KITCHING PARTNERS, LLC

Item 4: Advisory Business

Kitching Partners, LLC is an investment advisor to high net worth, individual, business, and non-profit clients. It is a “fee-only” advisory firm and has been registered with the Securities and Exchange Commission since 2023. The firm is owned in its entirety by Stephen Kitching.

Family Enterprise Services

Kitching Partners’ focus is on assisting clients manage their wealth as stewards across generations. We believe in getting to know our clients beyond their financial success to provide comprehensive support across family governance structuring, estate planning, philanthropic giving, and strategic business consulting, among others. Kitching Partners offers tailored solutions to enable our clients to manage their wealth as a successful family enterprise, working alongside our clients to enhance and safeguard their family and financial legacies.

Asset Management

Kitching Partners provides individualized investment management services dependent upon the client’s needs. We offer our clients investment strategies that align with their long-term goals and values for the purpose of preserving and growing their wealth.

Generally, these services are provided on a discretionary basis. This means that while we will continue an ongoing relationship with each client, being involved in various stages of their lives and decisions to be made, we will not seek specific approval of changes to the securities in client accounts. Because we take discretion when managing accounts, clients engaging us will be asked to execute a Limited Power of Attorney (granting us the discretionary authority over the client accounts) through their custodian. This Limited Power of Attorney does not grant Kitching Partners the authority to make any withdrawals or transfers in or out of a client account beyond the deduction of fees, if applicable, as described in Item 5. Such other transfers will only be made at the specific direction of the client. Therefore, while investment management services are typically provided on a discretionary basis, certain transactions may require limited client participation. Clients should be aware that some recommendations may be time-sensitive, and, as such, their performance may be affected if Kitching Partners is unable to reach them on a timely basis. Clients can always make deposits or withdrawals in their accounts at any time.

Clients may place reasonable restrictions on the management of assets, including specific securities or types of securities. However, clients should understand that significant restrictions may decrease the ability of Kitching Partners to meet the client’s goals.

Each client’s portfolio will be invested according to that client’s investment objectives. Kitching Partners determines these objectives with the client by reviewing client-provided documents, client interviews and/or asking the client to put these objectives in writing. Once we ascertain your objectives for each account, we will present a portfolio for your needs.

Kitching Partners does not participate in or offer or sponsor a wrap program.

Working with Us

The first step in working with Kitching Partners is to gather information about the client, their family, their goals and their current circumstances. Clients provide information regarding their income, tax status, savings, investments, and other information deemed relevant for our review. Clients will engage with Kitching Partners in a series of conversations and meetings where the client learns about Kitching Partners' thought process and methods, and Kitching Partners gathers information needed to develop a proposed plan for moving forward. After this initial series of meetings, Kitching Partners will begin to review, research, and prepare an individualized plan for the client for an agreed upon fee. This plan is presented at a separate meeting, where the client reviews and considers whether to engage Kitching Partners. Ultimately this plan forms the map from which both the client and Kitching Partners take direction throughout the engagement. Clients that engage Kitching Partners services will execute an Agreement that outlines the responsibilities of both the client and Kitching Partners.

Assets Under Management

As of May 31, 2023, Kitching Partners has $415,752,483 assets under management.

Item 5: Fees and Compensation

A. Fees Charged

All Kitching Partners' clients will be required to execute an Agreement which describes both fees and services provided.

Asset Management

Generally, annual asset management fees range between 0.15% and 01.00%.

Fees are negotiable, and may be higher or lower than this range, based on the nature of the account. Lower fees for comparable services may be available from other sources. Factors affecting fee percentages include the size of the account, complexity of asset structures, services provided, length of time the client has been with the firm, and other factors.

Family Enterprise Services

Clients engaging Kitching Partners for family enterprise services may do so on a fixed fee basis. The fee is negotiable and subject to change according to the complexity of the client and the specific client's circumstances, because some clients have more challenging needs than others. These complexities may not necessarily correlate with greater net worth. Generally fixed fees range from $3,000 to $20,000 per month. Fees for family enterprise services may also be included in the agreed upon fee for asset management services for those clients that engage Kitching Partners for both Asset Management and Family Enterprise Services.

