Item 4: Advisory Business

A. Description of the Advisor Firm

Hayden Capital, LLC (“Hayden Capital”, “Hayden”, “Adviser”, “we”, “us” or the “Firm”) is a Limited Liability Company organized in the State of New York.

The firm was formed in July 2015, and the principal owner is Fred Liu.

B. Types of Advisory Services

Hayden Capital provides investment advisory services, also known as investment management services, to clients.

Hayden Capital offers discretionary direct asset management services to advisory clients, primarily through a separately managed account platform. We do not provide financial planning services and we do not advise in the selection of other investment advisers.

Our portfolio strategies may include investments in domestic and international common stocks, preferred stocks, investment-grade and non-investment grade corporate bonds, U.S. Government and agency securities, convertible securities, derivative securities, real estate investment trusts, commodity futures, structured instruments and open and closed-end investment companies. In this regard, Hayden Capital is not registered as a commodity pool operator or commodity trading advisor pursuant to the exemptions set forth, respectively in Regulations §§4.13(a)(3) and 4.14(a)(8) promulgated under the Commodity Exchange Act.

C. Client Tailored Services and Client Imposed Restrictions

While generally Hayden Capital does not tailor its portfolio management services to the individual needs of our clients, Hayden Capital will work with separate account clients to accommodate client-specific investment restrictions upon request.

Clients may impose restrictions in investing in certain securities or types of securities in accordance with their values or beliefs. However, if the restrictions prevent Hayden Capital from properly servicing the client account, or if the restrictions would require Hayden Capital to deviate from its standard suite of services, Hayden Capital reserves the right to end the relationship.

D. Wrap Fee Programs

A wrap fee program is an investment program where the investor pays one stated fee that includes management fees, transaction costs, fund expenses, and other administrative fees. Hayden Capital does not participate in any wrap fee programs.

E. Assets Under Management

As of April 30, 2021, Hayden Capital had approximately $60.5 million of assets under management. All client accounts are managed on a discretionary basis.

Item 5: Fees & Compensation

A. Fee Schedule

Asset-based Compensation

Hayden Capital offers discretionary direct investment management services to advisory clients. Hayden Capital charges an annual investment advisory fee according to the following tiered schedule:

Total Assets Under Management	Annualized Fee
$250,000 – And Up	1.50%
$1,000,000 – And Up	0.50% (With Performance Allocation)

Alternatively, clients who are “qualified clients” as such term is defined by Rule 205-3 under the Investment Advisers Act of 1940, may otherwise elect to participate in our fixed asset management fee + performance allocation above a pre-determined hurdle rate fee structure.

Qualified clients with $1 million and up invested with Hayden Capital, may elect to be charged a 0.50% annualized management fee along with a “performance allocation”. Refer to Item 6: Performance-Based Fees and Side-by-Side Management for additional details.

These fees are negotiable, at the sole discretion of Hayden Capital. Clients may terminate their account within five (5) business days of signing the Investment Advisory Agreement with no obligation. Thereafter, clients may terminate advisory services with thirty (30) days written notice.

B. Payment of Fees

Management Fee

Asset-based investment advisory fees are paid in arrears, and they are withdrawn directly from the client’s account each month with the client’s written authorization. The fee tier is based on the client’s previous quarter-end closing account value, including cash. Then, that fee percentage is used to compute fees daily based on NAV. The daily amounts are aggregated monthly and withdrawn from the client’s account at the end of the month.

Example of Management Fee Calculation

Assets under management at the close of the previous quarter = $500,000

- Puts this account in the 1.5% fee tier.

The daily fee is calculated as follows: $1.5\% \times (1/252 \text{ trading days in a year}) \times \text{daily NAV}$

At the end of the month, the aggregate total for every trading day of the month, is then withdrawn from the account and paid the management fee for the month.

Occasionally, clients may also elect to pay advisory fees separately, without being withdrawn directly from the client's accounts. These terms are subject to negotiation and the client's written authorization.

C. Client Responsibility for Third Party Fees

Clients are responsible for the payment of all third-party fees (i.e., custodian fees, brokerage fees, mutual fund fees, transaction fees, etc.). Those fees are separate and distinct from the fees and expenses charged by Hayden Capital. The Firm is not affiliated with any broker or custodian and does not receive, directly or indirectly, any of the third-party fees charged to you.

Upon the execution of the Investment Management Agreement, each client gives written consent to grant Hayden Capital the authority to select the qualified and independent Custodian. The client will promptly establish an account in (his/her/its) name at the Custodian designated by Hayden Capital.

