Item 5: Fees and Compensation

A. Fee Schedule

Investment Supervisory Services Fees

The Maximum Allowable Annual Fee is 2% of the Account Value. RIA Advisory Group, LLC, uses a tiered fee structure to calculate fees. This means that the percentage for the highest range of asset value applies to all managed assets, not just managed assets within that range. Fees can be paid monthly, or quarterly, in arrears, and clients may terminate their contracts with written notice. Please refer to Appendix A of your Investment Advisory Agreement for your current fee schedule, method, and frequency of payment. Fee schedules cannot be changed without prior written consent from the client. These fees are negotiable. Refunds are not applicable for fees paid in arrears, and fees will accrue and are payable up to and including the date the agreement was terminated. Clients may terminate their contracts without penalty, for full refund, within 5 business days of signing the Investment Advisory Agreement. Advisory fees are withdrawn directly from the client's accounts with client written authorization (unless specified otherwise in the Investment Advisory Agreement).

In cases where Advisor fees are directly deducted, Advisor is required to a) Obtain client authorization, b) Send a copy of the invoice to the client (if requested) while the Investment Advisor directs invoice to the custodian for payment, c) Disclose that the custodian will send monthly/quarterly statements to the client wherein Advisor fees are itemized.

Financial Planning Fees

RIA Advisory Group does not offer fee based financial plans.

B. Payment of Fees

Payment of Investment Supervisory Fees

Advisory fees are withdrawn directly from the client's accounts with client written authorization. Unless specified otherwise in the Investment Advisory Agreement, or Appendix C of the Investment Advisory Agreement, fees are paid monthly/quarterly in arrears. If advisory fees are not withdrawn directly from the client's accounts, advisory fees may be invoiced/billed directly to the client with payments due on the 30th of the month following the end of the month billed. Clients may select the method in which they are billed.

C. Clients Are Responsible for Third Party Fees

Clients are responsible for the payment of all third-party fees (i.e., custodian fees, mutual fund fees, transaction fees, etc.). Those fees are separate and distinct from the fees and expenses charged by RIA Advisory Group. Please see Item 12 of this brochure regarding broker/custodian practices.

Item 8: Methods of Analysis, Investment Strategies, and Risk of Investment Loss

A. Methods of Analysis and Investment Strategies

Methods of Analysis

RIA Advisory Group's methods of analysis include charting analysis, fundamental analysis, and technical analysis.

Charting analysis involves the use of patterns in performance charts. RIA Advisory Group uses this technique to search for patterns used to help predict favorable conditions for buying and/or selling a security.

Fundamental analysis involves the analysis of financial statements, the general financial health of companies, and/or the analysis of management or competitive advantages.

Technical analysis involves the analysis of past market data; primarily price and volume.

Investment Strategies

RIA Advisory Group uses long term trading and short-term trading strategies.

Investing in securities involves a risk of loss that you, as a client, should be prepared to bear.

B. Material Risks Involved

Methods of Analysis

Charting analysis strategy involves using and comparing various charts to predict long and short term performance or market trends. The risk involved in solely using this method is that only past performance data is considered without using other methods to crosscheck data. Using charting analysis without other methods of analysis would be making the assumption that past performance will be indicative of future performance. This may not be the case.

Fundamental analysis concentrates on factors that determine a company's value and expected future earnings. This strategy would normally encourage equity purchases in stocks that are undervalued or priced below their perceived value. The risk assumed is that the market will fail to reach expectations of perceived value.

Technical analysis attempts to predict a future stock price or direction based on market trends. The assumption is that the market follows discernible patterns and if these patterns can be identified then a prediction can be made. The risk is that markets do not always follow patterns and relying solely on this method may not work longterm.

Investment Strategies

Long term trading is designed to capture market rates of both return and risk. Frequent trading, when done, can affect investment performance, particularly through increased brokerage and other transaction costs and taxes. Please see Item 12 of this brochure regarding broker/custodian practices.

Short term trading generally holds greater risk and clients should be aware that there is a chance of material risk of loss using any of those strategies.

Investing in securities involves a risk of loss that you, as a client, should be prepared to bear.