B. Fee Payment

Fees for our services can be paid in a number of ways. In instances where Kitching Partners has an established custodial arrangement, clients will have the ability to elect that fees be debited directly from their account. If fee debit is unavailable at your custodian, Kitching Partners will invoice you directly for our services. Depending upon where your funds are held you may also elect to have fees collected through a combination of both account debit and direct invoice. Your client Agreement will describe your specific fee arrangement, however, generally asset based fees are paid quarterly, in advance, based upon the market value of the assets being managed by Kitching Partners on the last day of the previous billing period as valued by the custodian of your assets. For example, if your annual fee is 1.00%, each quarter we will multiply the value of your account on the last day of the previous billing period by 1.00%, then divide by four to calculate our fee. To the extent there is cash in your account, it will be included in the value for the purpose of calculating fees if it is part of the investment strategy. If fees are collected by direct debit, once the fee calculation is made, we will instruct the account custodian to deduct the fee from your account and remit it to Kitching Partners. While almost all of our clients that have the ability to have their fee debited from their account choose to do so, we will invoice clients upon request and permit payment of fees by check payable to Kitching Partners.

For the initial quarter, the fee is calculated on a pro rata basis, meaning clients will pay a fee based on the number of days left in the quarter in which they engage Kitching Partners. In the event the advisory agreement is terminated, the fee for the final billing period is prorated through the termination date and the outstanding or unearned portion of the fee is refunded to the client, as appropriate.

Clients whose fees are directly debited will provide written authorization to debit advisory fees from their accounts held by a qualified custodian. Each month, clients will receive a statement from their account custodian showing all transactions in their account, including the advisory fee. Clients should carefully review their statements, including the fee amounts, and should contact Kitching Partners with any questions.

Fees will be due upon the mutually agreed upon terms as described in the client's Agreement with Kitching Partners.

C. Other Fees

There are a number of other possible fees that can be associated with holding and investing in securities including brokerage commissions, transaction fees, and other related costs and expenses. Clients will be responsible for these costs related to the purchase or sale of stocks, bonds, mutual funds, exchange traded funds, and private funds. For complete discussion of expenses related to each fund, investors should obtain and read a copy of the prospectus issued by that fund. Kitching Partners can direct investors to the offering material or prospectus for any manager or fund that is used in our strategies. These fees are charged by your account custodian or other applicable third party. Kitching Partners does not share in these fees.

Please make sure to read Item 12 of this informational brochure, where we discuss broker-dealer and custodial issues.

D. Pro-rata Fees

You may terminate Kitching Partners' services pursuant to the terms of your Agreement, generally upon providing written notice. If you terminate our relationship during a quarter, you will be entitled to a refund of any pre-paid and unearned management fees for the remainder of the quarter. Once your notice of termination is received, we will refund the unearned fees to you through check or a credit to your account if you previously elected for fees to be collected through direct debit.. Kitching Partners will cease to perform services, including processing trades and distributions, upon termination. In instances where Kitching Partners has an established custodial arrangement with your custodian, assets not transferred from terminated accounts within 30 (thirty) days of termination may be “de-linked”, meaning they will no longer be visible to Kitching Partners and will become a retail account with the custodian.

E. Compensation for the Sale of Securities

Kitching Partners does not receive any commissions or fees from investment product providers or custodians. Its source of income is from fees paid by clients.

Item 6: Performance Based Fees and Side-By-Side Management

To avoid conflict of interests, fees will not be based upon a share of capital gains or capital appreciation of your accounts (otherwise known as “performance-based fees”).

Item 7: Types of Clients

Clients advised may include individuals, families, trusts, charitable organizations and foundations, and corporations. Kitching Partners does not impose a stated minimum fee or minimum portfolio value for starting or maintaining an investment advisory account.

Item 8: Methods of Analysis, Investment Strategies and Risk of Loss

It is important for you to know and remember that all investments carry risks. Investing in securities involves risk of loss that clients should be prepared to bear.

