Item 8 Methods of Analysis, Investment Strategies and Risk of Loss

Item 8 Methods of Analysis, Investment Strategies and Risk of Loss

A. Equity investments are chosen based on fundamental analysis of factors that impact long-term potential growth as well as valuation. Investing in equities involves many risks that include but are not limited to stock market and interest rate risk. These have in the past and may in the future result in investment losses to client portfolios that are borne by the client.

The purchase and sale of securities generates a cost that we minimize to those transactions we feel are necessary to take advantage of long-term investing opportunities and manage risk in our portfolios.

Fixed income investments are generally purchased and held to maturity. We do not predict short-term changes in interest rates and do not invest on that basis.

B. Purchases and sales of securities for multiple clients at one time are aggregated whenever we have made an investment decision to expand or reduce the size of an investment for any group(s) of clients based on their risk tolerance and asset allocation preferences. We do this with the goal of increasing investing efficiency and achieving the best possible execution that is the same for all of our clients.

Performance is calculated after fees for both an Internal Rate of Return and a Time Weighted Rate of Return and these are compared to the total return of relevant index benchmarks like the Russell 3000, the S&P 500 and Barclays fixed income indices. The firm prefers to present this report in person but will mail a copy of the report to the client if the client prefers.
