ITEM 4. ADVISORY BUSINESS

A. Advisory Firm Description

Chambers Energy Management, LP (“CEM”) has been in business since March 27, 2009. The principal owner is J. Robert Chambers. As used in this brochure, “we,” “us” and “our” refer to CEM and its investment advisory business, including CEM’s affiliates that serve as general partners of CEM’s clients. CEM is a registered investment adviser and the affiliated general partners are each registered as an investment adviser under the Investment Advisers Act of 1940, as amended (the “Advisers Act”).

B. Types of Advisory Services

CEM provides portfolio management to affiliated private equity funds (collectively referred to herein as the “Funds”) making credit and related investments in the energy sector. These Funds include Chambers Energy Capital II, LP and Chambers Energy Capital II TE, LP (collectively, “Fund II”), Chambers Energy Capital III, LP (“Fund III”), and Chambers Energy Capital IV, LP (“Fund IV”). CEM has provided, and may in the future also provide (or agree to provide), certain investors or other persons the opportunity to participate in co-invest vehicles that will invest in certain portfolio companies alongside a Fund. Such co-invest vehicles would be expected to invest and dispose of their investments in the applicable portfolio company at substantially the same time and on substantially the same terms as the Fund making the investment. Allowing any co-investment generally reduces the amount of the relevant investment opportunity that theoretically could have been taken by the relevant Fund, and because co-invest opportunities generally appeal to Fund investors, CEM expects to be subject to conflicts of interest in determining the amount of investment opportunity that should be allocated to the relevant Fund.

The Funds are exempt from registration as “investment companies” under the Investment Company Act of 1940, as amended (the “Investment Company Act”), and the regulations promulgated thereunder. Interests in the Funds are offered only to qualified investors satisfying the applicable eligibility and suitability requirements in private placement transactions globally. Investors in the Funds are typically institutional investors and eligible high-net-worth individuals. The relationship between CEM and each Fund is governed by the Advisers Act as well as the governing documents of each Fund and the terms of investment advisory agreements executed between CEM and each Fund.

C. Tailored Advisory Services

CEM tailors its advisory services to the investment strategies, specific terms and conditions of the Funds, as described in the private placement memoranda, limited partnership agreements, and other governing agreements of each Fund. Investors in the Funds (generally referred to herein as “investors” or “limited partners”) are generally expected to participate in the overall investment program for the applicable Fund, although they may be excused from a particular investment due to legal, regulatory or other applicable constraints.

These documents may include restrictions on investing in certain instruments or types of assets or debt, including concentration limits and geographical restrictions. CEM has entered, and may in the future enter, into side letters or other similar agreements with certain Fund investors that have the effect of establishing rights under, supplementing or altering a Fund’s limited partnership agreement or a Fund investor’s subscription agreement. Such rights or alterations may relate to economic terms, fee structures or arrangements, excuse rights, information rights, co-investment rights, or transfer rights. Certain such additional rights, terms or conditions may be elected by certain sizeable investors with “most favored nations” rights pursuant to such side letters. Side letters may also relate to strategic relationships under which an investor agrees to make commitments to multiple Funds. Except where required by governing documents, other investors will not receive copies of side letters or related provisions, and as a general matter, the other investors have no recourse against a Fund, CEM, the relevant general partner or any of their affiliates in the event that certain investors have received additional and/or different rights and/or terms as a result of such side letters. Side letters subject CEM to potential conflicts of interest, including in circumstances where an investor’s right to serve on the relevant Fund’s advisory committee results in the investor receiving additional information relative to other investors. To the extent an investor is subject to statutory or other limitations on indemnification, or otherwise negotiates rights relating thereto, other investors may be subject to increased losses, or be required to bear an increased portion of indemnification amounts. Please refer to each specific Fund’s private placement memorandum and/or other offering materials for specific information regarding such Fund.

D. Wrap Fee Programs

No wrap fee programs are currently in place.

E. Client Assets Under Management

As of December 31, 2022, CEM had approximately $1.72 billion of discretionary assets under management. As of December 31, 2022, CEM did not manage any assets on a non-discretionary basis.

ITEM 5. FEES AND COMPENSATION

A. Fees

This brochure will be delivered only to “qualified purchasers” as defined in the Investment Company Act. CEM receives compensation generally through two sources: a management fee, payable regularly by the Funds as a fixed percentage fee, and “carried interest,” a performance allocation due to CEM from successful investments made by the Funds, as further described below.

B. How Fees Are Billed

Fund II and Fund III generally pay CEM a quarterly management fee in advance, at the annual rate of 0.25% - 1.5% of the value of each of each limited partner’s capital commitment to the Funds (during the investment period of a given Fund) or pro rata share of “assets under management” (lower of adjusted cost or fair market value) by such Fund (subsequent to that period), provided that for purposes of the calculation of management fees, the assets under management will not be deemed to exceed the value of the capital commitments.

CEM elected to lower Fund II’s quarterly management fee from 1.5% to 0.25%, effective as of January 1, 2021.

Fund IV pays CEM a quarterly management fee in advance at the annual rate of 1.5% of the adjusted cost of each unrealized investment made by Fund IV, and will in no event exceed 1.5% per annum of the value of the capital commitments to Fund IV.

All management fees are paid by the limited partners of each Fund, pro rata, into such Fund's bank account upon a capital call request made by the Fund's third-party administrator; the requested management fee amounts are based on a capital call calculation submitted by the Fund to the administrator and then confirmed. Once the management fee amounts are received into the Fund's bank account from the limited partners, the management fee is then transferred to CEM's operating account pursuant to a multi-step testing and approval process. Generally, fees are not negotiable – but see Item 10(C), Material Relationships, regarding the Reservoir fee arrangement. Except as otherwise described in the applicable limited partnership agreement, expenses and investment advisory and other fees are expected to be paid over the term of the applicable Fund and investors generally are not permitted to withdraw or redeem interests in such Fund.

“Carried interest” or performance allocations are assessed periodically according to each Fund's governing documents, and in the discretion of the general partner or control vehicle of the applicable Fund. The rate paid is typically 20% of profits of the Fund after meeting certain thresholds. These fees are paid out of cash otherwise distributable to investors, such as the receipt of proceeds from a portfolio investment. See Item 6 for further information.

CEM employees who are investors in Funds do not pay the management fee or carried interest allocations, and investors affiliated with Reservoir pay a reduced management fee and carried interest allocation. See Item 10(C) for further information regarding the Reservoir relationship.

The information provided in this Item 5 is general in nature. Actual terms of a particular Fund may differ. Investors should refer to the offering documents of each Fund in which it has invested for specific details.

C. Other Fees and Expenses

In addition to management fees and performance allocations (which are discussed in Items 5(A) and 5(B) above), each Fund pays, or reimburses its general partner, CEM, or its affiliates, for all costs and expenses of the Fund and the general partner, CEM, and its affiliates (except for certain overhead costs of the general partner and CEM), as set forth in the offering documents of such Fund:¹

- organizational and offering expenses of the Fund, which are be subject to maximum amounts stated in the applicable offering documents and particular terms as to the payment of expenses in excess of these maximums;
- all cost and expenses incurred in connection with maintaining the existence of, winding-up and liquidating the Fund and all costs and expenses associated with any organization and operation of any alternative investment vehicle or parallel fund;

¹ The following list of cost and expenses are for illustrative purposes only; the exact nature and type of these costs and expenses may vary between Funds. Fund investors are encouraged to review the definition of “Fund Expenses” and other related provisions set forth in the applicable Fund's amended and restated limited partnership agreement and related offering documents for further detail and information regarding costs and expenses and the allocation, payment, and reimbursement thereof.