Our investment process leads to portfolio construction based on an asset allocation aligned with the client’s needs. Each client’s portfolio will take into consideration various suitability factors such as their investment objectives, financial information, risk tolerance, time horizon, and constraints, including portfolio size, liquidity needs, and tax preferences, among others. This information will be obtained during the onboarding process and via periodic reviews and involve client interviews and documents provided by the client.

The following key principles are the foundation upon which we construct portfolios:

- Asset allocation.
- Long-run return and economic factor diversification.
- Complementary active and passive investing.
- Fundamental research alongside quantitative methods.
- Alternative investments.
- Tax and fee considerations.
- Disciplined investing.

We develop a set of asset allocation guidelines based on optimization techniques, and client assets will be invested in one or a combination of our proprietary or individually customized investment models. Investment models are developed for a variety of risk tolerances and differ based on target portfolio size and tax sensitivity. If appropriate, hedge funds, private credit funds, and derivatives may be used in portfolio construction. The selection of investments and target weights is based on both fundamental analysis and quantitative analysis of securities and funds.

We may periodically recommend changes to the asset allocation, investment strategies and client portfolios to achieve the individual client's objectives. While clients may be invested towards a target model allocation, there may be variations from client to client. It is important to remember that because market conditions can vary greatly, your asset allocation guidelines are not strict rules. Rather, we review accounts individually, and may deviate from the guidelines as we believe necessary. We may utilize both active and passive strategies within portfolios depending on the client's objectives.

There are no limits to the types of securities that may be placed in a strategy, or that Kitching Partners may evaluate for a client or for inclusion in a strategy. However, investments used in client accounts most typically include individual equity and, fixed income securities, open end mutual funds, closed end mutual funds, private funds and exchange traded funds.

Where appropriate we will consider a client's total balance sheet to create one overall portfolio for all of the client's accounts and registrations. While one asset may be held in multiple accounts, we strive to hold each asset in only one account, cutting down on transaction costs, reporting complexity, and portfolio redundancy. Instead of trying to make each individual account its own stand-alone portfolio, we strive to make all combined accounts one portfolio, without repeating the assets in each account. In so doing, we allow for economies of scale and greater utilization of efficient investment structures such as SMAs, that wouldn't otherwise be available in every account.

Additionally, as assets are transitioned from a client's prior advisors to Kitching Partners, clients may hold legacy securities and may place restrictions on individual security types. Legacy securities are those that a client owned prior to or separate from its Kitching Partners portfolio. If a client transitions mutual fund shares to Kitching Partners that are not the lowest-cost share class, and Kitching Partners is not recommending disposing of the security altogether, Kitching Partners will attempt to convert such mutual fund share classes into the lowest-cost share classes the client is eligible for, taking into account any adverse tax consequences associated with such conversion.

Depending on a client's given circumstances, Kitching Partners may recommend that a client rollover retirement plan assets to an Individual Retirement Account (IRA) managed by us. As a result, Kitching Partners may earn fees on those accounts. This presents a conflict of interest, as Kitching Partners has a financial incentive to recommend that a client roll over retirement assets into an IRA we will manage. This conflict is disclosed to clients verbally and in this brochure. Clients are also advised that they are under no obligation to implement the recommendation to roll over retirement plan assets. Kitching Partners attempts to mitigate this conflict by requiring that all investment recommendations have a sound basis for the recommendation, and by requiring advisors of Kitching Partners to acknowledge their fiduciary responsibility toward each client.

Additionally, part of the Kitching Partners process includes, where appropriate, involving multiple generations in order to facilitate family financial planning. This can increase the financial education of the later generations and manage expectations. However, potential for conflicts of interest exist with the exchange of intergenerational information. Kitching Partners attempts to minimize these conflicts by treating each household as its own fiduciary relationship. Information can only be shared across generations with each household's consent.

