ADVISORY BUSINESS

BFA is a federally registered investment adviser that provides investment supervisory and consulting services to its clients. Effective July, 2020, we rebranded and commenced doing business under the name BRAVE Family Advisors. It is owned by its principals T. Brett Haire, Jr. (“Mr. Brett Haire”), David G. Bunting (“Mr. Bunting”), Scott A. Morrison (“Mr. Morrison”) and James P. Haire (“Mr. Jamie Haire”) and has been in business since 1992. Mr. Jamie Haire became a stockholder and officer of BFA effective January, 2021. Clients’ investment accounts are managed upon a discretionary basis, and, upon request, a non-discretionary basis.

After a careful review of each client’s needs and goals, BFA personalizes the services it offers. Upon first meeting with a new client, BFA will determine that client’s risk tolerance. Once so identified, BFA will move forward to build a balanced portfolio of equities and fixed income products which matches the risk profile created. Additionally, some clients may impose restrictions on the investment in certain securities or types of securities. For example, sometimes clients may not wish to invest in certain industry sectors consistent with their personal or political beliefs. BFA’s principals explain to each client the elements of the portfolio it develops and will also explain the potential implications of any restrictions imposed by a client. BFA also offers investment consulting services to “participant-directed” retirement plans established by a plan sponsor under the provisions of Section 404(c) of the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974, as the same shall be amended or updated from time to time (“ERISA”) (each a “Plan”).

As of December 31, 2020 BFA managed $392,510,496 of its clients’ assets on a discretionary basis and $4,945,751 of its clients’ assets on a non-discretionary basis.

FEES AND COMPENSATION

The annual fee for investment account management services of new clients who commence receipt of services from BFA after January 1, 2013 is one percent (1%) of the value of all managed assets of such client.

The annual fee is calculated quarterly, representing one-fourth of the annual rate fee, and is based upon the value of managed assets on the last business day of each calendar quarter. The fee is payable at the end of each calendar quarter for which services have been provided. BFA does not accept any prepayment of advisory fees. In the event the assets managed by the Adviser are under management for less than one calendar quarter, BFA’s compensation shall be calculated and payable on a pro rata basis. The advisory fees charged by BFA are negotiable.

The consulting fees charged by BFA to Plans are assessed on a negotiated basis point cost with the Plan.

For ease of operation, BFA requests permission from investment management clients and Plans to deduct appropriate quarterly fees calculated in arrears from their account; however, if a client would prefer to pay by check that form of payment is acceptable as well.

BFA's fees assessed to its clients are exclusive of brokerage commissions, transaction fees, and other related costs and expenses which may be incurred by the client. Clients may incur certain charges imposed by custodians, brokers, third party investment and other third parties such as custodial fees, deferred sales charges, odd-lot differentials, transfer taxes, wire transfer and electronic fund fees, and other fees and taxes on brokerage accounts and securities transactions. Mutual funds and exchange traded funds also charge internal management fees, which are disclosed in a fund's prospectus. Such charges, fees and commissions are all exclusive of and in addition to BFA's fee, and BFA shall not receive any portion of these commissions, fees and costs.

The specific manner in which fees are charged by BFA is established in a client's written agreement with BFA. Management fees shall be prorated for each capital contribution and withdrawal made during the applicable calendar quarter (with the exception of de minimis contributions and withdrawals).

Upon termination of any account, any earned, unpaid fees will be due and payable.

Regarding brokers' fees compensation, please also refer to the section entitled "Brokerage Practices" below which describes the factors BFA considers in selecting or recommending broker-dealers for client transactions and determining the reasonableness of their compensation (e.g., commissions).

PERFORMANCE-BASED FEES AND SIDE-BY-SIDE MANAGEMENT

BFA does not charge any performance-based fees (fees based on a share of capital gains on or capital appreciation of the assets of a client).

TYPES OF CLIENTS

BFA provides portfolio management services to individuals, high net worth individuals, charitable institutions, foundations, estates and trusts. BFA maintains no established minimum asset requirement for such clients' accounts. BFA also offers investment consulting services to Plans.

METHODS OF ANALYSIS, INVESTMENT STRATEGIES AND RISK OF LOSS

BFA uses a variety of methods of analysis and investment strategies to formulate its investment advice and manage assets. These methods include charting, fundamental, technical and cyclical analyses.

Strategies used to implement investment advice given to clients may include long term and short term purchases (securities held less than or more than one year), trading securities (securities sold within a year) short sales, margin transactions, writing and buying options.

Generally, BFA discourages the use of leverage in its clients' investment portfolios. The risks of using short sales include the fact that while the possible gains are limited, an adverse price change can mean that an investor loses more than the original value with the potential of no upper limit. Due to risk, BFA uses short sales sparingly, usually to hedge market risk or to arbitrage temporary price distortions. Margin transactions are used by a limited number of clients, often as a source of short term borrowing for specific purposes. The risks of trading securities on margin include the potential loss of more than what the client deposited if the value of the purchased securities decline and there is a forced sale to cover a margin deficiency. Option activity is confined to a small number of client accounts and used with close consultation between BFA and the client regarding the anticipated outcome relative to the funds invested. Writing and buying options entails the risk of the option's value changing over time as the value is impacted by how much the underlying security price moves, how long it takes and the security's volatility.

