several options when approving the trade. Employee trades can be approved for immediate execution, approved for smaller trades to be placed throughout the day to get a more accurate "average" should clients be trading that security on the same day, or approve it with instruction to execute over several days to keep it from having a negative impact on the security for clients if it is a less liquid or thinly traded name. Compliance attempts to avoid approving trades that will violate, or give the appearance of violating, the rules of front running or other regulation. The clients' best interest is the primary consideration before approving or executing employee trades.

Beaumont associates can place trades in certain investments, such as mutual funds, without compliance approval, given the inability of an individual to affect its market price, the price being determined at the market close each day, and all investors receiving the same closing price.

Beaumont client trades will normally receive a common, aggregate price with other clients participating in transactions of the same security executed on the same trade date (with the same custodian). Client trades at different custodians will likely receive different trading prices due to time of execution, size of order, commission, etc.; however, they will typically be aggregated/blocked with like client trades at the same custodian. Clients requesting same day settlement or other priority services exclude them from being included in aggregated, block trades.

Beaumont will introduce alternative investments to appropriate clients, which in many instances employees or other clients have already invested. However, there is no benefit, financial incentive, or investment return (performance) that would be received by those already invested by having a new client participate.

D. If you or a related person recommends securities to clients, or buys or sells securities for client accounts, at or about the same time that you or a related person buys or sells the same securities for their own account, describe your practice, and discuss the conflicts of interest it presents.

See response to Item 10 and Item 11.C.

Beaumont's staff is permitted to, and often does, invest in the same names as those being purchased for client accounts through their personal accounts. Employees are required to have their personal trades pre-approved and aggregated (blocked) with like client trades. The aggregation of trades is an important process utilized by Beaumont. Aggregation means that clients and associates receive an identical, (average) buy/sell price for each security traded, on the same business day.

Beaumont has several policies, including a Code of Ethics, to address potential conflicts of interest which may arise through personal trading. Compliance may restrict the timing that employees may trade a security under consideration by the Investment Committee for client accounts. In addition, the firm has policies and procedures intended to address and prevent insider trading.

Item 12 – Brokerage Practices

A. Describe the factors that you consider in selecting or recommending broker-dealers for client transactions and determining the reasonableness of their compensation.

1.a-f – Related to research and soft dollar benefits, markups, or markdowns.

Beaumont receives research from Morgan Stanley, and others, based on the relationship between the firms. Some research provided to Beaumont stems from relationships between an employee and the providing firm that predate their joining Beaumont. Compensation is not paid to, or from, Beaumont for research and there are no stipulated markups or markdowns of commission related to this exchange.

See Item 5.A. and Item 10.D. for more information.

2.a-b – Disclose any potential incentives in recommending a specific broker-dealer.

Beaumont participates in the Fidelity Wealth Advisor Solutions Program where Fidelity makes information about investment advisors and financial planners, who custody assets at Fidelity, available to affluent and high net-worth investors. Beaumont is under no contractual obligation to utilize any product or service offered by Fidelity, or its affiliates, as a condition of participation in this program. Fidelity selected Beaumont for participation in this program, likely from existing relationships between the companies. Beaumont uses the same criteria for brokerage/custody selection for clients referred through the Fidelity Wealth Advisor Solutions Program that it uses for clients from outside the program.

Beaumont negotiated a commission schedule with Fidelity aside from these arrangements and we believe our schedules to be favorable for clients given their services and the quality which it is provided. Beaumont does not receive direct compensation from Fidelity, to participate in this program; however, Beaumont obtains additional clients and assets resulting in additional revenue through the increased AUM.

Please also see Item 14.B for additional information.

Beaumont's participation in the program presents potential conflicts of interest, or gives the appearance, that Beaumont has an incentive to recommend clients to custody their assets with Fidelity. However, Beaumont uses

Fidelity as the custodian for most new and existing clients due to the beneficial cost, execution, and level of service provided. Beaumont will typically trade with the brokerage houses holding the accounts because the prime brokerage/trade-away fees would outweigh any savings that could result in trading through another broker.