C. Risks of Specific Securities Utilized

RIA Advisory Group generally seeks investment strategies that do not involve significant or unusual risk beyond that of the general domestic and/or international equity markets. Our investment approach constantly keeps the risk of loss in mind. Clients face the following investment risks and should discuss these risks with RIA Advisory Group:

Interest-rate Risk: Fluctuations in interest rates may cause investment prices to fluctuate. For example, when interest rate rise, yields on existing bonds become less attractive, causing their market values to decline.

Market Risk: The price of a security, bond or mutual fund may drop in reaction to tangible and intangible events and conditions. This type of risk is caused by external factors independent of a security's particular underlying circumstances. For example, political, economic, and social conditions may trigger market events.

Inflation Risk: Inflation is the loss of purchasing power through a general rise in prices. If an investment portfolio is designed for current income with a real rate of return of 4% and inflation were to rise to 5% or higher, the account would result in a loss of purchasing power and create a negative real rate of return.

Currency Risk: Overseas investments are subject to fluctuations in the value of the dollar against the currency of the investment's originating country. This is also referred to as exchange rate risk.

Reinvestment Risk: This is the risk that future proceeds from the investments may have to be reinvested at a potentially lower rate of return (i.e., interest rate). This primarily relates to fixed income securities.

Business Risk: These risks are associated with a particular industry or a particular company within an industry. For example, oil-drilling companies depend on finding oil and then refining it, a lengthy process, before they can generate a profit. They carry a higher risk of profitability than an electric company which generates its income from a steady stream of customers who buy electricity no matter what the economic environment is like.

Liquidity Risk: Liquidity is the ability to readily convert an investment into cash. Generally, assets are more liquid if many traders are interested in a standardized product. For example, Treasury Bills are highly liquid, while real estate properties are not.

Financial Risk: Excessive borrowing to finance a businesses' operations increases the risk of profitability, because the company must meet the terms of its obligations in good times and bad. During periods of financial stress, the inability to meet loan obligations may result in bankruptcy and/or a declining market value.

Past performance is not a guarantee of future returns. Investing in securities involves a risk of loss that you, as a client, should be prepared to bear.

Item 9: Disciplinary Information

Item 12: Brokerage Practices

A. Factors Used to Select Custodians and/or Broker/Dealers

The Custodians, TD AMERITRADE Institutional, Division of TD AMERITRADE, Inc., member FINRA/SIPC/NFA (CRD # 5633) and Charles Schwab & Co., Inc., (CRD# 5393) member FINRA/SIPC were chosen based on their relatively low transaction fees and access to mutual funds and ETFs. RIA Advisory Group will never charge a premium or commission on transactions, beyond the actual cost imposed by the Custodians.

1. Research and Other Soft-Dollar Benefits

RIA Advisory Group does not receive research, products, or other services from its broker/dealer or another third-party in connection with client securities transactions ("soft dollar benefits"). There is no incentive for RIA Advisory Group to direct clients to any particular broker/dealer over other broker/dealers who offer the same services. The first consideration when recommending broker/dealers to clients is best execution. RIA Advisory Group always acts in the best interest of the client.

2. Brokerage for Client Referrals

RIA Advisory Group receives no referrals from a broker/dealer or third party in exchange for using that broker/dealer or third party.

3. Clients Directing Which Broker/Dealer/Custodian to Use

RIA Advisory Group allows clients to direct brokerage. RIA Advisory Group may be unable to achieve most favorable execution of client transactions if clients choose to direct brokerage. This may cost clients' money because without the ability to direct brokerage, RIA Advisory Group may not be able to aggregate orders to reduce transactions costs resulting in higher brokerage commissions and less favorable prices.

B. Aggregating (Block) Trading for Multiple Client Accounts

RIA Advisory Group maintains the ability to block trade purchases across accounts. While block trading may benefit clients by purchasing larger blocks in groups, we do not feel that the clients are at a disadvantage due to the best execution practices of our custodian.

Client accounts are reviewed monthly, quarterly, or annually by Mary Gibbons, CCO or Brian Vestal, Compliance Delegate and Managing Member. All accounts at RIA Advisory Group are assigned to these reviewers.

B. Factors That Will Trigger a Non-Periodic Review of Client Accounts
