4. Advisory Business

Harvest Financial Advisors, LLC provides “investment supervisory services” for our clients, which can include reviewing each client’s assets and liabilities, income, insurance programs, estate planning, and the nature and extent of their personal and family obligations.

When a client requests our services, they will complete an Advisory Agreement, Fee Schedule Agreement and Investment Policy Statement. We will then assist each client in establishing reasonable investment objectives defined by risk tolerance and rate of return expectations. Portfolio management services and accounts will be managed on a continuous and regular basis according to the client’s objectives. Planning services are typically part of the client advisory service, without an additional fee.

Advisory accounts may be managed on either a discretionary or non-discretionary basis.

HFA may suggest brokerage firms or trust departments for client custodial services. Harvest may suggest Charles Schwab, Fidelity, TD Ameritrade or J.P. Morgan Chase. When a client chooses a custodian, that custodial firm will provide disclosure documents to the client regarding the review and reporting of the account, the schedule of reviews and a separate discretionary document if applicable in addition to any documents required by HFA. Harvest will have in place an agreement between itself and any custodian the client may choose. HFA may block client trades. The allocation of these trades will follow the policy and procedures outlined in the Operations Manual of HFA.

The clients will ultimately choose the custody relationship. Each client can impose reasonable investment restrictions, in writing, on the management of the account.

Assets under management, as of December 31, 2020, are as follows:

	U. S. Dollar Amounts	Total Number of Accounts
Discretionary:	$290,934,326	833
Non- Discretionary:	$ 31,517,476	25
Total:	$322,451,802	858

Consulting Services

Advisory clients may also receive investment advice on a more limited basis; this may include advice on only an isolated area(s) of concern, such as estate planning, retirement planning, or any other specific topic. HFA may also provide specific consultation and administrative services regarding investment and financial concerns of the client in addition to the management of the client assets. Additionally, HFA may provide advice on non-securities matters. Mr. Henn, Mr. Burgdorf, Mr. Mason, and Ms. Dwyer may provide consultation regarding investment analysis, portfolio design, and risk analysis and security selection in client directed retirement accounts. The annual fee for consultation services will be a percentage of the market value of each individual account, and will be billed on a quarterly basis. This isolated consulting service will be provided to advisory clients only.

Seminars

HFA may from time to time conduct investment seminars during which various materials may be distributed to attendees. These seminars will be generic in nature and not be product specific. Generally, there is no charge for these seminars, however, HFA reserves the right to charge for attendance.

Newsletter

HFA may from time to time publish a newsletter or e-mail. The newsletter or e-mail will contain general economic, market, and world news events that may be of interest to clients or potential clients. The newsletter is sent to clients and friends of HFA. There is no charge, fee or other remuneration required in exchange for the publication. Recipients may opt out, with notice to HFA's principal office.

5. Fees and Compensation

The specific manner in which HFA charges fees is established in the client's written agreement with HFA. HFA will charge fees quarterly in advance. Clients may elect to be billed directly for the fees or to authorize HFA to directly debit fees from client accounts. If a client agrees to have fees withdrawn from a custodian account, the custodian will require that written authorization as well. A client may, in a written notice, request to be billed directly by HFA for fees. The professional advisory relationship may be terminated by either HFA or the client upon thirty (30) days' written notice and a pro-rata refund will be given. However, should the client terminate the agreement within five (5) business days of signing the contract, a full refund of any prepaid fees will be given. Fees may be negotiable at the discretion of the adviser, in certain circumstances.

Fee Schedule

*Below $500,000 incurs a minimum account fee of $5,000 per year

6. Performance-Based Fees and Side-By-Side Management

Harvest does not charge any performance-based fees and does no side-by-side management.

7. Types of Clients

Harvest offers its Advisory and/or Planning and/or Consulting services to individuals, trusts, estates, corporations, and other legal entities.

HFA requires a minimum account size of $500,000. HFA may waive this requirement in certain circumstances.

8. Methods of Analysis, Investment Strategies and Risk of Loss

HFA security analysis methods consist of charting, fundamental, technical and cyclical data review. HFA's sources of information are derived from financial newspapers and magazines, research material prepared by others, corporate rating services, annual reports, prospectuses, filings with the SEC, and company press releases. HFA may also have direct contact with mutual fund managers, analysts, traders and investment advisor conferences or meetings. HFA may also use information provided by vendors such as Morningstar, Y Charts, and Hidden Levers.

HFA may recommend equity securities including exchange-listed securities, securities traded over the counter, and foreign issuers. Also recommended may be warrants, corporate debt securities, commercial paper, certificates of deposit, municipal securities, investment company securities, mutual fund shares, and U.S. government securities. No securities products will be recommended in which HFA or Mr. Henn or any related person has any interest.

HFA implements investment strategies consisting of long-term purchases, short-term purchases and covered option writing (only if the client's risk tolerance and objectives are not compromised).

