Within the spectrum of investment instruments, the Firm offers advisory expertise on various vehicles, including but not limited to mutual funds, exchange-traded funds ("ETFs"), equities, bonds, treasuries, options, real estate, and other investment vehicles. As for ETF advisory services, the Firm currently serves as a sub-adviser to The Meet Kevin Pricing Power ETF.

B. Types of Advisory Services Offered

Plato's Philosophy offers three types of advisory services: ETF Advisory Services, Personalized Wealth Plan Services, and Fundamental Analysis Services. Each of these services is described more fully below.

1. ETF Advisory Services

Plato's Philosophy serves as the sub-advisor to The Meet Kevin Pricing Power ETF. The Firm provides advisory services related to trades, fund diversification, and future market planning for the ETF. This service is not offered to the general public.

2. Personalized Wealth Plan Services

The Firm offers a personalized wealth plan video service in which clients are able to receive a video that is personally tailored to their financial situation and goals and outlines recommended action steps for them to take to grow their wealth.

Upon the client signing the required agreement paperwork and paying the applicable flat fee, the client will receive a financial survey and an upload link to provide information and documents related to their current financial status to the Firm. This includes providing information regarding the client's bank accounts, brokerage accounts, assets, liabilities, debts, properties, etc. After receiving the requested data, one of the Firm's investment adviser representatives will reach out and speak with the client a couple of times to review his/her financial documents and provided information and discuss the clients' goals and timetable. The Firm's investment adviser representatives will then meet internally to discuss the client's financial status and objectives and develop a cohesive action plan for the client to take with a goal to grow their wealth. One of the investment advisor representatives will then video-record themselves to explain the various components and recommended steps of the plan. The client will then be sent that video by electronic video link for the client to watch and review at the client's leisure.

The Firm shall remove and will not include all personally identifiable/confidential information in the video for cybersecurity, personal security, and other purposes before it is delivered to the client. The Firm wholly owns the video and reserves the right to use the video in the future for any purpose, including, but not limited to, marketing, training, new products, etc. The client is granted a non-exclusive, limited-use license in the video.

3. Fundamental Analysis Services

The Firm offers clients the opportunity to submit a publicly-traded company for the Firm to perform fundamental analysis on and provide a video to the client, summarizing the analysis.

Once the client signs the required agreement and pays the flat fee, the client will be given a form to submit a publicly-traded company's name to the Firm for it to review. The Firm's team of investment adviser representatives will then perform a fundamental analysis of the company. This analysis shall include a review of the company's financial reports, news releases, social media, and other publicly available information. Once the team has completed their analysis of the company, one of the investment adviser representatives will then record a video, outlining the analysis and the various findings that the team found regarding this company in its present state and potential for market growth. The client will then be sent that video by electronic video link for the client to watch and review at the client's leisure.

The Firm shall remove and will not include all personally identifiable/confidential information in the video for cybersecurity, personal security, and other purposes before it is delivered to the client. The Firm wholly owns the video and reserves the right to use the video in the future for any purpose, including, but not limited to, marketing, training, new products, etc. The client is granted a non-exclusive, limited-use license in the video.

ITEM 7: TYPES OF CLIENTS

Plato's Philosophy generally provides investment advice to individuals, companies, investment companies, and investment advisers. The Firm does not maintain any client investment accounts and does not manage any clients' funds.

ITEM 8: METHODS OF ANALYSIS, INVESTMENT STRATEGIES AND RISK OF LOSS

A. Methods of Analysis

Plato's Philosophy employs a distinctive approach for financial advice. The Firm harnesses fundamental analysis, scrutinizes economic variables encompassing money supply, diverse interest rates, and commodity valuations, all contributing to its projection of forthcoming economic landscapes. These insights intricately inform the Firm's strategic asset allocation choices and the curation of investments tailored to specific portfolios. Moreover, the Firm diligently factors in the influence of political dynamics where they intersect with the broader economic landscape. As the Firm navigates this readily shifting environment, it is essential for the Firm's clients to recognize the inherent risk associated with securities investment, requiring a willingness to bear potential losses.

B. Investment Strategies

At the core of the Firm's approach to translating investment insights into actionable guidance lies its central strategy of asset allocation. Guided by a blend of meticulous economic projections and individual client preferences – encompassing sought-after returns, risk sensitivity, investment timeline, tax considerations, and distinct limits – the Firm skillfully orchestrates a diverse array of investments across various asset classes and styles. This harmonious mix is tailor-made to align with each client's unique financial goals, crafting a roadmap that resonates with aspirations and constraints.

C. Risk of Loss

Investing in securities inherently entails a notable risk of loss, with all investments carrying specific risks that investors must bear. The Firm's analytical methods and investment strategies are meticulously crafted to incorporate a vigilant awareness of potential loss. It is crucial for clients to be well-versed in various risks, including but not limited to:

Interest-Rate Risk: The ebb and flow of interest rates can trigger fluctuations in investment prices. For instance, rising interest rates can render existing bonds less appealing, leading to a decline in their market values.

