Item 4 - Advisory Business

Mortgage Industry Advisory Corporation (“MIAC” or the “Adviser”) is a Minnesota corporation incorporated in August 1989 with its principal office in New York, New York. The principal owners of MIAC are Robert Husted and Paul Van Valkenburg.

MIAC’s Secondary Services Group offers non-discretionary investment advisory services through two service offerings: Mortgage Pipeline Hedge Advisory and Mortgage Servicing Rights (MSR) Hedge Advisory services:

Pipeline Hedge Advisory Services:

MIAC provides comprehensive pipeline management and hedge advisory services customized for each client. MIAC specializes in hedging strategies related to newly originated mortgages or mortgage pools that are held by mortgage originators with the intent to sell them into the secondary market. MIAC provides end-to-end pipeline risk management services, advising and assisting clients on optimal hedging strategies to manage risk and position their portfolio for best executions in the secondary market space.

Utilizing MIAC’s MarketShield technology in conjunction with Fallout Analysis, Best Execution Analysis, Option Adjusted Spread Duration Calculation, and other analytical models, MIAC provides daily mark-to-market and pipeline attribute analysis to rebalance the portfolio for optimal hedging strategy within client-defined tolerance.

MIAC’s Secondary Solutions Group provides pipeline hedging advisory services on various types of mortgage loan products including but not limited to conventional, ARMs, and jumbos.

MSR Hedge Advisory Services:

MIAC’s Secondary Solutions Group also provides risk management and hedge advisory services for mortgage servicing rights (MSRs). MIAC utilizes option-adjusted spread (OAS), third party prepayment models (i.e., Bloomberg), internally developed prepayment models, in combination with other analytical tools to assess the optimal hedging strategy for the client’s MSR portfolio. Specializing in hedging strategies involving Interest Rate Swaps, Swaptions, Treasury Futures, Treasury Future Options, CMM’s, Eurodollars, Interest Rate Caps/Floors and Treasury Notes and Bonds, MIAC’s Secondary Solutions Group advises clients on rebalancing of their MSR portfolio to achieve the most favorable portfolio profile, taking into account the client’s risk tolerance and preferences.

MIAC’s relationship with its clients (each, a “Client”) is governed by a Statement of Work which is part of a Master Service Agreement (each, an “Agreement”). MIAC tailors services to its clients based on a Client’s risk tolerances and preferences as outlined in the Agreement.

MIAC does not participate in wrap fee programs.

As of December 31, 2021, MIAC had approximately $5,087,339,773 in regulatory assets under management on a non-discretionary basis on behalf of its Clients.

Item 5 - Fees and Compensation

MIAC utilizes a “fee-based” model only. Pursuant to the Agreements, MIAC charges clients a contractual fee for services rendered. The fee structure is dependent upon several factors, including but not limited to, level of servicing required, (professional services and software licenses) the size of the portfolio being managed, the complexity of the products being managed and other factors that are unique to each individual client's portfolio.

Pursuant to the Agreements, Clients are billed directly by MIAC on a monthly basis. MIAC's compensation is not portfolio (performance) or transaction based. MIAC does not have portfolio based compensation for its employees.

MIAC does not deduct fees from client assets.

MIAC does not charge clients for ancillary expenses.

MIAC does not require clients to pay any fees in advance.

Neither MIAC nor any of its supervised persons accepts compensation for the sale of securities or other investment products.

Item 6 – Performance Based Fees and Side-By-Side Management

Neither MIAC nor any of its supervised persons accept or manage accounts that are charged performance-based fees.

Item 7 - Types of Clients

The Adviser's clients generally consist of regulated depositories, mortgage originators, government entities, federal home loan banks and real estate investment trusts.

While the Adviser does not require any minimum account size requirement for Clients, its current smallest Client currently originates approximately $5 million of newly originated loans per month. In the Adviser's experience, prospective clients generally need to have a minimum net worth of $2 million in order to secure MBS trading accounts with broker-dealers.