With multiple custodians and broker choices available, Beaumont is not obligated to use a specific custodian or broker for client accounts and trade activity. Clients can always inquire about using other custodians for their accounts and have the option of moving their accounts to any of them. We are open to exploring additional relationships to increase the choices, and benefits, for our clients.

The selection and recommendation of custodians and broker-dealers by Beaumont and its clients will vary and are often determined by previous association, client needs versus the services provided, the expenses of each custodian (including fund management fees, prime brokerage/trade-away fees, and commissions paid), product offerings, service to Beaumont (including electronic data support) and client preference. Beaumont also considers the quality and quantity of products offered, and services provided by brokers and custodians. Beaumont considers several relevant factors when seeking best execution including, but not limited to:

- full range and quality of the services provided, as appropriate,
- responsiveness to Beaumont regarding software and other technological support,
- general execution and operational capabilities,
- reputation, reliability, and experience,
- fee schedule, and
- integrity, financial strength, and stability.

3. – Directed brokerage.

Beaumont has a relationship with Morgan Stanley, for clients seeking a full-service broker, in addition to several other custodians that are not full-service. Clients can request to have accounts and assets maintained at a specific custodian, including Morgan Stanley, regardless of the potentially higher cost associated with the full service, brokerage fee schedule. These requests may be due to a previous relationship between the client and the custodian (and broker), unique product offerings, reporting capabilities, or that custodian being a full-service provider. Clients directing Beaumont to use a specific custodian may pay a higher commission and may not receive best execution for all transactions, due to the custodian's full-service fee schedules.

Beaumont's investment advisory clients have a negotiated trading commission schedule on the Morgan Stanley, full service, retail platform. This information is available to clients and prospects upon request. The fee schedules provided in each fund's prospectus disclose mutual fund fees and expenses.

B. Discuss whether and under what conditions you aggregate the purchase or sale of securities for various client accounts.

As stated in Item 11.C. Beaumont client trades will normally receive a common, aggregate price with other clients (and employees) participating in a transaction, in the same direction (buy/sell), of the same security executed on the same trade date, at the same custodian. Transactions at different custodians will likely receive different trading prices due to time of execution, size of order, commission, etc.; however, they will typically be aggregated/blocked with like client trades at the same custodian. There are exceptions when a trade would not be aggregated, such as if there was a need for same day settlement, client directed trades, or similar circumstances.

Beaumont would likely use a specific broker dealer to purchase a security, i.e., an initial public offering (IPO), secondary offerings, and certain bonds if it is not available through multiple brokers or if only available in limited quantity. In these instances, Beaumont would allocate to client accounts at other custodians, as appropriate. Beaumont uses several methods to allocate securities to clients in an equitable manner in these instances and may include alphabetical, reverse alphabetical, percent of portfolio held in cash, or other means, to help ensure that the same client accounts are not repeatedly participating when there are limited quantities available, or if a security is being bought/sold over multiple days.

When deciding to invest in equity IPO shares for its clients, Beaumont will allocate the shares to appropriate, eligible Beaumont high net worth clients that have a preference and tolerance for high-risk investments. Equity IPOs are typically only available to clients who have accounts established with the broker-dealer underwriting each IPO. Client accounts must meet minimum requirements to be considered for an allocation of IPO shares, the client must typically have:

- 1) A Fidelity, Schwab, or Morgan Stanley account with a market value of at least $150,000.
- 2) A liquid net worth of at least $1,000,000.
- 3) Accounts in good standing with the clients' respective custodian, including complete paperwork, etc.; and
- 4) Meet other applicable criteria as set forth by the custodian.

When supply of a desired security is available at only one of the broker-dealers listed above, Beaumont may purchase large blocks and transfer all or part of the desired security from one custodian to another to make the security available to other eligible clients.

Please also see Item 10.C. for additional brokerage information and Item 11.C. and Item 11.D. for additional aggregation practices.