For more details on the brokerage / custodian practices, see Item 12 of this brochure.

D. Outside Compensation for The Sale of Securities to Clients

Neither Hayden Capital nor its supervised persons accept any compensation for the sale of securities or other investment products, including asset-based sales charges or service fees from the sale of mutual funds.

Item 6: Performance-Based Fees and Side-By-Side Management

Hayden Capital does assess a performance-based fee in the form of the Performance Allocations. Performance Allocations are only assessed against the accounts of “qualified clients”, as such term is defined by Rule 205-3 under the Investment Advisers Act of 1940, and only for clients who elect the Performance Allocation fee structure.

With respect to clients who participate in our Performance Allocation structure, Hayden Capital receives an annual Performance Allocation in amount equal to 15% of net annual profits above a 5% "Hurdle Rate", and only to the extent that such appreciation causes the net asset value to exceed its high-water mark.

The hurdle rate is intended to be an annual return of 5% on the value of an investor’s investment, calculated as of the beginning of each year. To the extent that the Hurdle Rate and/or high-water mark are not achieved in any calendar year, Hayden Capital will not receive a Performance Allocation.

The high-water mark will be the highest value of the client’s account within the past 10 years (known as a 10 year “look back period”), after accounting for the client’s deposits or withdrawals for each billing period. Performance Allocations may be made at any time, in the sole discretion of Hayden Capital, for a client who makes a partial or complete withdrawal.

Profit is calculated by the amount increase (whether realized or unrealized), if any, in the net market value of the account in the preceding year, after deduction of all related expenses and commissions paid, including transactional costs (i.e., brokerage and custodial fees). The Performance Allocation is calculated with respect to each investor’s capital account and is assessed and deducted from each investor’s capital account at the end of each calendar year.

Where applicable, Performance Allocations are withdrawn directly from the client’s accounts with client’s written authorization, at the end of each calendar year.

Occasionally, clients may also elect to pay performance allocations separately, without being withdrawn directly from the client’s accounts. These terms are subject to negotiation and the client’s written authorization.

The receipt of performance-based compensation from certain accounts creates a conflict of interest. Hayden Capital can potentially receive higher compensation from these accounts, with their respective performance-based compensation structures, than from clients who elect a fixed asset management fee only structure, described in Item 5 above. For example, Hayden Capital may have an incentive to direct the best ideas to, or to allocate or sequence trades in favor of accounts who elect a Performance Allocation fee structure.

To manage these potential conflicts, Hayden Capital has trading policies and procedures designed to ensure that all clients are treated fairly and equally and to prevent a conflict from influencing the allocation of investment opportunities among clients, without regard to the fee structures for the firm's clients.

Item 7: Types of Clients

Hayden Capital generally provides investment advisory services to individuals, high net worth individuals, Qualified Clients (as defined below), trusts, estates, other investment advisers, charitable organizations, corporations, or business entities.

There is a relationship minimum of $250,000, which may be waived by Hayden Capital in its discretion.

In general, a “Qualified Client” is:

- (1) a natural person or company who at the time of entering into such agreement has at least $1,000,000 under the management of the investment adviser;
- (2) a natural person or company who the adviser reasonably believes at the time of entering into the contract: (A) has a net worth of jointly with his or her spouse of more than $2,200,000 excluding the value of the client’s primary residence; or (B) is a qualified purchaser as defined in the Investment Company Act of 1940; or
- (3) a natural person who at the time of entering into the contract is: (A) An executive officer, director, trustee, general partner, or person serving in similar capacity of the investment adviser; or (B) An employee of the investment adviser (other than an employee performing solely clerical, secretarial, or administrative functions with regard to the investment adviser), who, in connection with his or her regular functions or duties, participates in the investment activities of such investment adviser, provided that such employee has been performing such functions and duties for or on behalf of the investment adviser, or substantially similar function or duties for or on behalf of another company for at least 12 months.

Item 8: Methods of Analysis, Investment Strategies, and Risk of Loss

A. Methods of Analysis

Analysis methods may include fundamental research and financial analysis. Fundamental research and financial analysis involve evaluating a security using financial data such as company revenues, earnings, profit margins, leverage, and valuation metrics, to determine underlying value and potential growth.

The main sources of information include annual reports, earnings conference calls, prospectuses, third-party data software, and other filings with the Securities and Exchange Commission.

Investing in securities involves risk of loss that clients should be prepared to bear. Past performance is not a guarantee of future returns.