- the fees and expenses of outside counsel, consultants, accountants, administrators, custodians, advisors, and other outside professionals, including, without limitation, all audit, certification, appraisal, banking and investment banking fees and all fees and expenses associated with the preparation and filing (as applicable) of the financial statements, valuations, tax returns and Schedule K-1s of the Fund and any expenses incurred or paid by the tax matters partner;
- all fees, costs and expenses not reimbursed by portfolio companies, sellers or other third parties incurred in connection with the sourcing, investigation, identification, analysis, development, pursuit, negotiation, structuring, making, trading, settling, monitoring, purchasing, holding, management, sale, proposed sale or other disposition of any actual or proposed Fund investment (including, without limitation, travel and due diligence expenses), regardless of whether such investments are ultimately consummated;
- private placement fees, brokerage fees, commissions, custody expenses, bank service fees, other investment fees, costs and expenses, break-up fees and other similar expenses, interest, fees and any other obligations or expenses arising out of any borrowings or other indebtedness, including, without limitation, the arranging thereof;
- financing fees, out-of-pocket expenses of reporting to limited partners (including the costs of printing and distributing reports to investors), any taxes imposed on the Fund, fees or other governmental charges levied against the Fund or on its income or assets or in connection with its business or operations and all expenses incurred in connection with any tax audit, investigation, settlement or review of the Fund;
- costs and expenses of any meetings of partners, including the annual meeting, and the advisory committee members (including legal, travel and other advisory expenses of each Fund's advisory committee);
- the costs of prosecuting any legal action for or on behalf of, or defending any legal action against, the Fund, its affiliates or portfolio companies, the cost of any litigation, D&O liability or other insurance, and any indemnification or extraordinary expense or liability relating to the affairs of the Fund; and
- fees and expenses of placement agents (which fees and expenses are offset dollar-for-dollar against management fees).

Given the nature of the Funds' overall investment program, CEM generally conducts transactions on an originated and negotiated basis, but may periodically transact through broker-dealers or other intermediaries on behalf of the Funds. In such instances, investors in the Funds generally bear brokerage costs indirectly through a security's trading price and not as a separate transaction fee. See Item 12 regarding a discussion of CEM's brokerage practices.

To the extent any expenses may be reasonably allocable to more than one Fund, CEM will generally allocate such expenses among the applicable Funds in a manner it believes is equitable as determined in its good faith and in accordance with the provisions of any applicable governing documents.

D. Refunds

Upon termination of the investment advisory agreement with a Fund, CEM will return to such Fund any paid but unearned portion of the management fee. In general, such fees are pro-rated from the date of termination to the end of the period to which the advanced fee applied.

E. Compensation for Sale of Securities

Neither CEM nor its supervised persons accept compensation for the sale of securities or other investment products. CEM or its affiliates, however, generally receive certain fees in connection with the purchase, monitoring or disposition of Fund investments or in connection with un consummated transactions, such as break-up, monitoring, directors', organizational, set-up, advisory, investment banking, underwriting, syndication and other similar fees. Any such fees, when received, are offset dollar-for-dollar against the management fees otherwise payable by investors in the Funds, pursuant to the governing documents of the relevant Fund.

ITEM 6. PERFORMANCE-BASED FEES AND SIDE-BY-SIDE MANAGEMENT

In some situations, an affiliate of CEM will charge a performance allocation or similar compensation mechanism (e.g., "carried interest," which is subject to a clawback obligation under the limited partnership agreement of the applicable Fund). All such performance allocation arrangements are intended to comply with Rule 205-3 under the Advisers Act. These fees are paid from cash otherwise distributable to the applicable Fund, such as proceeds received from a portfolio investment of such Fund. See Item 5(B) above. Carried interest is negotiated separately for each Fund.

Performance allocation arrangements create an incentive to favor higher fee-paying accounts over other accounts in the allocation of investment opportunities. However, CEM follows procedures designed to procure the fair treatment of all Funds in the allocation of investment opportunities, and to prevent this potential conflict of interest from influencing the allocation of investment opportunities among or between Funds. CEM is not currently managing portfolios paying performance allocations side-by-side with those not paying such allocations, although it has the right to do so. CEM generally expects that any co-investment vehicles formed to invest alongside a Fund will not be subject to carried interest. CEM believes these arrangements do not generally create conflicts, since a co-investment vehicle's ability to invest in a transaction would be subject to the governing documents of the applicable Fund, and such vehicles generally would be required to acquire and dispose of securities on substantially the same terms and timing as the applicable Fund.

Although CEM has a similar fee structure for all investment partnerships, certain strategic and/or affiliated limited partners are charged discounted fees.² CEM does not allocate investments among Funds based on the potential of CEM and its affiliates to earn carried interest.

CEM investment allocations are documented as part of our regular investment processes, and allocation decisions take into consideration a variety of factors, including the size of the investment opportunity, the capital available for investment by each Fund, the sharing rules set forth in the applicable governing agreements, and the terms of the governing documents of the applicable

² See Item 10(c), Material Relationships, for further information regarding the Reservoir relationship, and see Item 5(B), How Fees Are Billed, for further information regarding fees paid by CEM employees.

Funds. Under no circumstances may CEM or any of its affiliates allocate investment opportunities based on anticipated compensation or profits to CEM or any of its affiliates or employees.

ITEM 7. TYPES OF CLIENTS

CEM provides investment management services solely for private investment funds it sponsors and raises in private placements conducted pursuant to applicable federal securities laws and regulations.

The Funds have a minimum initial capital commitment of $10,000,000, although investments of a lesser amount have been and may be accepted in the discretion of the applicable Fund's general partner, provided that the acceptance of any such lesser amount will comply with the provisions of Rule 205-3 of the Advisers Act. CEM offers interests in the Funds only to qualified purchasers, as defined under the Investment Company Act and guidance related thereto, with certain CEM employees also participating in the Funds.

ITEM 8. METHODS OF ANALYSIS, INVESTMENT STRATEGIES AND RISK OF LOSS

The Funds' primary investment objectives are to seek to achieve current income and long-term capital appreciation, while emphasizing credit protection and risk mitigation, by taking advantage of credit investment opportunities within the energy sector. Such opportunities are predominately debt instruments, but may also be private equity, distressed company securities, or other structured energy interests. Specifically, the Funds generally originate new loans to energy companies or invest in existing bonds and loans of distressed energy companies where CEM believes similarly attractive risk-adjusted returns can be generated.

CEM cannot guarantee the future performance of any Fund or any specific level of performance, or the performance of any investment decision or strategy that CEM may use. Investing in complex financial instruments may entail the loss of an investor's entire investment, which the investor must be willing and qualified to bear.

Investment decisions that CEM makes for the Funds are subject to various credit, market, currency, economic, political and business risks. Making large commitments to single companies exacerbates these risks. Additionally, purchasing investments with leverage increases the risk of losses to Fund investors. CEM manages these risks by setting limits to leverage and concentration. These limits are monitored on an investment-by-investment basis.

Specific risks of the Funds' investment strategy and types of investment generally include the following items. For more complete details, please refer to the appropriate Fund governing documents, including the private placement memoranda and limited partnership agreements.

Potential for Insufficient Investment Opportunities. The activity of identifying, completing and realizing attractive investments for the Funds is highly competitive and involves a high degree of uncertainty. The availability of investment opportunities generally will be subject to market conditions. The Funds compete for investments with other investors, including companies, public equity markets, individuals, financial institutions, and private investment funds. Additional funds with similar objectives may be formed in the future by other unrelated parties. Competition for appropriate investment opportunities may increase, thus reducing the number of investment opportunities available to the Funds and adversely affecting the terms upon which investments can be made. There can be no assurance that any of the Funds will be able to locate, consummate and exit investments that satisfy such Fund's return objectives or realize their values, or that the Funds will be able to invest fully their committed capital.