Item 13 – Review of Accounts

A. Indicate the frequency of review of client accounts and the nature of the review.

The nature and frequency of Beaumont client account reviews varies greatly; however, RMs give attention to client accounts regularly. The most common review occurs when the Investment Committee recommends the purchase or sale of a security. With each recommendation by the Investment Committee, the relationship/portfolio manager is to review each of their clients' allocation, cash position, etc. to determine the proper action to take, if any, in an account. RMs conduct these and other periodic reviews of client accounts to ensure that their asset allocation is consistent with the agreed upon allocation guidelines or if adjustments are necessary. Operations aids the RMs by providing cash reports showing the amount of cash held in each client account as well as alerting them when a large deposit is added to an account.

The RMs also review client accounts for capital gains and losses, large deposits or withdrawals, and ensure funds are available as needed. Sudden economic, political, or other macro events may also cause more frequent or immediate review of accounts and their allocation. Additional reviews are likely to occur with changes in the personal financial circumstances of a specific client. The frequency of more formal reviews is determined by each client and may occur by mail, phone or in person. Clients are encouraged to contact their RM at any time if they have any questions or would like to discuss their account(s) (i.e., target allocation, investment strategy, change in financial situation, etc.).

B. If you review client accounts on other than a periodic basis, describe the factors that trigger a review

See Item 13.A.

C. Describe the content and indicate the frequency of regular reports you provide to clients regarding their accounts. State whether these reports are written.

The reporting frequency will vary, and evolve over time, based on the client's preference. Clients have the option to elect their review frequency as time goes on, while many clients prefer not to have formal meetings. A report for a formal review may include, but is not limited to:

- various portfolio metrics,
- individual account, group (personal, retirement, etc.) and/or total portfolio performance,
- a review of the asset allocation and holdings of each portfolio,
- if applicable, will suggest timely, pertinent investment advice,
- an opportunity to discuss changes in financial situation, life events or other needs.

Clients receive monthly, or quarterly, statements from their custodian(s). Depending on the custodian, clients will have the opportunity to receive their statements electronically or have a physical, paper copy sent to them. Clients are encouraged to review these statements and contact their RM if they have any questions or concerns.

Our portfolio accounting software receives daily electronic file downloads from our multiple custodian relationships and contains transaction, position, and pricing data. These files are reconciled daily by the software provider and are available to Beaumont via the Black Diamond application.

Item 14 – Client Referrals and Other Compensation

A. If someone who is not a client provides an economic benefit to you for providing investment advice or other advisory services to your clients, generally describe the arrangement.

No additional information than what has already been disclosed via solicitor arrangements (via increased AUM) or sub-advisory relationships.

B. If you or a related person directly or indirectly compensates any person who is not your supervised person for client referrals, describe the arrangement and compensation.

Beaumont has solicitation arrangements with unaffiliated third parties in accordance with Rule 206(4)-3 under the Investment Advisers Act of 1940. Please also see Item 12.2(a-b) for additional, relevant information on this topic.

- Clients are informed of any such arrangements, and the nature of the relationship as applicable, at the time of the referral and prior to entering into an advisory agreement with Beaumont.
- The solicitor will provide a copy of Beaumont's Disclosure Document (Form ADV Part 2) to the client.
- Beaumont will not sign a contract with a client referred by a solicitor until proof that the required solicitor's disclosures (including this ADV Part 2) has been provided to the client is given to Beaumont by the solicitor.
- The solicitor's disclosure will fully identify any additional fees, if any, the client would be pay.