B. Investment Strategies

At Hayden Capital, we are fundamental investors. The primary focus is the long-term preservation of capital, while seeking to compound capital at above-average returns over a full market cycle. Hayden Capital invests across the market cap spectrum, seeking opportunities to purchase high-quality businesses at discounted valuations.

Hayden Capital follows a research-intensive, concentrated strategy which generally consists of 6-15 core positions. Additionally, portfolios may hold large cash positions and may use derivatives.

Our portfolio strategies may include investments in domestic and international common stocks, preferred stocks, investment-grade and non-investment grade corporate bonds, U.S. Government and agency securities, convertible securities, derivative securities, real estate investment trusts, commodity futures, structured instruments and open and closed-end investment companies.

C. Risks of Specific Securities Utilized

Clients should be aware that there is a material risk of loss using any investment strategy. The investments Hayden Capital makes are not guaranteed or insured by the FDIC or any other government agency. Different types of investments involve varying degrees of risk, and it should not be assumed that future performance of any specific investment or strategy will be profitable or equal to any specific performance levels.

The value of investments may fluctuate in response to specific situations for each company, industry conditions and the general economic environments.

Hayden's methods of analysis do not present any significant or unusual risks. To perform an accurate market analysis, we must have access to current/new market information. An accurate market analysis can only produce a forecast of the direction of market values. There can be no assurances that a forecasted change in market value will materialize into actionable and/or profitable investment opportunities.

Long-Term and Short-Term Strategies: Longer-term investment strategies require a longer investment time period to allow for the strategy to potentially develop. Shorter-term investment strategies require a shorter investment time period to potentially develop, but, as a result of more frequent trading, occasionally incur higher transactional costs when compared to longer-term investment strategies.

Equity Securities: Hayden invests in equity securities for client portfolios. The value of equities varies with the performance of the issuer and movements in the equity markets. A client may suffer losses if they invest in equity securities of issuers whose performance diverges from Hayden's expectations or if equity markets move in a certain direction.

Fixed Income Securities: Hayden invests in bonds and other fixed income securities. These debt instruments may be issued by corporations or issued and guaranteed by the U.S. government or one of its agencies. These securities may pay fixed, variable, or floating rates of interest. Fixed income securities are subject to the risk of the issuer's inability to meet principal and interest payments on its obligations and are subject to price volatility due to such factors as interest rate sensitivity, market perception of the creditworthiness of the issuer and general market liquidity. A major economic recession could severely disrupt the market for such securities and may have an adverse impact on the value of securities. In addition, any such economic downturn could adversely affect the ability of the issuers of such securities to repay principal and interest and increase the incidence of default for such securities.

Convertible Securities: Hayden invests in convertible securities, which are debt securities or preferred equity securities that are exchangeable for other debt or equity securities of the issuer at a predetermined price. Convertible securities entitle the holder to receive interest payments on corporate debt securities or dividend preference on preferred equity securities until such time as the convertible security matures or is redeemed or until the holder elects to exercise the conversion right. It is possible that the potential for appreciation on convertible securities will be less than that of a common stock equivalent. To the extent that convertible securities are rated lower than investment grade or not rated, there would be greater risk as to timely payment of the principal, interest or dividends on those securities.

International Securities: Securities issued by foreign entities involve risks not associated with U.S. investments. These risks include currency fluctuation, political and economic change, social unrest, changes in government regulation, differences in accounting and the lesser degree of accurate public information available.

Options: The purchase or sale of an option involves the payment or receipt of a premium by the investor and the corresponding right or obligation, as the case may be, to either purchase or sell the underlying security, commodity or other instrument for a specific price at a certain time or during a certain period. Purchasing options involves the risk that the underlying instrument will not change price in the manner expected, so the investor loses its premium (the amount paid to acquire the option). Selling options involves potentially greater risk because the investor is exposed to the extent of the actual price movement in the underlying security rather than only the premium payment received (which could result in a potentially unlimited loss). Over-the-counter options also involve counterparty solvency risk.

Past performance is not indicative of future results. Investing in securities involves a risk of loss that you, as a client, should be prepared to bear.

Neither Hayden Capital nor its representatives are engaged in relationships material to this Advisory Business or have any other possible conflicts of interests.

D. Selection of Other Advisers or Managers and How This Adviser is Compensated for Those Selections

Hayden Capital and its management do not recommend or select other investment advisers for its clients.