There are always risks to investing. Clients should be aware that all investments carry various types of risk including the potential loss of principal that clients should be prepared to bear. It is impossible to name all possible types of risks. Among the risks are the following:

- Political Risks. Political risk occurs when an investment's returns decline as a result of political changes or instability in a country.
- General Market Risk. Markets can, as a whole, go up or down for known and unknown reasons.
- Currency Risk. Currency risk, commonly referred to as exchange-rate risk, arises from the change in price of one currency in relation to another. When investing in another country denominated in a foreign currency, the changes in the value of the currency can change the value of investments in your portfolio.
- Regulatory Risk. Changes in laws and regulations may negatively impact the value of an investment.
- Tax Risks Related to Short Term Trading: Clients should note that Kitching Partners may engage in short-term trading transactions. These transactions may result in short term gains or losses for federal and state tax purposes, which may be taxed at a higher rate than long term strategies. Kitching Partners endeavors to invest client assets in a tax efficient manner, but all clients are advised to consult with their tax professionals regarding the transactions in client accounts.
- Purchasing Power Risk. Purchasing power risk, or inflation risk, is the risk that your investment's value will decline as the price of goods rises (inflation). Specifically, it refers to the possibility that rising prices associated with inflation could outpace the returns delivered by your investments.
- Equity Risk. Equity risk is the risk involved in the changing prices of stock investments, driven by business, financial, and valuation factors.
- Information Risk. All investment professionals rely on research in order to make conclusions about investment options. This research is always a mix of both internal (proprietary) and external (provided by third parties) data and analyses. Occasionally available data will contain errors and may lead to a compromised ability by the adviser to reach satisfactory investment conclusions.
- Margin Risk. "Margin" is a tool used to maximize returns on a given investment by using securities in a client account as collateral for a loan from the custodian to the client. The proceeds of that loan are then used to buy more securities. In a positive result, the additional securities provide additional return on the same initial investment. In a negative result, the additional securities provide additional losses. Margin therefore carries a higher degree of risk than investing without margin. Any client account that will use margin will do so in accordance with Regulation T.
- Short Sales. "Short sales" are a way to implement a trade in a security Kitching Partners feels is overvalued. In a "long" trade, the investor is hoping the security increases in price. Thus, in a long trade, the amount of the investor's loss (without margin) is the amount paid for the security. In a short sale, the investor is hoping the security decreases in price. However, unlike a long trade where the price of the security can only go from the purchase price to zero, in a short sale, the price of the security can go infinitely upwards. Thus, in a short sale, the potential for loss is unlimited and unknown, whereas the potential for loss in a long trade is limited and knowable. Risks specific to private placements, sub-advisors and other managers. If we invest some of your assets with another advisor, including a private placement, there are additional risks. These include risks that the other manager is not as qualified as we believe them to be, that the investments they use are not as liquid as we would normally use in your portfolio, or that their risk management guidelines are more liberal than we would normally employ.
- Concentration Risk. While Kitching Partners selects individual securities, including mutual funds, for client portfolios based on an individualized assessment of each security, this evaluation comes without an overlay of general economic or sector specific issue analysis. This means that a client's equity portfolio may be concentrated in a specific sector, geography, or sub-sector (among other types of potential concentrations), so that if an unexpected event occurs that affects that specific sector or geography, for example, the client's equity portfolio may be affected negatively, including significant losses.
- Transition risk. As assets are transitioned from a client's prior advisers to Kitching Partners there may be securities and other investments that do not fit within the asset allocation strategy selected for the client. Accordingly, these investments will need to be sold in order to reposition the portfolio into the asset allocation strategy employed by Kitching Partners. However, this transition process may take some time to accomplish. Some investments may not be unwound for a lengthy period of time for a variety of reasons that may include unwarranted low share prices, restrictions on trading, contractual restrictions on liquidity, or market-related liquidity concerns. In some cases, there may be securities or investments that are never able to be sold. The inability to transition a client's holdings into recommendations of Kitching Partners may adversely affect the client's account values, as Kitching Partners' recommendations may not be able to be fully implemented.

- Restriction Risk. Clients may at all times place reasonable restrictions on the management of their accounts. However, placing these restrictions may make managing the accounts more difficult, thus lowering the potential for returns.