Beaumont has employees who are investment advisory agents of the firm. Beaumont pays these employees additional compensation for their efforts in bringing in new clients and servicing existing clients. Beaumont pays Fidelity Personal and Workplace Advisors LLC (FPWA), a Fidelity company, an annual fee as a percentage of retained client assets for referrals from the Fidelity Wealth Advisor Solutions (WAS) Program. Beaumont has agreed to pay FPWA an annual minimum fee for participation in the program and may be responsible for any difference between the annual minimum fee prescribed by the agreement and actual fees paid for referrals. Beaumont, not the client, is responsible for any referral fees paid to Fidelity. There is no affiliation between Beaumont and FPWA or Fidelity (FMR LLC). FPWA does not supervise, nor does it have oversight responsibility for Beaumont. Beaumont must meet minimum participation criteria to receive referrals from the WAS Program. Alternatively, Beaumont could be selected for the WAS Program due to its other business relationships with FPWA and its affiliates, including Fidelity Brokerage Services, LLC ("FBS"). Beaumont may be perceived to have a conflict, or potential conflict, of interest resulting from its participation in the WAS Program and its decision to use certain affiliates of FPWA, including FBS, for execution, custody and clearing for client accounts. Advisor may also have a potential incentive to suggest the use of FBS, and its affiliates, to advisory clients, regardless if those clients were referred through the WAS Program.

Item 15 – Custody

If a qualified custodian sends quarterly, or more frequent, account statements directly to your clients, explain that clients will receive them, and that they will also receive account statements from you. Include a statement urging clients to compare the account statements.

Beaumont Financial Partners, LLC does not maintain physical custody of client funds or securities, nor does it accept the delivery of funds or securities in the form of cash or in the name of the firm. However, Beaumont may be deemed to have custody of client funds under Rule 206(4)-2 of the Investment Advisers Act of 1940 because, in certain cases, it has arrangements that authorize it to have its fees deducted from client accounts. Checks made payable to Beaumont are only accepted for business related charges such as payment of client advisory and tax service fees.

Custodians provide, electronically or by mail, monthly or quarterly statements, depending on the custodian, directly to clients. These statements include details about the account balances, market value of securities held, and include all individual transactions executed in the account during the period. Confirmations are provided by each custodian to clients based on the delivery method selected, which often includes the client's ability to sign up for continuous electronic account access. Beaumont does not provide regular statements or appraisals throughout the year, however, will do so upon request from the client.

Clients are encouraged to review their custodian account statements and confirmations closely and contact Beaumont promptly if they have any questions. The calculated values may vary slightly between Beaumont (applications) and the custodians. This may occur if one side bases the value on trade date where the other could value securities based on the settlement date, again, causing a nominal difference in value. If a client notices a material discrepancy or suspicious activity while reviewing their custodial statements or any report received directly from Beaumont, they should contact their RM or Beaumont's Chief Compliance Officer immediately at 781-400-2800.

There are instances where a Beaumont partner or associate is named an account signatory, Trustee or Executor of client trusts, estates, or wills, granted check writing authority, or as custodian of a Uniform Gifts to Minors Account (UGMA). This arrangement is not encouraged, however in view of these relationships, the firm is deemed to have custody of these accounts. To comply with the regulatory requirements pertaining to custody (SEC Custody Rule 206(4)-2), Beaumont has an annual surprise exam conducted by an independent accounting firm. This is to ensure that Beaumont maintains the funds of these (custody) accounts legitimately, records are not falsified, or assets used unethically.

To the extent that a Beaumont employee, partner, or associate (collectively referred to as “Employee” for the duration of this section) serves as Trustee or in any similar capacity for a client account, any actions the Employee takes in such capacity are beyond the scope of their investment advisory responsibilities and are separate from their employment with Beaumont. As such, Beaumont is not responsible for any actions taken or decisions made by an Employee acting in such a capacity. Although an Employee may serve as Trustee for a client account, Beaumont itself will not serve as a Trustee, or in any similar capacity, for any client.

Item 16 – Investment Discretion

Describe the procedures you follow before you assume discretionary authority to manage client accounts and any limitations the client may place on this authority.

Beaumont accepts discretionary authority to manage client accounts and the underlying securities on clients’ behalf through an Advisory Agreement. Clients and a firm representative sign this Agreement prior to the firm assuming discretionary authority of any client account. The Advisory Agreement also gives Beaumont authority to select and use sub-advisors.

See Item 4.C. for additional information about our process and limitations clients can impose.

Item 17 – Voting Client Securities

A. Do you have, or will accept, authority to vote client securities, and briefly describe your voting policies and procedures, including those adopted pursuant to SEC rule 206(4)-6. Explain to clients that they may obtain a copy of your proxy voting policies and procedures upon request.