Environmental, Social and Governance ("ESG") Matters. CEM maintains an ESG policy and seeks to integrate certain ESG factors into its investment process in accordance with its policy and subject to its fiduciary duty and any applicable legal, regulatory or contractual requirements. There is no guarantee that CEM will be able successfully to implement its ESG policy or to make investments in companies that create a positive ESG impact while achieving its investment strategy. In addition, applying ESG factors to investment decisions is qualitative and subjective by nature, and there is no guarantee that the criteria utilized by CEM, or any judgment exercised by CEM, will reflect the beliefs or values of any particular investor. There are also significant differences in interpretations of what positive ESG characteristics mean by region, industry and topic. CEM's interpretations and decisions are expected to differ from others' views and could also evolve over time. In addition, in evaluating an investment, CEM expects to depend upon information and data provided by a number of sources, including the relevant investments and/or various reporting sources which could be incomplete, inaccurate or unavailable, and which could cause CEM to incorrectly assess a company's ESG practices and/or related risks and opportunities. CEM does not intend independently to verify all ESG information reported by investments or third parties. Further, considering ESG qualities when evaluating an investment could result in the selection or exclusion of certain investments based on CEM's view of certain ESG-related and other factors and could cause the relevant Funds not to make an investment that they would have made or to make a management decision with respect to an investment differently than they would have made in the absence of the ESG policy, which could negatively impact CEM's performance. For avoidance of doubt, however, CEM does not expect to subordinate a Fund's investment returns or increase a Fund's investment risks as a result of (or in connection with) the consideration of any ESG factors.

Further, ESG practices are evolving rapidly and there are different principles, frameworks, methodologies, and tracking tools being implemented by other asset managers, and CEM's adoption and adherence to various such principles, frameworks, methodologies and tools is expected to vary over time. There is also a growing regulatory interest across jurisdictions in improving transparency regarding the definition, measurement and disclosure of ESG factors. CEM's ESG practices and policies could become subject to additional regulation in the future, and CEM cannot guarantee that its current approach will meet future regulatory requirements.

Concentration of Investments. The Funds generally seek to diversify their investment portfolios in a manner consistent with their investment objectives and strategy. However, each Fund may participate in a limited number of investments, and thus the aggregate return of such Fund may be substantially adversely affected by the unfavorable performance of even a single investment.

Impact of Government Regulation, Reimbursement and Reform. The SEC has indicated that it intends to seek to enact changes to numerous areas of law and regulations that would impact the business of CEM and the Funds. In particular, the SEC has signaled an increased emphasis on investment adviser and private fund regulation and has proposed a number of new rules that, if adopted, would impose significant changes on private fund advisers and their management of private funds, and the SEC is expected to propose additional changes in the future. Any such changes are expected to materially impact CEM and its affiliates, the Fund and/or its investments, as well as increasing their expenses. Significant time and resources may be required to comply with new regulations, which potentially will detract from the time and resources dedicated to the Fund.

Russia-Ukraine Conflict. There is currently an ongoing military conflict between Russia and the Ukraine which, in a relatively short period of time, has caused disruption to global financial systems, trade and transport, among other things. In response, multiple other countries have put in place global sanctions and other severe restrictions or prohibitions on the activities of individuals and businesses connected to Russia. However, the ultimate impact of the Russia-Ukraine conflict and its effect on global economic and commercial activity and conditions, and on the operations, financial condition and performance of the Funds or any particular industry, business or investee country and the duration and severity of those effects, is impossible to predict.

The Russia-Ukraine conflict may have a significant adverse impact and result in significant losses to the Funds. This impact may include reductions in revenue and growth, unexpected operational losses and liabilities and reductions in the availability of capital. It may also limit the ability of a Fund to source, diligence and execute new investments and to manage, finance and exit investments in the future. Developing and further governmental actions (military or otherwise) may cause additional disruption and constrain or alter existing financial, legal and regulatory frameworks and systems in ways that are adverse to the investment strategy which any Fund intends to pursue, all of which could adversely affect the Fund's ability to fulfill its investment objectives.

Investments with Terms Longer than the Fund. A Fund may make investments that may not be advantageously disposed of prior to the date such Fund will be dissolved, either by expiration of the Fund's term or otherwise. Although CEM generally expects that investments will be disposed of prior to a Fund's dissolution, or be suitable for in-kind distribution at dissolution, the general partner of the given Fund has a limited ability to extend the term of the Fund, and the Fund may have to sell, distribute or otherwise dispose of investments at disadvantageous terms as a result of dissolution.

Global Economic Conditions; Market Dislocation. General economic conditions may affect the Funds' activities. Interest rates, general levels of economic activity, fluctuations in the market prices of securities, and participation by other investors in the financial markets may affect the value of investments made by the Funds. Events in significant sectors of the fixed income markets have caused and could cause significant dislocations, illiquidity and volatility in the structured credit, leveraged loan and high-yield bond markets, as well as in the wider global financial markets. To the extent that the Funds' portfolio companies participate in such markets, the results of their operations may suffer. In addition, marketplace events could have an adverse impact on the availability of credit to businesses generally and could lead to an overall weakening of the U.S. and global economies. Any resulting economic downturn could adversely affect the financial resources of the Funds' portfolio companies and their ability to make principal and interest payments on, or refinance, outstanding debt when due. In the event of such defaults, the Funds could lose both invested capital in, and anticipated profits from, such portfolio companies.

In addition, current economic conditions may materially and adversely affect (i) the ability or willingness of certain counterparties to do business with the Funds or their investment affiliates; (ii) the Funds' exposure to the credit risk of others in their dealings with various counterparties (for example, in connection with joint ventures or the maintenance with financial institutions of reserves in cash or cash equivalents); (iii) demand for the products and services offered by the Funds' portfolio companies; (iv) growth opportunities for the Funds' investments; (v) the Funds' ability to exit its investments at desired times, on favorable terms or at all; (vi) availability of reliable insurance on favorable terms or at all; and (vii) the ability of the Funds' investors to meet their obligations to the Funds in a timely manner or at all.

Risks of Investment in the Energy Industry. The companies of investment interest to CEM and its Funds are sensitive to fluctuations in commodities supply and demand, interest rates, special risks of constructing and operating facilities, lack of control over pricing, merger and acquisition activity and regulation. Such fluctuations may, among other things, increase compliance costs and other costs of doing business. Furthermore, the energy markets may be subject to short-term volatility due to a variety of factors, including weather, international political and economic developments, breakdowns in the facilities for the production, storage or transport of energy and energy-related products, acts of terrorism, changes in government regulation and sudden changes in fuel prices. The Funds may be affected to a greater extent by any of these developments than would be the case with a more diversified portfolio of investments.

Volatility of Oil and Natural Gas Prices; Energy Price Trends. The performance of investments made on behalf of the Funds may be substantially dependent upon prevailing prices of oil and natural gas. Historically, the markets for oil and natural gas have been volatile, and such markets are likely to continue to be volatile in the future. Prices for oil and natural gas are subject to wide fluctuation in response to relatively minor supply-and-demand changes for oil and natural gas, market uncertainty, speculation and a variety of additional factors that are beyond the control of CEM or the Funds. These factors include the level of consumer product demand, the refining capacity of oil purchasers, weather conditions, domestic and foreign governmental regulations, the price and availability of alternative fuels, political conditions in the Middle East, actions of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC), the foreign supply of oil and natural gas, the price of foreign imports and overall economic conditions.

Drilling, Exploration and Development Risks. The Funds may invest in businesses that engage in oil and gas exploration and development, a speculative business involving a high degree of risk and the use of new technologies. Oil and gas drilling and fracturing may involve unprofitable efforts, not only from dry holes, but from wells that are productive but do not produce sufficient net revenues to return a profit after drilling, operating and other costs. Acquiring, developing and exploring for oil and natural gas involves many risks. These risks include encountering unexpected formations or pressures, premature declines of reservoirs, blow-outs, equipment failures and other accidents in completing wells and otherwise, cratering, sour gas releases, uncontrollable flows of oil, natural gas or well fluids, adverse weather conditions, pollution, fires, spills and other environmental risks. In addition, in making such investments, a Fund must rely on estimates of oil and gas reserves. The process of estimating oil and gas reserves is complex, requiring significant decisions and assumptions in the evaluation of available geological, geophysical, engineering and economic data for each reservoir. As a result, such estimates are inherently imprecise.