Item 8 - Method of Analysis, Investment Strategies and Risk of Loss

RESIDENTIAL PIPELINE HEDGE ADVISORY SERVICE:

The Adviser provides comprehensive pipeline management and hedge advisory services tailored to meet the needs of its Clients. MIAC's team of highly-experienced capital markets and risk management professionals uses MIAC MarketShield technology to provide the precision and transparency necessary to reduce hedging risks and improve its Clients' secondary market execution. This approach utilizes an Option Adjusted Spread Duration calculation and pull through analysis, in conjunction with MIAC's Best Execution Analysis, which is powerful and concise in combination. The Adviser utilizes MIAC's term structure Libor Market Model, which has an industry-leading calibration process to enable highly accurate volatility-based asset pricing to perform our OAS analysis.

The single largest risk factor encountered is the interest rate lock commitments ("IRL") and understanding how they impact the risk profile of Clients. MIAC performs a comprehensive monthly loan fallout and pull-through analysis to optimize pipeline sensitivity measurement and reduce this risk.

Loans are hedged with Forward “TBA” mortgage backed securities and ultimately delivered into them, via the government-sponsored enterprises (“GSE’s”) or Mortgage Investors. Per a Client’s recommendations/consultation, MIAC establishes strict risk limits.

Operational Risks:

1. Changes to client’s risk limitations may not be communicated to MIAC timely, resulting in over/under hedging of a Client’s portfolio.
2. Incorrect loan data may result in incorrectly hedged risk.
3. Inaccurate information from market data source may lead to incorrectly hedged risk.

Market Risks:

1. Secondary market whole loan spreads in relation to hedges can change unexpectedly, leading to un-hedged risk and higher holding cost to a Client.
2. Durations of loans and hedges can fluctuate beyond the anticipated range, which may reduce hedge effectiveness.
3. Historical data used for Fallout Analysis may not adequately represent current client pipeline performance.

Regulatory Risks:

1. Major changes to government sponsored entity (Ginnie Mae, Fannie Mae, Freddie Mac) charter may impact the hedging options in the new origination and secondary markets.
2. New federal, state banking regulations, as well as accounting regulations, can impact established previously optimal hedging/business strategy.

Other Risks:

General Economic and Market Conditions. The success of MIAC’s activities will be affected by general economic and market conditions, such as interest rates, availability of credit, inflation rates, economic uncertainty, changes in laws and national and international political circumstances.

Compliance with Anti-Money Laundering Requirements. In response to increased regulatory concerns, MIAC may request Clients to provide additional documentation verifying, among other things, Client’s identity and source of funding. MIAC may be required to provide this information, or report the failure to comply with such requests, to appropriate governmental authorities, in certain circumstances without notifying Clients that the information has been provided. MIAC will take such steps as it determines are necessary to comply with applicable law, regulations, orders, directives or special measures.

No Independent Legal Counsel. Legal counsel for MIAC does not serve as counsel for or represent the interests of Clients, and such counsel disclaims any fiduciary or attorney-client relationship with Clients. The attorneys and certain other experts who perform services for MIAC and related entities and do not represent or perform services for Clients.

Cyber Security Risk. As the use of technology has become more prevalent in the course of business, the Adviser has become more susceptible to operational and financial risks associated with cyber security including, among other things, theft, loss, misuse, improper release, corruption and destruction of, or unauthorized access to, confidential or highly restricted data relating to a Client; and compromises or failures to systems, networks, devices and applications relating to the operations of the Adviser and its service providers. Cyber security breaches may involve unauthorized access to digital systems (e.g., through “hacking” or malicious software coding), or may also result from outside attacks such as denial-of-service attacks on websites (i.e., efforts to make network services unavailable to intended users).

Cyber-attacks affecting the Adviser may result in financial losses to the Adviser and its Clients; the inability of the Adviser to transact business with its Clients; delays or mistakes in the calculation of reporting items or other materials provided to Clients; violations of privacy and other laws; regulatory fines, penalties and reputational damage; and compliance and remediation costs, legal fees and other expenses. While measures have been developed which are designed to reduce the risks associated with cyber security, there are inherent limitations in such measures and there is no guarantee those measures will be effective, particularly since the Adviser does not directly control the cyber security measures of its service providers, financial intermediaries and companies in which it invests or with which it does business.