Beaumont does not vote proxies on behalf of its clients. Our Investment Advisory Agreement explicitly states the client maintains full authority to vote proxies. However, a client may delegate proxy voting authority to Beaumont, in the future, pursuant to a separate agreement made and agreed, in writing, between Beaumont and the client. If our current proxy policy changes, we will notify clients promptly.

B. If you do not have authority to vote client securities, disclose this fact. Explain whether clients will receive their proxies or other solicitations directly from their custodian or a transfer agent or from you.

Clients will typically receive proxies directly from the custodian. The new account application provides for the assignment of proxy ballots to be sent directly to the client or to their advisor, with the latter being discouraged, as Beaumont will not vote on their behalf. Beaumont will follow instructions by the client, as stipulated in our Investment Advisory Contract, and forward proxy ballots it receives to the custodian. Clients are encouraged to contact their RM with any proxy related questions. Beaumont will provide information regarding the proxy vote to clients upon request.

Item 18 – Financial Information

A. If you require or solicit prepayment of more than $1,200 in fees per client, six months or more in advance, include a balance sheet for your most recent fiscal year.

B. Note: If you are a sole proprietor...

C. Note: If you have not completed your first fiscal year, include a balance sheet dated not more than 90 days prior to the date of your brochure.

D. Exception: You are not required to respond to Item 18.A of Part 2A if you also are: (i) a qualified custodian as defined in SEC rule 206(4)-2 or similar state rules; or (ii) an insurance company.

E. If you have discretionary authority or custody of client funds or securities, or you require or solicit prepayment of more than $1,200 in fees per client, six months or more in advance.

- F. Note: With respect to Items 18.A and 18.B, if you are registered or are registering with one or more of the state securities authorities.
- G. If you have been the subject of a bankruptcy petition.

18.A. – 18.G. are not applicable.

Item 19 – Requirements for State-Registered Advisers

- A. If you are registering or are registered with one or more state securities authorities...
- B. Describe any business in which you are actively engaged.
- C. In addition to the description of your fees in response to Item 5 of Part 2A, if you or a supervised person is compensated for advisory services with performance-based fees, explain how these fees will be calculated.
- D. If you or a management person has been involved in one of the events listed below:
- 1. An award or otherwise found liable in an arbitration claim alleging damages in excess of $2,500.
 - 2. An award or otherwise found liable in a civil, self-regulatory organization, or administrative proceeding.
- E. In addition to any relationship or arrangement described in response to Item 10.C. of Part 2A, describe any relationship or arrangement that you or any of your management persons have with any issuer of securities that is not listed in Item 10.C. of Part 2A.

19.A. – 19.E. are not applicable as Beaumont is not a State-Registered Advisor.

Item 20 – Other, Miscellaneous Items

Handling of Trade Errors

Beaumont will make a client account whole for client losses resulting from a trade error solely caused by Beaumont's actions. Beaumont will use its discretion when handling trade errors that result in a gain. Scenarios when Beaumont may "keep" the gain include, if in its judgment, doing so is in the best interest of the client, including but is not limited to the amount of the gain being less than trading cost, client would incur an unwanted short-term redemption fee, avoid a wash sale violation, sale of restricted securities, tax implications, etc.

Errors caused by the client, or an advisor at another firm, are unlikely to be corrected, and the client not made whole. This could occur if the client initiates a trade directly with a broker or custodian, or they initiate a withdrawal from the account without making Beaumont aware of their action, resulting in a short position or over-investment of the account. If another advisor initiates money movement from the account without making Beaumont aware, and trades placed assuming the funds are there, the account is unlikely to be made whole. Gains may be kept if the amount is nominal, or under $100. In addition, Beaumont is often required to follow certain trade error procedures implemented by custodians, limiting their discretion when correcting an error. If a loss occurs greater than $100, Beaumont will make the account whole. Beaumont will maintain the loss or gain if the resulting trade correction is not remedied in the client account, and it is under $100, to minimize and offset administrative time and expense. Generally, if related trade errors result in both gains and losses in a client account, the total net amount would be calculated and used. In the event the Beaumont trade error account has a positive value at the end of the quarter, the (primary) custodian distributes that amount to a charitable organization with that balance not being kept by Beaumont.