Regulation of Greenhouse Gases. Both in the United States and globally, emissions of greenhouse gases ("GHGs") are increasingly regarded as linked to global climate change; this may lead to more stringent regulation of GHGs in the future. Increased public concern and mounting political pressure may result in more federal, state or international requirements to reduce or mitigate the effects of GHGs. Any such future laws and regulations imposing reporting obligations on, or limiting emissions of GHGs from, a portfolio company's equipment and operations could require it to incur costs to reduce emissions of GHGs associated with its operations. Substantial limitations on GHG emissions could also adversely affect demand for oil and natural gas. Changes in the regulation of GHGs could impact a Fund's portfolio company investment or make future investments undesirable.

Hydraulic Fracturing. Certain entities in which a Fund may invest may use hydraulic fracturing in their core programs as a means of producing commercial quantities of oil and natural gas from reservoirs in which they operate. There have been a number of initiatives and proposed initiatives at the U.S. federal, state and local level to ban or regulate hydraulic fracturing and to study the environmental impacts of hydraulic fracturing and further regulation of the practice. Such initiatives at the federal, state or local levels to expand or implement regulation of hydraulic fracturing, together with the possible adoption of new laws or regulations that significantly restrict hydraulic fracturing, could result in delays, eliminate certain drilling and injection activities, make it more difficult or costly for a portfolio company to perform hydraulic fracturing, increase the portfolio company's costs of compliance and doing business, and delay or prevent the development of unconventional hydrocarbon resources from shale and other formations that are not commercial without the use of hydraulic fracturing. These effects on a portfolio company's operations could have a material adverse effect on the financial condition of a Fund and the value of its investments.

Cybersecurity Breaches and Identity Theft. Information and technology systems of CEM, its third-party service providers, its Funds, and the portfolio companies of its Funds may be vulnerable to damage or interruption from computer viruses, network failures, computer and telecommunication failures, infiltration by unauthorized persons and security breaches, usage errors by their respective professionals, power outages and catastrophic events such as fires, tornadoes, floods, hurricanes and earthquakes. If any systems designed to manage such risks are compromised, become inoperable for extended periods of time or cease to function properly, CEM, a third-party service provider, a Fund, and/or a portfolio company may have to make a significant investment to fix or replace them. The failure of these systems and/or of disaster recovery plans for any reason could cause significant business interruptions and result in a failure to maintain the security, confidentiality or privacy of sensitive data, including personal or financial information relating to investors. Such a failure could cause reputational harm, subject CEM and its affiliates to legal claims, or otherwise negatively affect business and financial performance.

Risk of Loss. A Fund may invest in distressed securities and in other businesses, assets, or instruments that may facilitate taking control of distressed issuers, assets, or businesses. These securities, assets and instruments by their nature are issued by or relate to companies in unstable financial condition, and thus entail substantial inherent risks. Although CEM will attempt to manage these risks, there can be no assurance that a Fund's investments will increase in value or that the Fund will not incur significant losses. CEM anticipates that a Fund's investments may incur losses, and thus investors should be prepared to lose all or substantially all of their capital commitment to the Fund.

Ability to Lend on Advantageous Terms; Competition and Supply. The Funds may make loans and purchase existing loans. A Fund's success in this area will depend, in part, on the Fund's ability to originate or obtain loans on advantageous terms. In making and purchasing loans, the Funds will compete with a broad spectrum of lenders, many of which have substantially greater financial resources and are better known than CEM and the Funds. Increased competition for, or a diminution in the available supply of, qualifying loans could result in lower yields on such loans, which could reduce returns to investors.

Loan Participations and Assignments. Participations and assignments involve special types of risk, including credit risk, interest-rate risk, liquidity risk, and the risks of being a lender. Participations in commercial loans may be secured or unsecured. Loan participations typically represent direct participation in a loan to a corporate borrower, and generally are offered by banks or other financial institutions or lending syndicates. When purchasing loan participations, a Fund assumes the credit risk associated with the corporate borrower and may assume the credit risk associated with an interposed bank or other financial intermediary, and may only be able to enforce its rights through the lender, and may assume the credit risk of the lender in addition to the borrower. The participation interests in which the Funds invest may not be rated by any nationally-recognized rating service.

Nature of Junior, Unsecured Investments. The Funds may invest in debt instruments that are unsecured and subordinated to substantial amounts of senior indebtedness, all or a significant portion of which may be secured. Such subordinated investments may be characterized by greater credit risks than those associated with the senior obligations of the same issuer. The ability of a Fund to influence a portfolio company's affairs, especially during periods of financial distress or following insolvency, frequently is substantially less than that of senior creditors. For example, under terms of subordination agreements, senior creditors are typically able to block the acceleration of the mezzanine debt securities held by a Fund, or other exercises by a Fund of its rights as a creditor. Accordingly, a Fund may not be able to take the steps necessary to protect its portfolio investments in a timely manner, or at all. In addition, the debt instruments in which the Funds invest may not be protected by financial covenants or limitations upon additional indebtedness and may have limited liquidity. Such debt securities may be low-rated or unrated by a recognized credit rating agency, or may be below investment grade, and are thus subject to greater risk of loss of principal and interest than higher-rated debt securities, due to a possible default by, or bankruptcy of, the issuers of the securities. Such debt securities are also subject to other creditor risks, including (i) the possible invalidation of an investment transaction as a "fraudulent conveyance" under relevant creditors' rights laws, (ii) environmental liabilities that may arise with respect to collateral securing the obligations, and (iii) significant risk of the issuer's inability to meet principal and interest payments on the obligations (credit risk). Additionally, adverse credit events with respect to any portfolio company, such as missed or delayed payment of interest and/or principal, bankruptcy, receivership or distressed exchange, can significantly diminish the value of a Fund's investments in any such company.

The investments of the Funds may be subject to early redemption features, refinancing options, prepayment options or similar provisions which, in each case, could result in the issuer repaying the principal on an obligation held by a Fund earlier than expected. In addition, depending on fluctuations of the equity markets and other factors such as interest rate sensitivity, market perception of the creditworthiness of the issuer, warrants, and other equity securities may become worthless (market risk). In addition, evaluating credit risk for debt securities involves uncertainty because credit rating agencies throughout the world have different standards, making comparison across countries difficult. Furthermore, the market for credit spreads is often inefficient and illiquid, which can make it difficult to accurately calculate discounting spreads for valuing financial instruments. There can be no assurance that attempts to provide downside protection through contractual or structural terms with respect to portfolio investments will achieve their desired effect.

Sub-Investment Grade and Unrated Debt Obligations. The investment strategy of the Funds focuses on investing in instruments that may include first lien loans and notes, second lien loans and notes, senior unsecured and senior subordinated notes and capital leases, each of which may be sub-investment grade debt obligations. Investments in the sub-investment grade categories are subject to greater risk of loss of principal and interest than higher-rated instruments and may be considered predominantly speculative with respect to the obligor's capacity to pay interest and repay principal. Such investments also may be considered subject to greater risk than those with higher ratings in the case of deterioration of general economic conditions. Because investors generally perceive that there are greater risks associated with non-investment grade instruments, the yields and prices of such instruments may fluctuate more than those that are higher-rated. The market for non-investment grade instruments may be smaller and less active than those that are higher-rated, which may adversely affect the prices at which these investments can be sold and result in losses to the Funds, which, in turn, could have a material adverse effect on the performance of the Funds.

In addition, the Funds may invest in debt investments which may be unrated by a recognized credit rating agency, which may be subject to greater risk of loss of principal and interest than higher-rated debt obligations or debt obligations which rank behind other outstanding investments of the obligor, all or a significant portion of which, may be secured on substantially all of that obligor's assets. The Funds may also invest in debt investments which are not protected by financial covenants or limitations on additional indebtedness. Any of these factors could have a material adverse effect on the performance of the Funds.