Item 11: Code of Ethics, Participation or Interest in Client Transactions and Personal Trading

A. Code of Ethics

Hayden Capital has a fiduciary duty to clients to act solely for the benefit of our clients. All personnel of Hayden Capital, including its managing member and employees, must put the interests of our clients before their own personal interests and must act honestly and fairly in all respects in dealings with clients.

In recognition of Hayden Capital's fiduciary duty to our clients and our desire to maintain high ethical standards, we have adopted a Code of Ethics. The Code of Ethics requires all owners and employees comply with all applicable federal and state securities laws and contains provisions designed to prevent improper personal trading, identify conflicts of interest and provide a means to resolve any actual or potential conflicts in favor of Hayden Capital's clients. Hayden Capital's Code of Ethics covers the following areas: personal accounts, restrictions on personal investing activities, preclearance of transactions in personal accounts, prohibitions on trading in securities on the restricted list, short sales, private placements, excessive trading, and acceptance of gifts from service providers, reporting of transactions, recordkeeping and oversight.

All prospective and current clients have a right to see our Code of Ethics at any time. For a copy of our Code of Ethics, please contact us directly at fred.liu@haydencapital.com.

B. Recommendations Involving Material Financial Interests

Hayden Capital does not recommend that clients buy or sell any security in which a related person to Hayden Capital or Hayden Capital has a material financial interest.

C. Investing Personal Money in The Same Securities as Clients

Hayden Capital believes in investing alongside its clients. For this reason, our managing member participates in the same investment strategies utilized by Hayden Capital for our clients.

The portfolio manager at Hayden Capital will always have a substantial portion of his net worth invested in the same portfolios as clients, sharing the same risks as well as rewards. This will help keep the firm's interests, and those of its clients, well-aligned.

D. Trading Securities At / Around the Same Time as Clients' Securities

Hayden Capital's trading platform allows individual accounts (but is under no obligation) to trade in an aggregate trading program. In aggregate trading, Hayden Capital purchases and/or sells the same securities at the same time for many or all of our accounts when possible. If more than one price is paid for securities in an aggregated transaction, each client in the aggregated transaction will typically receive the average price paid for the securities in the same aggregate transaction on that day. If the brokerage is unable to fill an aggregated transaction completely, but receives a partial fill of the aggregated transaction, the brokerage will normally allocate the partially filled transaction to clients based on an equitable pro rata basis.

Securities purchased through the aggregate trading program may only be sold in a transaction executed through the aggregate trading program. Hayden Capital, nor any of its employees, are allowed to directly purchase securities outside of this aggregate trading program.

Item 12: Brokerage Practices

A. Factors Used to Select Custodians and/or Broker / Dealers

Custodians / broker-dealers will be recommended based on Hayden Capital's duty to seek "best execution," which is the obligation to seek execution of securities transactions for a client on the most favorable terms for the client under the circumstances. Clients will not necessarily pay the lowest commission or commission equivalent, and Hayden Capital may also consider the market expertise and research access provided by the broker-dealer/custodian, including but not limited to access to written research, oral communication with analysts, admittance to research conferences and other resources provided by the brokers that may aid in Hayden Capital's research efforts. Hayden Capital will never charge a premium or commission on transactions, beyond the actual cost imposed by the broker-dealer/custodian.

Hayden Capital generally requires clients to use Interactive Brokers LLC.

Research and Other Soft Dollar Benefits

While Hayden Capital has no formal soft dollars program in which soft dollars are used to pay for third party services, Hayden Capital may receive research, products, or other services from custodians and broker-dealers in connection with client securities transactions ("soft dollar benefits"). The research and services are provided at no additional cost to Hayden Capital or its clients. Client commissions are not used to purchase such items. No special consideration is given to the Firm by any broker-dealer/custodian. These services are the same as those offered to any other institutional investment manager and have no correlation to the client or accounts managed.

Hayden Capital clients do not pay more for investment transactions and/or assets maintained at the broker-dealer/custodian as a result of this arrangement. There is no corresponding commitment made to invest any specific amount as a result of this arrangement.

Brokerage for Client Referrals

Hayden Capital receives no referrals from a broker-dealer or third party in exchange for using that broker-dealer or third party.

Clients Directing Which Broker/Dealer/Custodian to Use

To facilitate the ease of administration, Hayden Capital will typically require clients to use a specific broker-dealer to execute transactions. Not all advisers require clients to use a particular broker-dealer.