BFA does not guarantee the future performance of any account or any specific level of performance, or the success of any investment decision or strategy. All investment decisions are subject to various market, currency, economic, political and business risks and investment decisions will not always be profitable. As a client, you are advised that it remains your responsibility to promptly notify us if there is ever any change in your financial situation or investment goals so that BFA's review of your portfolio may be updated in line with your current financial objectives.

Investing in securities involves risk of loss that clients should be prepared to bear.

INVESTMENT CONSULTING SERVICES

BFA offers investment consulting services to "participant-directed" retirement plans established by a Plan sponsor under the provisions of Section 404(c) of ERISA. Section 404(c) permits a plan participant to exercise control over the assets which comprise such participant's retirement account under the plan. BFA provides the following services to those types of Plans and their participants:

- Recommendations on Plan investment options to Plan sponsor;
- Assistance with enrollment of Plan participants;
- Education of participants on Plan investment elections; and
- Periodic review of Plan performance with Plan sponsor.

All of these consulting services are provided as "investment education" and not with a view to BFA being a "fiduciary" of such Plan assets. BFA does not have any discretionary control over any Plan assets.

BFA additionally does not provide individualized investment advice to Plan participants and any investment recommendations by BFA are provided solely to the Plan sponsor regarding the Plan assets. Specifically, BFA does not provide individualized advice to Plan participants in the event that the following situations are present with respect to a Plan:

- the Plan permits individual self-directed brokerage accounts and/or participant loans thereunder; or
- the Plan permits Plan participants to invest in publicly traded stock of the Plan sponsor.

DISCIPLINARY INFORMATION

Registered investment advisers are required to disclose all material facts regarding any legal or disciplinary events that would be material to your evaluation of BFA or the integrity of BFA's management. BFA has no information applicable to this Item.

OTHER FINANCIAL INDUSTRY ACTIVITIES AND AFFILIATIONS

BFA has no relevant information to provide for this Item.

CODE OF ETHICS

BFA has adopted a Code of Ethics for all supervised persons of the firm describing its high standards of business conduct, and fiduciary duty to its clients. The Code of Ethics includes, among other things, provisions relating to the confidentiality of client information, a prohibition on insider trading, the reporting of personal securities trading procedures, addresses conflicts which may arise from personal trading by BFA's supervised persons and reminds supervised persons they must abide by federal and state securities laws. All supervised persons at BFA must acknowledge the terms of the Code of Ethics annually, or as amended.

BFA's employees and persons associated with BFA are required to follow BFA's Code of Ethics.

Consistent with clients' investment objectives, BFA may cause accounts over which it has management authority to effect (and may recommend to clients or prospective clients), the purchase or sale of securities in which BFA, and/or its clients, directly or indirectly, have a position of interest. Subject to following the Code of Ethics, and applicable laws, principals, officers, employees and supervised investment adviser representatives of BFA may trade for their own accounts in securities which are recommended to and/or purchased for BFA's clients. The Code of Ethics is designed to assure that the personal securities transactions, activities and interests of BFA's principals, officers, employees and supervised investment adviser representatives will not interfere with (i) making decisions in the best interest of advisory clients and (ii) implementing such decisions while, at the same time, allowing employees to invest for their own accounts. Nonetheless, because the Code of Ethics would permit principals, officers, employees and supervised investment adviser representatives to invest in the same securities as clients, there is a possibility that such party might benefit from market activity by a client in a security held by said party. Trading by such parties is continually monitored under the Code of Ethics to reasonably prevent conflicts of interest between BFA and its clients.

Certain affiliated accounts may trade in the same securities with client accounts on an aggregated basis when consistent with BFA's obligation of best execution. In such circumstances, the affiliated and client accounts will share commission costs equally and receive securities at a total average price. BFA will retain records of the trade order (specifying each participating account) and its allocation, which will be completed prior to the entry of the aggregated order. Completed orders will be allocated as specified in the initial trade order. Partially filled orders will be allocated on a pro rata basis. Any exceptions will be explained in the order.

Clients will receive priority in execution of orders on those occasions when client and Adviser (or a person related to the Adviser) are active in the security simultaneously. This process is coordinated by the Adviser's officers located at the trading desk who will exercise continual oversight.

BFA's clients or prospective clients may request a copy of the firm's Code of Ethics by contacting Mr. Brett Haire.

BFA acts as adviser to clients that include BFA's own shareholders, officers, employees and their respective relatives. With respect to any such clients, BFA may give advice, and take action which may differ from the advice given with respect to a client's account. Adviser shall have no obligation to purchase or sell for a client's account, or to recommend for purchase or sale by a client's account, any security which Adviser, its principals, affiliates, employees or supervised investment adviser representatives may purchase or sell for themselves or for any other clients, however, neither Adviser nor any of its shareholders, directors, officers, employees or supervised investment adviser representatives will act as a principal in connection with transactions involving a client's account without that client's specific prior written approval.