- Risks Related to Investment Term & Liquidity. Securities do not follow a straight line up in value. All securities will have periods of time when the current price of the security is not an accurate measure of its value. If you require us to liquidate your portfolio during one of these periods, you will not realize as much value as you would have had the investment had the opportunity to regain its value. Further, some investments are made with the intention of the investment appreciating over an extended period of time. Liquidating these investments prior to their intended time horizon may result in losses.

- REITs: Kitching Partners may recommend that portions of client portfolios be allocated to real estate investment trusts, otherwise known as "REITs". A REIT is an entity, typically a trust or corporation that accepts investments from a number of investors, pools the money, and then uses that money to invest in real estate through either actual property purchases or mortgage loans. While there are some benefits to owning REITs, which include potential tax benefits, income and the relatively low barrier to invest in real estate as compared to directly investing in real estate, REITs also have some increased risks as compared to more traditional investments such as stocks, bonds, and mutual funds. First, REITs, even those traded on an exchange, can be hard to sell and receive full value (what is known as being "illiquid"). Second, real estate investing can be highly volatile. Third, the specific REIT chosen may have a focus such as commercial real estate or real estate in a given location. Such investment focus can be beneficial if the properties are successful but lose significant principal if the properties are not successful. REITs may also employ significant leverage for the purpose of purchasing more investments with fewer investment dollars, which can enhance returns but also enhances the risk of loss. The success of a REIT is highly dependent upon the manager of the REIT. REITs are used by Kitching Partners as a way to generate income for a portfolio. Even if a REIT drops in trading price significantly, its value in terms of income generation can still be present. If a significant drop in price for an individual REIT security in your portfolio is beyond your risk tolerance, please advise Kitching Partners of this preference, and your portfolio will not include REITs without your consent. Clients should ensure they understand the role of the REIT in their portfolio.

- Interest Rate Risks: The prices of, and the income generated by, most debt securities is affected by changing interest rates and by changes in the effective maturities. For example, the prices of debt securities generally will decline when interest rates rise and will increase when interest rates fall. In addition, falling interest rates may cause an issuer to redeem, "call," or refinance a security before its stated maturity date, which may result in having to reinvest the proceeds in lower-yielding securities.

- Credit risk and default risk: Debt securities are subject to credit risk, which is the possibility that the credit strength of an issuer will weaken and the price of the security will decline. Default risk is the ultimate manifestation of credit risk and occurs when an issuer of a debt security will fail to make timely payments of principal or interest. Ratings provided by credit rating services help to identify those issuers with more risk. Obligations of the U.S. government are said to be free of default risk.

- Risks of investing outside the U.S.: Investments in securities issued by entities based outside the United States may be subject to the risks described above to a greater extent. Investments may also be affected by currency controls; different accounting, auditing, financial reporting, disclosure, and regulatory and legal standards and practices; expropriation (occurs when governments take away a private business from its owners); changes in tax policy; greater market volatility; different securities market structures; higher transaction costs; and various administrative difficulties, such as delays in clearing and settling portfolio transactions or in receiving payment of dividends. These risks may be heightened in connection with investments in developing countries. Investments in securities issued by entities domiciled in the United States may also be subject to many of these risks. Your investments are not bank deposits and are not insured or guaranteed by the FDIC or any other governmental agency, entity, or person, unless otherwise noted and explicitly disclosed as such, and as such may lose value.

- MLPs: Kitching Partners may recommend that portions of client portfolios be allocated to master limited partnerships, otherwise known as “MLPs”. An MLP is a publicly traded entity that is designed to provide tax benefits for the investor. In order to preserve these benefits, the MLP must derive most, if not all, of its income from real estate, natural resources and commodities. While MLPs may add diversification and tax favored treatment to a client’s portfolio, they also carry significant risks beyond more traditional investments such as stocks, bonds and mutual funds. One such risk is management risk - the success of the MLP is dependent upon the manager’s experience and judgment in selecting investments for the MLP. Another risk is the governance structure, which means the rules under which the entity is run. The investors are the limited partners of the MLP, with an affiliate of the manager typically the general partner. This means the manager has all of the control in running the entity, as opposed to an equity investment where shareholders vote on such matters as board composition. There is also a significant amount of risk with the underlying real estate, resources, or commodities investments.