High Yield Debt. The Funds may invest in debt securities that may be classified as "higher-yielding" (and, therefore, higher-risk) debt securities. In most cases, such debt will be rated below investment grade or will be unrated, and will face both ongoing uncertainties and exposure to adverse business, financial, or economic conditions and the issuer's failure to make timely interest and principal payments. The market for high yield securities has experienced periods of volatility and reduced liquidity. High yield securities may or may not be subordinated to certain other outstanding securities and obligations of the issuer, which may be secured by substantially all of the issuer's assets. High yield securities may also not be protected by financial covenants or limitations on additional indebtedness. The market values of certain of these debt securities may reflect individual corporate developments. General economic recession or a major decline in the demand for products and services in the industry in which the borrower operates would likely have a materially adverse impact on the value of such securities or could adversely affect the ability of the issuers of such securities to repay principal and pay interest thereon and increase the incidence of default of such securities. In addition, adverse publicity and investor perceptions, whether or not based on fundamental analysis, may also decrease the value and liquidity of these high-yield debt securities.

Credit Ratings. Credit ratings of assets represent the rating agencies' opinions regarding their credit quality and are not a guarantee of quality. A credit rating is not a recommendation to buy, sell or hold assets and may be subject to revision or withdrawal at any time by the assigning rating agency. If a rating assigned to any corporate debt obligation is lowered for any reason, no party is obligated to provide any additional support or credit enhancement with respect to such corporate debt obligation. Rating agencies attempt to evaluate the safety of principal and interest payments and do not evaluate the risks of fluctuations in market value; therefore, ratings may not fully reflect the true risks of an investment. Also, rating agencies may fail to make timely changes in credit ratings in response to subsequent events, so that an obligor's current financial condition may be better or worse than a rating indicates. Consequently, credit ratings of any corporate debt obligation are only a preliminary indicator of investment quality, and not a completely reliable indicator of investment quality. Rating reductions or withdrawals may occur for any number of reasons and may affect numerous assets at a single time or within a short period of time, with material adverse effects upon the corporate debt obligation. It is possible that many credit ratings of assets included in or similar to the corporate debt obligation will be subject to significant or severe adjustments downward.

Lender Liability Considerations and Equitable Subordination. It is possible that lender liability or equitable subordination claims affecting a Fund's investments could arise without the direct involvement of the Fund.

Investments in Highly Leveraged Companies. The leveraged capital structure of highly leveraged companies will increase their exposure to certain factors such as rising interest rates, downturns in the economy, or deterioration in the financial condition of the company or the energy industry.

Illiquid Investments. There can be no assurances that purchasers of the Funds' privately-held investments will be found, or otherwise as to the timing and amount of the distributions, if any, made by the Funds.

Reliance on Portfolio Company Management. Each portfolio company's day-to-day operations will be the responsibility of such company's management team and not CEM. Although CEM is generally responsible for monitoring the performance of each investment of a Fund and the Funds generally invest in companies operated by strong management, there can be no assurance that the existing management team, or any successor, will be able to operate a given portfolio company in a successful manner.

Prepayment Risk. The value of a Fund's assets may be affected by prepayment rates on loans. Prepayment rates are influenced by changes in interest rates and a variety of economic, geographic, and other factors beyond the Fund's control. Therefore, the frequency at which prepayments (including voluntary prepayments by borrowers and liquidations due to defaults and insolvency) occur on a Fund's investments can adversely impact the Fund and prepayment rates cannot be predicted with certainty making it impossible to insulate the Fund from prepayment or other such risks. Early prepayments give rise to increased re-investment risk, including, for example, when the prevailing level of interest rates falls, the Fund may be unable to re-invest cash in a new investment with an expected rate of return at least equal to that of the investment prepaid.

Credit Risk. The Funds may invest in leveraged loans, high-yield securities and other unsecured investments, each of which involves a higher degree of risk than senior secured loans. Furthermore, a Fund's right to payment and its security interest, if any, may be subordinated to the payment rights and security interests of the senior lender. Certain of these investments may have an interest-only payment schedule, with the principal amount remaining outstanding and at risk until the maturity of the investment. In addition, certain instruments may provide for payments-in-kind, which have a similar effect of deferring current cash payments. In such cases, a portfolio company's ability to repay the principal of an investment may be dependent upon a liquidity event or the long-term success of the portfolio company, the occurrence of which is uncertain. A Fund's return to its investors would be adversely impacted if such an issuer becomes unable to make principal and interest payments on outstanding debt when due.

If a Fund invests in the credit products of a borrower or issuer and such borrower or issuer breaches any of the covenants or restrictions under the indenture governing notes or the credit agreement that governs loans of such issuer or borrower, such breach could result in a default under the applicable indebtedness as well as the indebtedness held by such Fund. Such default may allow the creditors to accelerate the related debt and may result in the acceleration of any other debt to which a cross-acceleration or cross-default provision applies. This could result in an impairment or loss of the Fund's investment or result in a prepayment (in whole or in part) of the Fund's investment.

Spread Widening Risk. For reasons not necessarily attributable to any of the risks set forth herein (for example, supply/demand imbalances or other market forces), the prices of the debt instruments and other securities in which the Funds invest may decline substantially. In particular, purchasing debt instruments or other assets at what may appear to be “undervalued” or “discounted” levels (due to perceived market dislocations or otherwise) is no guarantee that these assets will not be trading at even lower levels at a future time of valuation or at the time of sale. It may not be possible to predict, or to hedge against, such “spread widening” risk. Additionally, the perceived discount in pricing from previous environments described herein may still not reflect the true value of the assets underlying debt instruments in which the Funds invest.

Public Health Emergencies; COVID-19. The COVID-19 outbreak caused a worldwide public health emergency, which strained healthcare resources and resulted in an extensive number of infections, hospitalizations, and deaths. A new COVID-19 outbreak, or any other public health emergency, could have a significant adverse impact and result in significant losses to the Funds. The extent of the impact on the Funds’ and their portfolio companies’ operational and financial performance will depend on many factors, all of which are highly uncertain and cannot be predicted, and this impact may include significant reductions in revenue and growth, unexpected operational losses and liabilities, impairments to credit quality and reductions in the availability of capital. These same factors may limit the ability of the Funds to source, diligence and execute new investments and to manage, finance and exit investments in the future, and governmental mitigation actions may constrain or alter existing financial, legal and regulatory frameworks in ways that are adverse to the investment strategy the Funds intend to pursue, all of which could adversely affect the Funds’ ability to fulfill their investment objectives.

CFIUS and National Security Clearance Considerations. Certain investments may be subject to or require review and approval by the U.S. Committee on Foreign Investment in the United States (“CFIUS”), such as where CFIUS-related laws, regulations or guidance deem non-U.S. persons or entities under their control (such as a Fund, co-investors and/or rollover sellers) to be acquiring a U.S. business (including a business with assets, employees, facilities, and/or operations in the United States). CFIUS has the authority to review proposed or existing transactions or investments or to seek to impose limitations on or prohibit investments, and CFIUS filings and other considerations can materially impact transaction timing, feasibility, certainty and costs. In certain circumstances, CFIUS considerations have the potential to prevent a Fund from maintaining or pursuing investments, or limit the universe of available buyers for an existing investment. Any of these factors have the potential to adversely affect a Fund’s performance, and the likelihood that CFIUS considerations will be implicated is expected to increase where non-U.S. limited partners comprise a substantial percentage of a Fund. Under the governing documents of each Fund, the relevant General Partner generally is authorized, although not required, to excuse or otherwise limit non-U.S. limited partners’ ability to invest in U.S. businesses (or to exercise voting or advisory board rights with respect thereto) in order to anticipate or comply with CFIUS considerations. However, there can be no assurance that invoking any such excuse provisions or other limitations will allow the Fund to proceed with or maintain any investment, or to avoid losses relating thereto. Similar considerations are expected to apply with respect to reviews by non-U.S. national security or investment clearance regulators.

ITEM 9. DISCIPLINARY INFORMATION

There are no disciplinary disclosures to report.