If applicable to a client objective, risk tolerance and investing time frame, HFA may on occasion recommend interests in real estate partnerships, oil and gas partnerships, and Real Estate Investment Trusts.

For each recommendation made to a client by HFA, the risks are outlined. No investment with any unusual or significant risk, apparent from HFA's due diligence will be recommended to an advisory client.

Clients may impose restrictions on investing in certain securities or types of securities.

HFA discloses to all clients that investing in securities involves risk of loss that clients should be prepared to bear.

9. Disciplinary Information

Harvest Financial Advisors and its principal employees (licensed or non-licensed) have no legal or disciplinary events that are material to a client's or prospective client's evaluation of the firm, the advisory business or the integrity of client asset management.

These events would include:

- a) A criminal or civil action in a domestic, foreign or military court of competent jurisdiction.
- b) An administrative proceeding before the SEC, any other federal regulatory agency, any state regulatory agency, or any foreign financial regulatory authority.
- c) A self-regulatory organization (SRO) proceeding.

10. Other Financial Industry Activities and Affiliations

Mr. Henn became licensed as an independent insurance agent in February of 2010. Clients of HFA may purchase insurance products from Mr. Henn if they so choose. Mr. Henn may sell insurance products from a variety of product sponsors, and as such Mr. Henn can affect transactions in insurance products and earn commissions for these activities from those various sponsors. Clients are informed that they are under no obligation to transact insurance business through Mr. Henn, in his capacity as a licensed insurance agent.

Any commissions earned from insurance sales are paid directly to Mr. Henn from the insurance product sponsors.

11. Code of Ethics, Participation or Interest in Client Transactions and Personal Trading

Harvest Financial Advisors, LLC has adopted a Code of Ethics for all supervised persons of the firm describing its high standard of business conduct, and fiduciary duty to its clients. The Code of Ethics includes provisions relating to the confidentiality of client information, a prohibition on insider trading, restriction on the acceptance of significant gifts and the reporting of certain gifts and business entertainment items, and personal securities trading procedures, among other things. All supervised persons of HFA must acknowledge the terms of the Code of Ethics annually or as amended.

Harvest Financial Advisors, LLC anticipates that, in appropriate circumstances with client's investment objectives, it may cause accounts over which HFA has management authority to affect, and will recommend to investment advisory clients or prospective clients, the purchase or sale of securities in which HFA, its affiliates and/or clients directly or indirectly, have a position of interest. HFA's employees and persons associated with HFA are required to follow HFA's Code of Ethics. Subject to satisfying this policy and applicable laws, officers, directors and employees of HFA and its affiliates may trade for their accounts in securities which are recommended to and/or purchase for HFA's clients.

Harvest Financial Advisors, LLC's clients or prospective clients may request a copy of the firm's Code of Ethics by contacting Mr. Marc Henn, at the principal office of the firm.

It is HFA's policy that the firm will not affect any principal or agency cross securities transactions for client accounts. HFA will also not cross trades between client accounts. Principal transactions are generally defined as transactions where an adviser, acting as principal for its own account or the account of an affiliated broker-dealer, buys from or sells any security to any advisory client. A principal transaction may also be deemed to have occurred if a security is crossed between an affiliated hedge fund and another client account. An agency cross transaction is defined as a transaction where a person acts as an investment adviser in relation to a transaction in which the investment adviser, or any person controlled by or under common control with the investment adviser, acts as broker for both the advisory client and for another person on the other side of the transaction. Agency cross transactions may arise where an adviser is dually registered as a broker-dealer or has an affiliated broker-dealer. HFA is not registered as a broker-dealer nor does it have an affiliated broker-dealer.

12. Brokerage Practices

HFA will suggest custodians to clients. HFA generally suggests that clients open a segregated investment account with Charles Schwab and Co or Fidelity. HFA understands that it has a fiduciary responsibility to obtain the best execution possible for client transactions. Charles Schwab and Fidelity have designated a team of professionals to the Advisor to help ensure prompt executions and thorough account support. Clients do not pay higher transaction costs for these services. In fact, with Schwab, clients of HFA may pay a lower transaction fee than Schwab's non-Advisor accounts and may have less restrictive holding periods on mutual funds.

Clients may be referred to various custodians, however, they are under no obligation or requirement to use any recommendation as the custodian.

HFA refers clients to custodians that it believes to be best suited to client need and those to whom it feels provides best executions for various services. HFA may obtain pricing tools such as software used to conduct technological links with Schwab, Fidelity, or other custodians for trading and research for no fees. The receipt of any services to HFA from a custodial party may create a conflict of interest. However these services are standard industry procedure in the custodial relationship and are not material to the choice of the broker-dealer, and Mr. Henn has conducted in-depth due diligence into the broker-dealers that he may suggest to an advisory client.