BFA will not effect any principal or agency cross securities transactions for client accounts. Also it will not cross trades between client accounts. Principal transactions are generally defined as transactions where an adviser, acting as principal for its own account, buys from or sells any security to any advisory client.

BROKERAGE PRACTICES

When BFA has discretionary authority over an account, it has the authority to determine, without obtaining specific client consent, the securities to be bought or sold and the amount of securities to be bought and sold. Adviser may use more than one broker-dealer in executing transactions for its client. Some of these executing brokers may calculate commissions on a "dollar per ticket" basis, whereas, others may use a "cents per share" formula plus a somewhat smaller "dollars per ticket" charge. The factors which Adviser considers in selecting any broker-dealer, and in determining the reasonableness of its commissions, are price, skill in execution, level of service, research and financial responsibility. Although a broker-dealer chosen by Adviser may not charge the lowest commission rates available, Adviser believes that the commission rates charged are fair to its clients, when taking into consideration the factors listed above.

Adviser has the authority to select the broker and agree to that broker's commission rates, but BFA does so after negotiating for the lowest execution rates it can obtain from that broker. BFA reviews, to the extent practicable, and at least annually, the commission rates charged by other comparable, qualified brokers to determine that the brokerage commissions being paid by BFA's clients remain competitive with other rates.

BFA has no soft dollar arrangements with any firms and therefore no such costs need to be passed on to clients.

REVIEW OF MANAGED ACCOUNTS

Customer accounts and the individual investments in customer accounts which are managed by BFA are regularly monitored. These reviews are conducted based upon asset allocations, stock market sector weightings, fundamental factors, and price targets and other valuation methods, by Mr. Morrison. Mr. Brett Haire, as the Chief Compliance Officer, also has the specific responsibility of reviewing the holdings and transaction reports regarding the accounts of Adviser's employees. The reviews of these holdings are done when each employee is first hired, and thereafter, on a quarterly and annual basis.

BFA sends written statements to managed clients on a quarterly basis, or upon request, a monthly basis. The statements include an inventory and valuation of the investments in the account.

CLIENT REFERRALS AND OTHER COMPENSATION

BFA does not currently receive referral fees or other compensation from any third party for client referrals.

CUSTODY

BFA does not maintain custody of client assets. All client assets are custodied with nationally recognized, SEC-registered and FINRA member broker-dealer/custodians.

Clients should receive at least quarterly statements from the broker dealer, or other qualified custodian, that holds and maintains client's investment assets. BFA urges its clients to carefully review such statements and compare such official custodial records to the account statements that BFA provides to its clients. BFA's statements may sometimes vary from custodial statements based on respective accounting procedures, reporting dates, or valuation methodologies of certain securities, but all inconsistencies should be checked through carefully.

INVESTMENT DISCRETION

BFA usually receives discretionary authority from clients for accounts which it intends to manage at the outset of an advisory relationship. This authority empowers BFA to select the identity and amount of securities to be bought or sold. In all cases, however, BFA's discretion will be exercised in a manner consistent with the stated investment objectives for the particular managed client account. All consulting services to Plans shall be provided by BFA on a non-discretionary basis.

When selecting securities and determining amounts, BFA observes the managed client's limitations and restrictions. Investment guidelines and restrictions must be provided to BFA in writing.

VOTING CLIENT SECURITIES

BFA will not vote a client's securities without the client's prior authorization or a valid signed proxy. A managed account client has the option to have BFA vote its securities and may authorize BFA to do so. BFA has adopted and follows proxy voting policies and procedures in compliance with its responsibilities under Rule 206(4).

BFA votes client proxies in the manner it considers to best benefit, and in the best interests of, the client. This means it votes in the way BFA believes is most likely to protect the client and maximize the client's return. Generally, BFA will vote its proxies in accordance with the recommendation of company management but in those instances where BFA decides it should oppose management's recommendation in the best interests of the client, it will cast the votes accordingly and document its reasons.

In the event that there is ever a conflict of interest between BFA and the issue being voted, BFA will notify the client and request direct instructions from the client as to how to cast the vote.

Clients may obtain a copy of BFA's complete proxy voting policies and procedures upon request from Mr. Brett Haire. Clients may also obtain information from BFA about how BFA voted any proxies on their behalf.

FINANCIAL INFORMATION

Registered investment advisers are required in this Item to provide you with certain financial information or disclosures about their financial condition depending on how they operate their business.

On April 17, 2020, BFA received a Paycheck Protection Plan ("PPP") loan in the amount of $134,300 through the SBA in conjunction with the relief afforded by the CARES Act (the "PPP Loan"). We used the PPP Loan to continue payroll for our employees and we did not suffer any interruption of services as a result.

Except as disclosed above regarding BFA's receipt of a PPP Loan, based upon BFA's business practices, its use of a qualified custodian and its advisory fee procedure, the SEC does not require any disclosure from BFA in this Item. Please be further advised that BFA has no financial commitment that impairs its ability to meet contractual and fiduciary commitments to clients, and has not been the subject of a bankruptcy proceeding.