Market Risk: External events and conditions, both tangible and intangible, can lead to price drops in stocks, bonds, mutual funds, and other securities. This type of risk is independent of a security's specific underlying circumstances.

Inflation Risk: The erosion of purchasing power due to inflation means that a dollar today won't stretch as far as a dollar next year.

Currency Risk: Investments in foreign markets are exposed to shifts in the dollar's value relative to the originating country's currency, also known as exchange rate risk.

Political and Legislative Risks: The intricate interplay of laws and circumstances in various countries where companies operate can change swiftly and dramatically, impacting businesses, particularly those operating beyond U.S. borders.

Reinvestment Risk: There's a risk that future investment proceeds might need to be reinvested at a lower rate of return, especially concerning fixed income securities.

Business Risk: Industry-specific or company-specific risks are at play here. For instance, oil-drilling companies must navigate the lengthy process of discovering and refining oil before generating profits, in contrast to electric companies with a steadier income stream.

Liquidity Risk: Liquidity, the ease of converting investments into cash, is influenced by the level of interest in a standardized product. Treasury Bills exemplify high liquidity, while real estate properties lack it.

Financial Risk: Excessive borrowing to fund operations amplifies profitability risks, as companies must meet obligations during good and challenging times. Failing to meet loan obligations during financial stress can lead to bankruptcy and market value decline.

These insights underscore the Firm's dedication to ensuring clients are well-informed about the multifaceted risks inherent in investment endeavors.

ITEM 9: DISCIPLINARY INFORMATION

Kevin Paffrath, President and CEO of Plato's Philosophy, is currently a named defendant in a class action lawsuit filed in the United States District Court for the Southern District of Florida. Mr. Paffrath denies any liability under such strained and novel legal theories and is seeking all possible means of dismissing the lawsuit. A settlement has been agreed upon for the case and is awaiting court approval.

It is unlikely that these items will create a conflict of interest between Plato's Philosophy and any of its clients, however, Mr. Paffrath will likely be using his knowledge, background, and experience in these areas as part of giving financial advice to clients, especially in relation to buying and selling real estate. There may also arise a situation in which a client could have the opportunity to purchase shares of House Hack, Inc. The principals and staff of Plato's Philosophy, LLC have adopted a Code of Ethics for the purpose of instructing its personnel in their ethical obligations and to provide rules for their personal securities transactions. The Firm owes a duty of loyalty, fairness, and good faith towards its clients and the obligation to adhere not only to the specific provisions of the Code but to the general principles that guide the Code. The Code of Ethics covers a range of topics that may include: general ethical principles, receipt and giving of gifts, reporting personal securities trading, exceptions to reporting securities trading, reportable securities, initial public offerings and private placements, reporting ethical violations, distribution of the Code of Ethics, review and enforcement processes, amendments to Form ADV and supervisory procedures. B. Interest and/or Participation in Financial Advisory Recommendations

Based upon a client's stated objectives, Plato's Philosophy may, under certain circumstances, recommend the purchase or sale of securities in which the Firm and/or its affiliates have an interest. Such recommendations will only be made to the extent that they are reasonably believed to be in the best interests of the client. Additionally, as part of Plato's Philosophy's fiduciary duty to clients, the Firm and its associated persons have a duty to at all times put the interests of the clients first, and at all times are required to adhere to the Firm's Code of Ethics.

The Firm's principals and staff may have positions in securities that it also recommend to clients. Plato's Philosophy's recommendations to clients may differ from client to client, based on each client's unique circumstances and financial goals. The Firm may also recommend purchase of a security for one client while recommending the sale of that security for another. However, as a fiduciary, Plato's Philosophy has a duty to act for the benefit of its clients and place clients' interests before its own. Client recommendations have priority over interests in securities and other investments of which our principals and staff may own. Principals and staff must adhere to the Firm's Personal Trading Policy at all times.

To help mitigate any real or potential conflicts of interest associated with these practices, the compliance department of Plato's Philosophy reviews employee trades involving reportable securities each quarter and holding reports annually. The personal trading reviews help ensure that the personal trading of employees does not affect the markets, and that clients of the Firm receive preferential treatment. Since most employee trades are small mutual fund trades, exchange-traded fund trades, and large cap publicly-listed company trades, the transactions generally do not affect the securities markets or adversely impact clients. It should be noted that under the Firm's Code of Ethics, employees of the Firm are not required to report transactions involving open-ended mutual funds to the Firm's compliance department and some employees may hold outside brokerage accounts consisting of non-reportable securities, which consequently are not subject to the compliance department's quarterly transactions review.

No further review of the client's information will be performed once the personalized wealth plan video has been electronically delivered to the client absent some further agreement between the Firm and the client.