- Options. Options trading involves a significant degree of risk. The purchase of a put or call option may lose the entire premium paid. If a put or call option is written or sold, the loss is potentially unlimited.

Item 9: Disciplinary Information

There are no disciplinary items to report.

Item 10: Other Financial Industry Activities and Affiliations

A. Broker-dealer

Please refer to Item 12 which discusses Kitching Partners’ relationship with broker-dealers.

B. Futures Commission Merchant/Commodity Trading Advisor

Neither the principals nor any related persons are registered, or have an application pending to register, as a futures commission merchant, commodity pool operator, a commodity trading advisor, or an associated person of the foregoing entities.

C. Relationship with Related Persons

Certain of Kitching Partners’ Supervised Persons, in their individual capacities, are also licensed insurance agents with various insurance companies, and in such capacity, will recommend, on a fully-disclosed commission basis, the purchase of certain insurance products. While Kitching Partners does not sell such insurance products to its clients, Kitching Partners does permit its Supervised Persons, in their individual capacities as licensed insurance agents, to sell insurance products to its clients. A conflict of interest exists to the extent that Kitching Partners recommends the purchase of insurance products where its Supervised Persons receive insurance commissions or other additional compensation.

The owner of Kitching Partners' is an active investor and from time to time may invest in certain private investment deals sponsored by Kitching Partners' clients. In limited circumstances other Kitching Partners clients may also invest in such deals alongside the owner or independently in separate offerings from the same sponsor. This practice represents a conflict of interest in that such investments may create an incentive to direct client funds to them or to make investment decisions that will provide greater chance of protecting the underlying investment. Kitching Partners attempts to mitigate this conflict of interest through prior disclosure of the conflict before such investment is made, the refusal to direct any funds managed on a discretionary basis to such investments, and the waiver of fees levied on any client assets allocated to such investments. Additionally, Kitching Partners Supervised Persons are not permitted to participate in any privately offered investment opportunities if they will receive any rights, benefits, or terms, that are more favorable than those available to a client who may otherwise invest in such deals.

D. Other Advisers

Kitching Partners selects other investment advisors for our clients taking into consideration the client's goals, objectives, and risk tolerances. These may include third party managers of private funds and sub-advisors, among others. We do not receive any compensation for the selection of other managers.

Item 11: Code of Ethics, Participation or Interest in Client Transactions and Personal Trading

A. A copy of our Code of Ethics is available upon request. Our Code of Ethics includes discussions of our fiduciary duty to clients, political contributions, gifts, entertainment, and trading guidelines.

B. Kitching Partners does not recommend to clients that they invest in any security in which Kitching Partners, or any principal thereof has any material financial interest.

C. On occasion, an employee of Kitching Partners may purchase for his or her own account securities which are also recommended for clients. Our Code of Ethics details rules for employees regarding personal trading and avoiding conflicts of interest related to trading in one's own account. To avoid placing a trade before a client, employee trades must be reviewed by the Compliance Officer. Employee trades that are given approval must take place sufficiently apart in time from a client trade, so the employee receives no added benefit. Employee statements are reviewed to confirm compliance with the trading procedures.

Item 12: Brokerage Practices

A. Recommendation of Broker-Dealer

Selecting Brokerage Firms

Kitching Partners generally determines the brokers to effect client transactions on the basis of the clients' interests and desires and Kitching Partners' assessment of their execution and other services relative to the commission charged for each trade. Kitching Partners evaluates brokers' fees and commission rates in light of rates other advisers could readily obtain from brokers in general for similar transactions. Each client's advisory agreement generally gives Kitching Partners full authority to determine (without obtaining client consent or consulting with the client on a transaction-by-transaction basis) the brokers or dealers through which all transactions for the client's account will be executed. A client may, however, direct Kitching Partners to execute transactions for the client's account through a specified broker or dealer (the "Specified Broker"). A client may choose to direct Kitching Partners in writing to execute transactions through a Specified Broker if, for example, the client will be receiving other services from such Specified Broker.