Beaumont's Office Locations

The Beaumont home office is located at 250 1st Avenue, Suite 101, Needham, MA 02494. Beaumont has additional presence in The Woodlands, TX, Irving, TX, and Long Island, NY.

Class Action Settlements

Periodically the securities held in client accounts may be the subject of class actions lawsuits. Beaumont has no obligation to determine if the securities held by clients are subject to a pending or resolved class action lawsuit, nor any duty to evaluate a client's eligibility to participate in the proceeds of a securities class action settlement. Furthermore, Beaumont has no obligation or responsibility to initiate litigation, submit a claim or recover damages on behalf of clients who may have been impacted because of actions, misconduct, or negligence by corporate management of issuers whose securities are/were held in client accounts.

Beaumont retained the services of Financial Recovery Technologies ("FRT") in 2011 to improve this process by electronically filing all class action claims on behalf of all our clients. As a result, any class action claim that each client is eligible to file will be handled for them automatically. Fees for this service are on a contingency basis, so there will be no charges against client accounts. FRT will absorb the costs to provide this service and will deduct their fee of 17.5% from any awards recovered from claims they have filed on behalf of our clients. FRT will also attempt to recover claims for any account held at certain custodians where Beaumont has electronic transaction and position data available. Beaumont may not be able to provide holding or transaction information to FRT for trades that were executed prior to the client engaging Beaumont. There are certain financial loss criteria that need to be met for a client to receive a payment.

As a Beaumont client and recipient of this service, clients will no longer need to take any action in order to be eligible to receive awards of class action settlements. Clients will likely continue to receive class action notices from claims administrators for securities held in their account(s), however there would be no need to take any action.

Clients will automatically be registered for this service unless they actively opt out by notifying Beaumont in writing. The dollar amount awarded to each client for a settlement will be deposited directly into their account and noted on their next statement. FRT services are only available for clients who have active accounts under management with Beaumont. Clients can also be assured that any personal information provided to FRT on your behalf is protected under our Privacy Policy and Cybersecurity Program.

CLIENT PRIVACY POLICY NOTICE

This informational notice covers how Beaumont Financial Partners, LLC (“Beaumont”) safeguards your nonpublic personal and financial information. Protecting the privacy of client information is one of our fundamental responsibilities. This notice summarizes our policy regarding the confidentiality and non-disclosure of client information. We do not sell or rent any personal information we gather from clients and will only share such information with others as stated in this notice.

Personal Information Collected

Beaumont clients provide their personal information and information about their family to Beaumont. Information we may request includes:

- Name, address, phone number, social security number, tax identification number and date of birth.
- Assets, employment history, income, liabilities, retirement goals and legal documents.
- Account balances, account numbers, statements, and custodians.
- Beaumont or the custodian may require a photocopy of a valid driver’s license, passport, green card, or military identification when opening new accounts for clients. Many financial institutions in the United States require a copy of at least one of these documents to comply with Uniting and Strengthening America by Protecting Appropriate Tools Required to Intercept and Obstruct Terrorism, also known as the USA PATRIOT Act.

Beaumont often receives client information from custodians including:

- Duplicate copies of monthly statements and trade confirmations
- Daily electronic downloads of clients’ account information (e.g., all transactions and positions).

The custodian must receive authorization from the client before sharing the aforementioned information with Beaumont. This is part of the account opening process.

Why We Collect Personal Information

The personal information we collect is necessary to help us provide informed investment management, financial planning and/or tax services to you.

How We Handle Your Personal Information

As emphasized above, we do not sell, rent, or distribute information about current or former clients or their accounts to third parties. We do not share such information with anyone, except as needed in the normal course of business, such as to open accounts, satisfy required compliance reviews, and complete transactions in your accounts.