Effects of Health Crises and Other Catastrophic Events. Health crises, such as pandemic and epidemic diseases, as well as other catastrophes that interrupt the expected course of events, such as natural disasters, war or civil disturbance, acts of terrorism, power outages and other unforeseeable and external events, and the public response to or fear of such diseases or events, may have an adverse effect on Clients and the Adviser’s operations. Under such circumstances the operations, including functions such as trading and valuation, of the Adviser and other service providers could be reduced, delayed, suspended or otherwise disrupted. Further, the occurrence and pendency of such diseases or events could adversely affect the economies and financial markets either in specific countries or worldwide.

The outbreak of the COVID-19 pandemic led much of the world to institute stay-at-home orders, restrictions on travel, bans on public gatherings, the closing of non-essential businesses or limiting their hours of operation and other restrictions on businesses and their operations, which has adversely impacted global commercial activity and contributed to significant volatility and a downturn in global financial markets. While some of these restrictions are being relaxed or lifted in an effort to generate more economic activity, the risk of future COVID-19 outbreaks remains, and jurisdictions may reimpose restrictions in an effort to mitigate risks to public health. Moreover, even where restrictions are and remain lifted, the absence of viable treatment options or a vaccine could lead people to continue to self-isolate and not participate in the economy at pre-pandemic levels for a prolonged period of time. As a result, the ultimate adverse impact of the pandemic may be uncertain, but it has affected, and may further affect, the Adviser’s business in various ways, and will be significantly driven by a number of factors that the Adviser is unable to predict or control, including, for example: the severity and duration of the pandemic, including the timing of availability, effectiveness and public acceptance of one or more treatments or vaccines for COVID-19; the pandemic’s impact on the U.S. and global economies; the timing, scope and effectiveness of additional governmental responses to the pandemic; the timing and path of economic recovery; and the negative impact on the Clients, counterparties, vendors and other business partners that may materially adversely affect the Adviser.

Item 9 - Disciplinary Information

Neither MIAC nor any of its management persons have been involved in any criminal or civil actions in a domestic, foreign or military court.

Neither MIAC nor any of its management persons have been subject to an administrative proceeding before the SEC, any other federal regulatory agency, any state regulatory agency or any foreign financial regulatory authority.

Neither MIAC nor any of its management persons have been subject to a proceeding before any self-regulatory organization.

Item 10 - Other Financial Industry Activities and Affiliates

An affiliate of MIAC, MIAC Capital Markets LLC, is registered as a broker-dealer and is a member of FINRA.

Neither MIAC nor any of its affiliates are registered or have an application pending to register as a futures commission merchant, commodity pool operator, a commodity trading advisor, or an associated person of the foregoing entities.

Item 11 - Code of Ethics, Participation or Interest in Client Transactions and Personal Trading

Code of Ethics

MIAC has adopted a Code of Ethics (the “Code”) pursuant to Rule 204A-1 of the Advisers Act that establishes certain standards of conduct and rules for its employees and/or access persons (as applicable). A summary of the Code is provided below. All access persons of MIAC must acknowledge annually that they understand and agree to the terms of the Code.

The Code incorporates the following general principles that all employees are expected to uphold at all times:

- Employees must place the interest of clients first;
- Employees must conduct all personal securities transactions in a manner consistent with the Code and seek to avoid both actual conflicts of interest and the appearance thereof, and;
- Employees may not take advantage of their own positions with MIAC for their own personal benefit.

Personal Trading

The Code states that access persons are generally not permitted to purchase or sell publicly-traded securities for their own accounts or accounts that the access person controls or which the access person may be deemed to have beneficial ownership (such as an account of a spouse or minor child). MIAC believes that this prohibition mitigates the most likely conflict of interest that may arise from personal trading activity by generally prohibiting trading in securities that largely comprise the investable universe of MIAC’s Clients.

Access persons are permitted to buy and sell private securities (such as investments in hedge fund, private equity funds and private companies) and initial public offerings with prior approval. Access persons are also permitted to invest in public securities, mutual funds and U.S. and non-U.S. government issued obligations without prior approval. In addition, MIAC permits access persons to maintain accounts that are managed on a discretionary basis by a third party if the access person has no direct or indirect influence or control over the investments for the account.

Exceptions to the personal trading policy are handled on a case-by-case basis.