B. Aggregating (Block) Trading for Multiple Client Accounts

When Hayden Capital buys or sells the same securities on behalf of more than one client, then it may (but would be under no obligation to) aggregate or bunch such securities in a single transaction for multiple clients in order to seek more favorable prices, lower brokerage commissions, or more efficient execution. In such case, Hayden Capital would place an aggregate order with the broker on behalf of all such clients in order to ensure fairness for all clients; provided, however, that trades would be reviewed periodically to ensure that accounts are not systematically disadvantaged by this policy. Hayden Capital would determine the appropriate number of shares and select the appropriate brokers consistent with its duty to seek best execution, except for those accounts with specific brokerage direction (if any).

Item 13: Review of Accounts

A. Frequency and Nature of Periodic Reviews and Who Makes Those Reviews

All client accounts for Hayden Capital's advisory services provided on an ongoing basis are reviewed at least annually by Fred Liu, Managing Member, with regard to clients' respective investment policies and risk tolerance levels. All accounts at Hayden Capital are assigned to this reviewer.

B. Factors That Will Trigger a Non-Periodic Review of Client Accounts

Reviews may be triggered by material market, economic or political events, or by changes in client's financial situations (such as retirement, termination of employment, physical move, or inheritance).

C. Content and Frequency of Regular Reports Provided to Clients

Each client of Hayden Capital's advisory services provided on an ongoing basis will receive a quarterly report detailing the client's account, including assets held, asset value, and calculation of fees. This written report will come from the custodian. Hayden Capital will also provide at least semi-annually a separate written statement to the client.

Item 14: Client Referrals and Other Compensation

A. Economic Benefits Provided by Third Parties for Advice Rendered to Clients (Includes Sales Awards or Other Prizes)

Hayden Capital does not receive any economic benefit, directly or indirectly from any third party for advice rendered to Hayden Capital's clients.

B. Compensation to Non-Advisory Personnel for Client Referrals

Hayden Capital may pay referral fees to independent persons or firms ("Solicitors") for introducing clients to the Firm. Whenever Hayden Capital pays a referral fee, it requires the Solicitor to provide the prospective client with a copy of this document (Firm Brochure & Individual Disclosure Brochure) and a separate disclosure statement that includes the following information:

- (1) the Solicitor's name and relationship with the Firm;
- (2) the fact that the Solicitor is being paid a referral fee;
- (3) the amount of the fee; and
- (4) whether the fee paid to Hayden Capital by the client will be increased above its normal fees in order to compensate the Solicitor.

As a matter of Firm practice, advisory fees paid to us by clients referred by Solicitors are not increased as a result of any referral. Where applicable, cash payments for client solicitations will be structured to comply fully with the requirements of Rule 206(4)-3 under the Advisers Act, related SEC staff interpretations, and other applicable laws and regulations.

In addition, Hayden Capital has engaged certain firms to serve as third party placement agents for the Firm and these agents receive a portion of its Management Fees and Performance Allocations as compensation for their services. The fees Hayden Capital pays to its placement agents do not result in an increase in the Management Fees and Performance Allocations paid by its clients, and such clients do not pay fees to its placement agents directly.

Item 15: Custody

When advisory fees are deducted directly from client accounts at the client's custodian, Hayden Capital will be deemed to have limited custody of client's assets and must have written authorization from the client to do so. Clients will receive all account statements and billing invoices that are required in each jurisdiction, and they should carefully review those statements for accuracy.

Item 16: Investment Discretion

Hayden Capital provides discretionary investment advisory services to clients. The Investment Advisory Contract established with each client sets forth the discretionary authority for trading. Where investment discretion has been granted, Hayden Capital generally manages the client's account and makes investment decisions without consultation with the client as to when the securities are to be bought or sold for the account, the total amount of the securities to be bought/sold, what securities to buy or sell, or the price per share.

Item 17: Voting Client Securities (Proxy Voting)

Hayden Capital will not ask for, nor accept voting authority for client securities. Clients will receive proxies directly from the issuer of the security or the custodian. Clients should direct all proxy questions to the issuer of the security.

Item 18: Financial Information

A. Balance Sheet

Hayden Capital neither requires nor solicits prepayment of more than $1,200 in fees per client, six months or more in advance, and therefore is not required to include a balance sheet with this brochure.

B. Financial Conditions Reasonably Likely to Impair Ability to Meet Contractual Commitments to Clients

Neither Hayden Capital nor its management has any financial condition that is likely to reasonably impair Hayden Capital's ability to meet contractual commitments to clients.

C. Bankruptcy Petitions in Previous Ten Years

Hayden Capital has not been the subject of a bankruptcy petition in the last ten years.