There are no soft dollar arrangement between HFA and any custodians. Any access to trading and research data will be used for the benefit of all client accounts. Services provided to HFA are those most often provided to Advisors using the recommended custodians and are not individually negotiated for HFA. HFA may place block trades for clients. Clients participating in any aggregated transactions will receive an average share price, and transaction costs will be shared equally and on a pro-rata basis.

HFA will not receive 12b-1 fees or compensate any solicitors.

These practices do not create a conflict of interest with the advisory practice of HFA.

13. Review of Accounts

All client accounts are reviewed on a regular basis to ensure the appropriate asset allocation, risk maintenance, and other prespecified parameters are adhered to and maintained. In addition, on a regular basis, client discussions are held to ensure that the current asset allocation, risk profile, and other parameters are still appropriate for the client. The securities in client accounts along with the economic, political and market trends are monitored on a regular basis. If portfolio adjustments are indicated because of changing developments in any of these areas, actions deemed necessary will be taken. Mr. Henn and/or Mr. Mason is responsible for overall economic and investment analysis including all purchases and sell decisions for securities. Mr. Henn, Mr. Burgdorf, Mr. Mason, and Ms. Dwyer are the client representatives and are responsible for monitoring accounts to ensure all pre-agreed parameters are followed.

Clients will receive from the selected custodian a trade confirmation for each security that is purchased or sold in their account. Most custodians send a monthly statement to each client when the account has activity in it, other than money market fund interest paid. If any account is inactive, statements are often sent on a quarterly basis. The frequency of review and reporting for client accounts will vary, depending on the custodian chosen. All details of the schedule for custodian/client relationships will be made in the disclosure documents provided to the clients upon opening the custodial account.

In addition to any custodial reports, a quarterly report will be prepared by Harvest Financial Advisors, LLC, which will include a complete list of securities held in the account. If Charles Schwab is chosen as the custodian, they will provide for each client with a taxable account, a Form 1099 Composite after the close of the calendar year. Other chosen custodians will disclose the types of additional reports that will be delivered to or will be available to clients, in the disclosure documents delivered at the time the custodial account is opened. Mr. Henn, Mr. Burgdorf, Mr. Mason, and Ms. Dwyer may also provide commentary to clients through newsletters or e-mails.

14. Client Referrals and Other Compensation

HFA receives no compensation for client referrals. It pays no individual or entities for client referrals. HFA has no soft dollar agreements. Any software, data, analysis or research are at no cost to the client and are not soft dollar compensated. Any material received by HFA is used for the benefit of all client accounts.

15. Custody

Clients will receive quarterly statements from HFA, as well as the chosen custodian that holds and maintains the client's investment assets. HFA urges clients to carefully review such statements and compare such official custodial records to the account statements provided by HFA. HFA statements may vary from custodial statements based on accounting procedures, reporting dates, or valuation methodologies of certain securities.

Rule 206(4)-2 of the Investment Advisors Act of 1940 (The Custody Rule) defines custody as when an advisor holds, "directly or indirectly, client funds or securities or [has] any authority to obtain possession of them." A qualified custodian maintains physical custody of these identified client assets. Clients should receive, at least quarterly, account statements directly from the broker dealer, bank or other qualified custodian that holds and maintains client's investment assets by e-mail or postal mailing, to the address the client has provided to the custodian and to Harvest Financial Advisors. Harvest urges clients to carefully review these custodian account statements promptly and compare official custodial records to the account statements that Harvest provides. While Harvest Financial Advisors does not take custody of client funds or securities in most accounts, Harvest is deemed to have custody of some specific client assets for a small number of client accounts. Harvest's statements may vary slightly from custodial statements due to pricing services differences or dates on which the prices are reported.

16. Investment Discretion

HFA may receive discretionary authority from the client at the outset of an advisory relationship to select the identity and amount of securities to be bought or sold. It is the practice of HFA to obtain from the client a limited power of attorney to act with discretion over the client accounts. In all cases, however, such discretion is to be exercised in a manner consistent with the stated investment objectives for the particular client account. Custodians will also receive the client's limited power of attorney.

When selecting securities and determining amounts, HFA observes the investment policies, limitations, and restrictions of the client for whom it advises.

Investment guidelines and restrictions must be provided to HFA in writing.

17. Voting Client Securities

HFA does have authority to vote proxies on behalf of advisory clients if the client so requests. Clients may obtain a copy of HFA's complete proxy voting policies and procedures upon request. Clients may also obtain information from HFA about how HFA voted any proxies on behalf of their accounts. HFA uses the Broadridge ProxyEdge system to record and archive all proxy voting information.

18. Financial Information

HFA does not require any prepayment of more than $1200 in fees per client, six months or more in advance.

Unaudited financials are kept by Harvest Financial Advisors, LLC.

Harvest Financial Advisors, LLC has no financial commitment that impairs its ability to meet contractual and fiduciary commitments to clients, and has not been the subject of a bankruptcy proceeding.