Gifts and Entertainment, Political Activities and Outside Activities

The Code provides that gifts and entertainment must be reasonable in light of industry best practices and should never be given or received if the purpose is to influence the recipient. MIAC requires access persons to report or receive approval for the receipt or giving of gifts and entertainment under certain circumstances.

The Code also generally requires access persons to obtain prior approval before the access person, a spouse or certain other immediate family members makes a political contribution or engages in certain campaign-related fundraising activities.

Finally, the Code provides that, without prior approval, access persons are generally not permitted to engage in certain types of outside business activities. This policy is intended to prevent material conflicts of interest that could arise from an access person's personal activities.

Participation or Interest in Client Transactions

MIAC, its principals and employees do not purchase or sell any securities for their own accounts to or from Clients.

Additional Considerations

From time to time, various potential and actual conflicts of interest may arise from the overall advisory, investment and other activities, partners and personnel in connection with client transactions. MIAC has established written policies and procedures, which contain procedures to monitor and resolve conflicts and will endeavor to resolve conflicts in a manner it deems equitable to the extent possible under the prevailing facts and circumstances.

Item 12 - Brokerage Practices

MIAC solely executes trades with a registered broker/dealer based on best execution. In accordance with MIAC's SOC I Type II report, the Adviser documents the cover price on each TBA Bid.

MIAC does not receive research or other products and services other than execution from a broker-dealer or third party in connection with client securities transactions.

MIAC does not consider, in selecting or recommending broker-dealers, whether MIAC or a related person receives client referrals from a broker-dealer or third party.

MIAC does not routinely recommend, request or require that a client direct MIAC to execute transactions through a specified broker-dealer.

MIAC executes hedges on behalf of its clients through a limited Special Non-Durable Power of Attorney. Trades are not aggregated, as the counterparty relationships are between each individual client and its approved broker-dealer. MIAC does not enter into any trade as counterparty.

Item 13 - Review of Accounts

MIAC reviews Client accounts twice a day for an accurate profit/loss, risk and data. These reports are reviewed by MIAC's management for accuracy before they are sent to the Client.

MIAC also produces reporting to customers that show how each asset is marked to market, so that the Client may have full oversight. In addition, through MIAC's attribution reports, Clients may evaluate their risk position and the effect of changing interest rates will have on it.

Item 14 - Client Referrals and Other Compensation

MIAC does not participate in any arrangement whereby a person who is not a Client provides an economic benefit to MIAC for providing investment advice or other advisory services to MIAC's clients.

From time to time, MIAC has referral agreements with other entities, whereby MIAC pays fees for the referral of prospects. This fee structure generally ranges from 1% to 10% of the gross revenue earned after a prospect becomes a client for a term of one year.

Item 15 - Custody

MIAC does not have custody of client funds or securities and therefore is not required to comply with the requirements of the Rule 206(4)-2 of the Advisers Act ("Custody Rule"). While MIAC is typically granted a Special Nondurable Power of Attorney (each, a "POA") by its Clients, these POAs only grant MIAC the authority to execute trades to buy and sell certain instruments for Client accounts and not additional authority which might otherwise result in MIAC being deemed to have custody over Client accounts.

Further, MIAC has engaged an independent public accountant to conduct a surprise two-year look back audit to provide independent verification of all client funds and securities for the past two years. MIAC expects that an independent public account will conduct a similar audit in subsequent calendar years.

Item 16 - Investment Discretion

While MIAC does not accept discretionary authority to manage securities accounts on behalf of Clients, Clients do typically grant MIAC a POA to execute trades to buy and sell certain instruments for Client accounts for hedging purposes. At the election of a Client, MIAC will include risk limits in the POA which it will adhere to daily in relation to a particular Client account.

Item 17 - Voting Client Securities

MIAC's investment strategy does not involve the acquisition of public securities with voting authority, so it is unlikely that Clients will be placed in a position of proxy voting authority.

Item 18 - Financial Information

Registered investment advisers are required in this Item to provide certain financial information or disclosures about the registered investment adviser's financial condition. The Adviser is not aware of any financial commitment that impairs its ability to meet contractual and fiduciary commitments to the Clients and has not been the subject of a bankruptcy proceeding. The Adviser does not require or solicit prepayment of more than $1,200 in fees for any Client, six months or more in advance, and therefore has not included a balance sheet.