ITEM 10. OTHER FINANCIAL INDUSTRY ACTIVITIES AND AFFILIATIONS

A. Broker-Dealer

Neither CEM nor any of its management persons is registered, or has an application pending to register, as a broker-dealer or a registered representative of a broker-dealer.

B. Futures and Commodity Trading

Neither CEM nor any of its management persons is registered, or has an application pending to register, as a futures commission merchant, commodity pool operator, commodity trading advisor or an associated person of the foregoing entities (provided that CEM has the right to apply for such registration and may do so in the future).

C. Material Relationships

Each Fund's general partner is a CEM affiliate and included under CEM's registration as a registered investment adviser in accordance with the Advisers Act and SEC guidance. These general partners are CEC Fund II GP, LLC, CEC Fund III GP, LLC, and CEC Fund IV GP, LLC.

These affiliated investment advisers operate as a single advisory business together with CEM and serve as managers or general partners of private investment funds, and share common owners, officers, partners, employees, consultants or persons occupying similar positions. CEM and the general partners are under common control and subject to CEM's code of ethics and compliance programs adopted pursuant to the requirements of the Advisers Act.

Legal Counsel Representation. Latham & Watkins LLP ("Fund Counsel") serves as the primary outside counsel to CEM, each Fund, and their affiliates. J. Michael Chambers, a partner of Fund Counsel, serves as the relationship partner for CEM and its Funds. J. Michael Chambers is the brother of J. Robert Chambers, the primary owner of CEM. CEM and its Funds also engage other legal counsel for certain matters from time to time, including when Fund Counsel is conflicted on representation between existing clients.

Fund Counsel's dual representation of CEM, the Funds, and their affiliates presents a potential conflict of interests on legal matters. To address and mitigate this potential conflict, CEM has adopted and operates in accordance with its Code of Ethics and the fiduciary duties set forth therein (see Item 11(A), Code of Ethics – Fiduciary Duties). Further, each subscription agreement accepted by a Fund's general partner from an investor contains a waiver of any actual or potential conflict arising from Fund Counsel's dual representation of CEM, such Fund, and their affiliates, including in connection with the Fund's formation, operation, and the offering and issuance of the Fund's limited partnership interests to investors.

In addition to the dual representation discussed above, Fund Counsel may also act as counsel to a portfolio company, equity sponsors of a portfolio company, other creditors of a portfolio company or an agent thereof, a party seeking to acquire some or all of the assets or equity of a portfolio company, or a person engaged in litigation with a portfolio company.

Legal Fees. CEM has not and will not enter into any legal fee arrangement with Fund Counsel (or any other legal representation) whereby CEM will receive a fee or billing rate discount that the Funds do not receive or otherwise disadvantages the Funds; provided, however, that CEM or a Fund occasionally may agree with its legal counsel, on a case-by-case basis, to reduce an invoice amount or billing rate. Examples of such agreements between the parties may include, without limitation, (i) the invoiced fees do not reflect the quality of services rendered, (ii) a Fund receives a fee reduction from legal counsel in connection with an unconsummated investment or other transaction, or (iii) alternative fee arrangements are agreed upon based on the nature and scope of the proposed legal engagement.

Reservoir. Reservoir Capital Group, L.L.C. (together with its affiliates, “Reservoir”) is a privately-held investment firm located in New York. Certain investment funds managed by Reservoir participate in the Funds. The interests owned by affiliates of Reservoir are generally subject to preferred terms, including, without limitation, a reduced rate of management fees and carried interest, the right to appoint a member of the advisory committee of the Fund in which it invests, co-investment rights, and special reporting and informational rights.

Reservoir also has a minority interest in CEM and certain of its affiliates, including the entity which receives any allocations of carried interest (the “Minority Stake”). In prior years, Reservoir has participated on the investment committees of the Funds in which it invests either as a voting member or a non-voting observer. As of March 2016, Reservoir elected to forego its right to appoint a voting member or non-voting observer to the investment committee of each Fund in which it invests. Notwithstanding the foregoing, Reservoir may at any time designate a representative as either a voting member or a non-voting observer to the investment committee of any Fund in which Reservoir is a limited partner.

While CEM expects Reservoir to maintain the Minority Stake for the foreseeable future, there is no assurance that Reservoir will retain this interest.

In connection with its investments in the Funds and their affiliates and the Minority Stake, Reservoir has greater access to information than other investors about the Funds and is entitled to receive information regarding the Funds and CEM activities, including, without limitation, information about the performance of the Funds and the composition of their portfolios. Other investors generally do not have, and are not entitled to have, the same type, amount or timeliness of information about the Funds.

The current and future businesses of Reservoir may overlap with the business of CEM and/or the Funds, and Reservoir may engage in activities in the normal course of its businesses or establish new businesses that compete or conflict with the interests and activities of the Funds. Such activities could adversely affect the Funds, for example, by affecting the prices or availability of financial instruments in which the Funds may invest and the transactions in which the Funds may engage. Reservoir may be actively engaged in transactions in the same securities and instruments or with the same issuers in which the Funds, directly or indirectly, may be invested. Reservoir may compete with the Funds for investment opportunities and is under no obligation to share any investment opportunity, idea or strategy with the Funds or CEM. Reservoir may also engage in trading activities -- for its own account or on behalf of its clients -- that are detrimental to the Funds.

Reservoir may have relationships with other investment vehicles and accounts that may give rise to potential conflicts. For example, Reservoir may sponsor, advise, underwrite, manage, or invest in investment vehicles and accounts that pursue investment strategies similar to, or overlapping with, those of the Funds. Reservoir may also provide services or benefits to another investment vehicle, account or investment manager that competes with the Funds or CEM. In some cases, Reservoir may owe fiduciary duties to its clients that may result in actions on behalf of such clients that are materially adverse to the interests of the Funds, its portfolio companies or the limited partners. Other present and future activities of CEM, its affiliates and Reservoir may give rise to additional conflicts of interest.

The unique relationship with Reservoir described above, including the actual or potential conflicts of interest, has been described and disclosed in the private offering and subscription materials for each particular private offering and each Fund's governing documents, and the investors in each Fund have acknowledged the existence of, and waived any claims with respect to, such actual or potential conflicts of interest, in the governing documents and subscription materials for each Fund.

D. Other Investment Advisers

CEM does not recommend or select other investment advisors for our clients.

ITEM 11. CODE OF ETHICS, PARTICIPATION OR INTEREST IN CLIENT TRANSACTIONS AND PERSONAL TRADING

A. Code of Ethics

CEM adopted a Code of Ethics in 2012, consisting of policies and procedures reasonably designed to ensure compliance by CEM and its employees with the Advisers Act and its rules and regulations, and to reflect CEM's fiduciary duties to its Funds and investors. The Code of Ethics describes the general standards of conduct that CEM expects of all CEM employees. The Code of Ethics focuses, among other things, on three specific areas where employee conduct has the potential to adversely affect clients: misuse of confidential or nonpublic information; outside business activities; and personal securities trading. Failure to uphold the Code of Ethics may result in disciplinary sanctions against employees, including termination of employment with CEM.

Investors and prospective investors in the Funds may request a copy of the Code of Ethics by contacting Samuel Barrett, Chief Compliance Officer (the "CCO"), at 713-554-6706 or ops@chambersenergy.com.

Fiduciary Duties. As a fiduciary, CEM must act in the best interests of the Funds and the investors. In other words, employees may not benefit at the expense of the Funds or the investors. To that end, employees must follow basic principles guiding all aspects of CEM's business, as set forth in the Code of Ethics:

- Funds' and investors' interests come before employees' personal interests and before CEM's interests.
- CEM must fully disclose all material facts about conflicts of which it is aware between CEM and its employees' interests on the one hand, and Fund interests on the other.
- Employees must operate on CEM's behalf and on their own behalf consistently with CEM's disclosures and to manage the impacts of those conflicts.

- CEM and its employees must not take inappropriate advantage of their positions of trust with or responsibility to the Funds and the investors.
- CEM and its employees must always comply with all applicable securities laws.