For example:

- To open accounts or complete transactions for you, it may be necessary to provide identifying information to custodians, companies, individuals, or groups not affiliated with Beaumont. In addition, Beaumont may provide the custodian with a copy of the Investment Advisory Agreement with the client.
- At times, we contract with non-affiliated companies to perform services for us (i.e., CPAs for tax preparation and Financial Recovery Technologies for class action recovery). As necessary, we share information we collected from you to these third parties. We only release the information necessary for the third party to complete its assigned responsibilities. In addition, we require these third parties treat your personal information with the same high degree of confidentiality as Beaumont.
- We will release information about you if you request us to do so or if we are compelled to do so by law. If you decide to close your account(s) or your account becomes inactive, we will continue to adhere to our privacy policy.

It is always our intent to protect and maintain the integrity of any client information collected or received during the relationship. Beaumont has contractual agreements with third party vendors stipulating the limitations of any information to which they may have access. In short, all non-public client information is kept confidential and not shared, sold, copied, or otherwise used. However, Beaumont clients have the option to opt-out of having their information shared with any third parties. If you are a client, or once you become a client, and would like to opt-out of having your information shared please contact your RM or call the number at the end of this notice.

Confidentiality and Security Procedures

Beaumont emphasizes the importance of confidentiality through operating procedures, employee training and our client privacy policy. We also maintain electronic, physical, and procedural safeguards to help protect your nonpublic personal information.

How You Can Protect Your Information

If you access your accounts on-line, you should confirm that the anti-virus software and firewall/spyware protection is current on the computer(s) that you use. Avoid using public computers, such as at a library, internet café, hotel, etc. to access your accounts whenever possible. We also strongly recommend that you select a unique User ID and Password that does not contain any personal information (i.e., SSN, DOB, Name, phone #, etc.) and is not identical to other passwords you use. An additionally best practice is to not provide any of your account information, including online account usernames or passwords, to anyone, especially if you receive the request via email or over the phone by an unfamiliar source. We also suggest that you regularly review the activity on your brokerage statements, particularly withdrawals and transfers. Please contact us immediately if you notice any suspicious or irregular activity relating to your account(s); or if you believe your information has been compromised.

Annual Notification

As required by federal law, Beaumont provides an annual notification of its client privacy policy to clients. Beaumont reserves the right to amend this policy at any time. We will promptly provide clients an updated copy of this policy if we make material changes.

MASSACHUSETTS DISCLOSURE

Massachusetts law (Sec. 203A) requires disclosure that information on disciplinary history and the registration of the adviser and its associated persons may be obtained by contacting the Public Reference Branch of the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission at (202) 551-8090 or the Massachusetts Securities Division, One Ashburton Place, 17th Floor, Boston, Massachusetts 02108 or (617) 727-3548.

COMPLIANCE WITH PRIVACY REQUIREMENTS

Beaumont maintains compliance with Massachusetts requirement 201 CMR 17.00 and applicable federal guidelines. The firm has a designated Information Security Manager, as defined in its Written Information Security Program (WISP). This Program is consistent with the stringent requirements of Massachusetts and outlines the responsibilities of the firm and its personnel to protect client data. Although the WISP requirements only pertain to residents of Massachusetts, the firm extends these standards to all clients. Beaumont is also aware of and considers the stipulations set forth by individual states. In addition, the Securities and Exchange Commission's (SEC), Regulation S-P provides further guidance and requirements for handling and protecting non-public client information (NPI). Beaumont adheres to and applies these standards to its business and handling of client information.

NOTIFICATION OF BEAUMONT FINANCIAL PARTNERS, LLC'S PROXY POLICY

In accordance with SEC Rule 206(4)-6 of the Investment Advisers Act of 1940 relating to Proxy Voting, Beaumont is notifying you of its Proxy Policy: Beaumont does not vote proxies on behalf of its clients. Our Investment Advisory Agreement explicitly states the Client maintains full authority to vote proxies. If our current proxy policy changes, we will promptly notify our clients.