Misuse of Nonpublic Information. The Code of Ethics contains a policy against the misuse of nonpublic information in conducting business for CEM, as well as in personal trading. CEM and its employees may, from time to time, come into possession of material nonpublic or other confidential information which, if disclosed, might affect an investor's decision to buy, sell or hold a security. Under applicable law and CEM policy, CEM and its employees are prohibited from improperly disclosing or using such information for their personal benefit or for the benefit of any person, regardless of whether such person is a Fund or an investor.

Accordingly, should CEM or its employees come into possession of material nonpublic or other confidential information, CEM and its employees are prohibited from communicating such information to investors, and CEM and its employees have no responsibility or liability for failing to disclose such information to investors as a result of following their policies and procedures designed to comply with applicable law. Due to these restrictions, the Funds may not be able to initiate a transaction that they otherwise might have initiated and may not be able to sell an investment that they otherwise might have sold.

The Code of Ethics sets forth extensive requirements regarding misuse of material nonpublic information and personal trading.

Outside Business Activities. CEM employees are required to report any outside business activities to the CCO. If any are deemed to conflict with CEM's or a Fund's interests, such conflicts will be fully disclosed to the Funds or the employee will be directed to cease such activity. Holding board positions in a public company and/or any energy company that is not a portfolio company must be pre-approved by the CEO or CCO.

Personal Securities Trading. See Item 11(C) below.

B. Participation or Interest in Client Transactions

CEM complies with restrictions provided in the applicable governing agreements of the Funds relating to principal transactions or other affiliated transactions, in which CEM or its employees may have interests that are not aligned with the interests of one or more of its Funds.

Principal transactions are generally defined as transactions where an adviser, acting as principal for its own account or the account of an affiliate, buys from or sells any security to any advisory client. An agency cross-transaction is defined as a transaction where a person acts as an investment adviser in relation to a transaction in which the investment adviser acts as broker for both the advisory client and for another person on the other side of the transaction.

Client cross-transactions occur where an adviser executes a securities transaction between two (or more) of its clients. These can create conflicts of interest because, by not exposing such buy and sell transactions to market forces, clients may not receive the benefits of best price, or an adviser might seek to prop up the performance of one fund by selling under-performing assets to another fund in order, for example, to earn higher fees in the aggregate.

It is CEM policy not to execute any principal transactions for Fund accounts unless (i) the investor advisory committee of the particular Fund deems the transaction to be in the best interest of the particular Fund, (ii) the CCO and the Fund (by vote of the limited partners or advisory committee, as applicable) give prior consent, and (iii) the transaction complies with SEC requirements. CEM also generally refrains from cross-trading between Fund accounts unless the consent of both Funds is obtained from the respective advisory committees of the Funds.

Principals and employees of CEM are prohibited from personally investing in any Fund investment or portfolio company (see Item 11(D) below). CEM principals and employees may serve, from time to time, as directors of certain portfolio companies and, in that capacity, will be required to make decisions that consider the best interests of such portfolio company and their respective shareholders. In certain circumstances (e.g., situations involving bankruptcy or near-insolvency of a portfolio company), actions that may be in the best interests of the portfolio company may not be in the best interests of the Funds, and vice versa. Accordingly, in these situations, there may be conflicts of interests between such individual's duties as an employee of CEM and such individual's duties as a director of such portfolio company.

Certain affiliates of CEM, third-party investors, and other persons may in some cases co-invest directly in a portfolio company. Generally, CEM will select which investors or other persons are informed of co-investment opportunities based on various factors, including (but not limited to) the sophistication of the investor, the ability of the investor to fund and complete the investment on a timely basis, or the investor's expression of interest. Investors that co-invest in portfolio companies may be in a position to obtain additional information regarding the applicable portfolio company that may not generally be available to other investors in the Fund.

C. Personal Securities Trading; Investment Alongside Funds

CEM has adopted insider trading policies in its Code of Ethics. CEM prohibits all employees from personal trading in individual securities or options on individual securities, including futures, forward contracts, and physical commodities, except for certain permitted transactions.

The following personal securities transactions are not subject to such prohibitions:

- Liquidating transactions of securities acquired prior to commencing employment with CEM, or received by inheritance or by marriage, subject to prior written approval by the CEO or the CCO.
- Transactions in non-energy securities which comprise the S&P 500 stock market index (as maintained by S&P Dow Jones Indices LLC) on the actual trade date of such proposed transaction (each a "S&P Security"), subject to the S&P 500 Transaction Guidelines set forth below.
- Transactions in broad-based, index-like products (such as exchange traded funds) and in real estate investment trusts, provided such transactions are not excessive or distracting to the employee as determined by the CCO.
- Transactions in government/municipal bonds, in broad-based open-ended or closed-ended mutual funds, and in foreign equivalent open-ended unit trusts (and similar instruments).

- Transactions in private securities which do not exceed $1,000,000 in a particular private security (any transaction greater than $1,000,000 will require the prior written approval of the CEO and the CCO and after such transactions are first offered to the Funds, if applicable).
- Transactions in real estate for investment purposes, provided such transactions are not excessive or distracting to the employee as determined by the CCO.
- Transactions in private investment funds (e.g., hedge funds, private equity funds and other pooled investment vehicles), subject to prior written approval by the CEO or the CCO.
- Transactions in separately managed accounts with an outside investment manager where the employee does not have trading discretion. A determination of the CCO as to whether an employee does or does not have trading discretion over an account shall be conclusive for purposes of this policy.

An employee may execute and hold these permitted transactions either personally or through an entity (e.g., a limited liability company or limited partnership) established by such employee to hold the investments.

Employees are required to submit monthly statements of securities holdings directly from their broker or financial institution (or the CCO must have online login credentials to an employee's brokerage accounts). These are reviewed by the CCO periodically to ensure compliance with CEM's policies; the CCO must report any findings of unusual or unauthorized activity to the CEO. CEM reserves the right to cancel an employee's personal account order or transaction.

S&P 500 Transaction Guidelines. CEM employees may execute S&P Security transactions subject to satisfying the following conditions and rules, which satisfaction thereof is subject to the CCO's sole discretion and determination:

- Any proposed S&P Transaction must consist of only S&P Securities. The CCO has the sole discretion to determine whether any security qualifies as a S&P Security.
- Employees may not purchase or sell any S&P Security that has been classified under the "Energy" sector of the Global Industry Classification Standard (GICS).
- Employees may only purchase or sell a S&P Security during the first five (5) business days of any fiscal quarter.
- Employees may only sell a S&P Security upon the six (6) month anniversary of the trade date of such S&P Security. If an employee makes multiple purchases of a S&P Security, none may be sold until the six-month trade date anniversary of the last purchase of such S&P Security.
- Any S&P Security transaction requires the CCO's pre-approval; the CCO has the sole discretion to approve any S&P Security transaction.

D. Personal Trading Contemporaneous with Client Transactions

Employees are prohibited from holding or personally trading in any securities that CEM recommends or trades on behalf of any Fund. See Items 11(A) through 11(C) above.

ITEM 12. BROKERAGE PRACTICES

A. Selection of Broker-Dealers

The Funds do not regularly or frequently trade public securities; transactions are conducted generally on an originated and negotiated basis. However, for Fund investments in which public or institutional securities are purchased or sold, CEM anticipates trading such securities through a broker or other intermediary providing a supply of securities of interest to the relevant Fund.

Best Execution. CEM's policy is to attempt to obtain the "best execution" for all such transactions by the Funds. CEM will use its best judgment to select a broker-dealer most capable of providing best execution on an overall basis in the purchase or sale of a publicly-traded security on behalf of a Fund. When evaluating broker-dealers for a transaction, CEM executives will note that best execution does not mean the lowest dollar cost. "Best execution" is the execution of a trade at the most favorable net price, considering all reasonably relevant circumstances, and with a view to the maximization of overall value to the Fund on behalf of which the trade is made. In selecting a broker to execute client transactions, CEM will consider a variety of factors, including, among other things: (i) execution capabilities with respect to the relevant type of order, including the ability of the broker to provide an adequate supply of the security; (ii) transaction costs; (iii) the reputation of the firm being considered; and (iv) responsiveness to requests for trade data and other financial information.

In general, CEM strives to eliminate or minimize the possibility of any trading errors. Examples of trade errors include: selling instead of buying; buying or selling the wrong security (e.g., ABC rather than BAC). CEM's policies and procedures require an employee who believes a trade error has occurred to contact the CCO immediately (or a member of CEM management if the CCO is unavailable). CEM will strive to resolve trade errors before the trade settles. If it is not possible to reverse the trade, the CCO will consult with the trader as to the proper resolution. The authorized CEM employee responsible for the transaction that leads to the trading error will be required to prepare a written description of each error (that a broker cannot or will not "break") and the resolution thereof, and send such description to the CCO for record-keeping and compliance purposes.

Soft Dollars. CEM occasionally may receive research and information from brokers. This is a benefit to CEM, because CEM does not have to produce or pay for the research or related services. Thus, CEM could conceivably have an incentive to select a broker-dealer based on this interest, rather than on its clients' interest in receiving most favorable execution. However, CEM does not participate in any soft dollar arrangements, and thus the receipt of research or related services does not and will not influence CEM's brokerage selection. CEM selects brokers solely based on the factors described above.

Brokerage for Client Referrals. CEM does not receive referrals for clients from any broker-dealers.

Directed Brokerage. As the Funds are all private investment funds, CEM selects all broker-dealers. Funds do not direct brokerage.

B. Aggregation of Orders of Securities for Client Accounts

Because the Funds generally conduct transactions on an originated and negotiated basis, CEM does not frequently place buy and sell orders on behalf of the Funds with broker-dealers. CEM also does not aggregate the purchase or sale of securities for various client accounts other than investment vehicles that comprise a Fund. However, if the Funds conduct trading through a broker-dealer, orders will be aggregated whenever practicable and cost-efficient. Such trades would be allocated separately to each participating Fund.

ITEM 13. REVIEW OF ACCOUNTS

CEM's investment team professionals review the operations of the Funds on a periodic basis. CEM regularly makes available to each investor in the Funds, in accordance with the applicable limited partnership agreement of each Fund, reports containing (i) annual audited financial statements, (ii) quarterly unaudited estimates of the Funds' investment performance, and (iii) quarterly unaudited estimates of the balance of each investor's capital account in the Fund. CEM may provide investors with more frequent reports. There are no specific triggers to launch a portfolio review on a non-periodic basis.

ITEM 14. CLIENT REFERRALS AND OTHER COMPENSATION

A. Non-Client Benefits

CEM does not receive economic benefits from third parties for providing investment advice or advisory services to the Funds or the investors. CEM receives administrative agent fees in respect of credit investments where it serves as administrative agent and could receive other fees (including, but not limited to, underwriting fees, monitoring fees, or other similar fees), with respect to portfolio companies in which a Fund has invested. To address this potential conflict, any such fees, when received, are offset dollar-for-dollar against the management fees otherwise payable each Fund's investors. These potential fee arrangements beyond receipt of the management fee or carried interest are disclosed in the private offering materials for each particular private offering and governed by the Funds' governing documents. CEM employees, or other persons acting on CEM's behalf, who serve on the board of directors or in a similar capacity of the Funds' portfolio companies, typically do not receive any compensation from a portfolio company while acting in such capacity, but do receive reimbursements of certain expenses arising out of such board participation (including travel expenses).

B. Client Referrals and Compensation

CEM or its affiliates have, and may in the future, enter into arrangements in which one or more third-party placement agents will assist in the capital raising efforts of one or more of the Funds in exchange for a fee. The fee paid to the placement agent is generally calculated as a percentage of funds raised by the placement agent, as specifically negotiated between CEM and the placement agent and memorialized in a written agreement. Such fees are ultimately borne by the limited partners to whom such fees relate, but would offset management fees payable by such limited partners dollar-for-dollar. These types of placement agent arrangements are disclosed in the relevant private offering materials of each Fund.

ITEM 15. CUSTODY

Custody is defined as having access to clients' (or investors') securities or funds. Since the general partners of the Funds are affiliated with CEM, CEM is considered to have custody of all Funds' assets.

CEM manages this risk by:

- Requiring two-person approval process on investment-related wires;
- Engaging a Public Company Accounts Oversight Board-registered and inspected accounting firm to audit each Fund's financial statements annually;
- Sending each Fund investor a copy of such Fund's audited financial statements annually within 120 days such Fund's fiscal year end; and
- Using a qualified custodian to hold Fund assets or securities.

ITEM 16. INVESTMENT DISCRETION

CEM has discretionary authority to manage the investment activity of the Funds through the investment committees comprised of CEM employees. Additionally, Reservoir may appoint representative as a voting member or non-voting observer to any investment committee of a Fund in which it is a limited partner. While investors are expected to participate in a Fund's overall investment program, CEM has entered, and may in the future enter, into side letters or other similar agreements with certain Fund investors that have the effect of establishing rights under, supplementing or altering a Fund's limited partnership agreement or a Fund investor's subscription agreement, including certain excuse rights.

The authority to transfer or offset fees, make performance allocations, and/or make distributions from the accounts are granted in the Funds' governing documents, including the execution of a power of attorney by each Fund investor in order to participate in a Fund. The Funds' governing documents limit the discretionary authority of CEM to manage a Fund's investment portfolios, as negotiated with investors in each Fund.

ITEM 17. VOTING CLIENT SECURITIES

Although CEM's investment program generally does not include holding and voting publicly-traded equity securities, CEM may be presented with the responsibility to vote proxies for certain securities held by the Funds. Voting decisions may involve CEM employees that are also active in the management of the Funds' investment portfolios. To the extent CEM exercises or is deemed to be exercising voting authority of client securities, it will vote those securities in accordance with its proxy voting policy.

It is the policy of CEM to vote proxy proposals, amendments, consents or resolutions in the best interests of its Funds, taking into account relevant short-term and long-term factors, including (i) the impact on the value of the returns of the relevant Fund; (ii) the alignment of portfolio company management's interest with such Fund's interest, including establishing appropriate incentives for management; (iii) the ongoing relationship between the relevant Fund and the portfolio companies in which it invests, including the continued or increased availability of portfolio information; and (iv) industry and business practice.

In all circumstances, CEM will seek to avoid material conflicts of interest between the interests of CEM and the interests of the Funds. If CEM determines that it has, or may be perceived to have, a conflict of interest when voting a proxy, CEM will address matters involving such conflict of interest in the following manner: (i) if the proxy vote would be against CEM's own interest in the matter (i.e., against the perceived or actual conflict), then CEM may vote such proxy as it determines to be in the best interest of the Fund without taking any action described further herein, other than memorializing the rationale of such proxy vote in writing; (ii) if CEM believes it should vote in a way that may also benefit, or be perceived to benefit, its own interest, then CEM must take action in accordance with the relevant Fund's governing documents or as otherwise determined by CEM to be in the best interest of the Fund in voting such proxy, which may include, but is not limited to, seeking approval from the Fund's investor advisory committee.

CEM's proxy guidelines require the CCO or his designee to review all proxies related to a Fund's publicly-traded securities prior to submission, and thus CEM will ensure that it is the designated party to receive proxy voting materials from portfolio companies or intermediaries. The CCO coordinates the receipt of each proxy, the communication of the votes to third parties, and the maintenance of all supporting documentation. The CCO will maintain written or electronic copies of each proxy statement received and of each executed proxy, including for at least two years in CEM's offices and an additional three years in an easily accessible off-site location, in the case of a publicly traded security. Fund investors may receive a copy of CEM's proxy policies and procedures at any time upon request by contacting CEM at (713) 554-6706 or ops@chambersenergy.com.