Best Execution

Where a client authorizes Kitching Partners to select the brokers and/or dealers through which transactions for the client's account are executed, Kitching Partners allocates transactions to brokers and/or dealers for execution on such markets at such prices and at such commission rates (which may be in excess of the prices or commission rates that might have been charged for execution on other markets or by other brokers or dealers) as in the good faith judgment of Kitching Partners are appropriate. Kitching Partners considers the selection of brokers and/or dealers based not only on the available prices and rates of brokerage commissions, but also other relevant factors which can include: (a) the execution capabilities of the brokers and/or dealers; (b) the size of the transaction (c) the difficulty of execution; (d) the operational facilities of the brokers and/or dealers involved; (e) the risk in positioning a block of securities; (f) the quality of the overall brokerage and research services provided by the broker and/or dealer; and (g) research (including economic forecasts, investment strategy advice, fundamental and technical advice on individual securities, valuation advice, and market analysis), custodial, trade generation and management software, and other services provided by such brokers and/or dealers which are expected to enhance Kitching Partners' general management capabilities. Kitching Partners may cause a client's account to pay a broker or dealer a higher amount of commission for effecting a transaction for the client's account than another broker or dealer would have charged for effecting that same transaction if Kitching Partners determines in good faith that the amount of commission is reasonable in relation to the value of the brokerage and research services provided by the broker or dealer, viewed in terms of either the particular transaction or Kitching Partners' overall responsibilities with respect to the accounts for which Kitching Partners exercises investment discretion. Where a client directs Kitching Partners to effect transactions for the client's account through a Specified Broker, Kitching Partners does not negotiate brokerage commissions with respect to transactions executed by the Specified Broker for the client's account. Rather, the client and the Specified Broker agree on the commission rate that the Specified Broker will charge for transactions effected for the account. As a result, the client may pay higher commissions than those paid by Kitching Partners' clients who have not directed Kitching Partners to execute transactions through a specified broker or dealer depending upon: (a) the client's arrangement with the Specified Broker; (b) such factors as the number of securities, instruments, or obligations being bought or sold for the client, whether round or odd lots are being acquired for the client and the market for the security, instrument or obligation; (c) the fact that the client will be foregoing any benefit from savings on execution costs that Kitching Partners may obtain for its clients through negotiating volume commission discounts on batched transactions. In addition, the client may not receive the lowest available price with respect to certain transactions effected for the client's account. Clients that restrict the ability to execute trades for their accounts away from their custodian through a prime broker services agreement may receive lower commissions for certain trades but may also be traded separately in a less advantageous manner than those trades which can be aggregated with other accounts that allow for prime brokerage. Smaller size and certain other accounts are not eligible for prime brokerage.

Soft Dollars

Kitching Partners does not have any formal soft dollar arrangements where it uses a portion of commissions generated by trades by clients' accounts to pay specific amounts for research products and brokerage services from broker-dealers or research vendors. However, broker-dealers that custody client assets or effect securities transactions provide their own research services such as reports, access to website materials, and access to their analysts. In some cases, Kitching Partners uses that research if it is believed to be useful and of reasonable value, which can be considered a soft-dollar benefit for Kitching Partners even though there is no specific allocated amount of commissions in order for Kitching Partners to receive those benefits nor is there believed to be any impact to the transaction costs for our clients. Additionally, some broker-dealers also provide Kitching Partners with unsolicited research that Kitching Partners considers to have limited value and does not use, which also are technically considered soft dollar benefits for Kitching Partners. Generally speaking, all of Kitching Partners' clients benefit from research services provided to Kitching Partners by the brokers and dealers who effect transactions for Kitching Partners' client accounts. Kitching Partners periodically considers the value and usefulness of proprietary research services available through broker-dealers as part of assessing Kitching Partners' overall relationship with a broker-dealer and the quality of services provided, but Kitching Partners does not make specific trading or commission allocation decisions based on the research provided. Kitching Partners' receipt of research services from brokers and dealers that effect transactions for Kitching Partners' client accounts does not reduce Kitching Partners' customary research activities.

B. Aggregating Trades

Commission costs can sometimes be reduced by trading multiple accounts at the same time. This is called aggregating trades. Instead of placing multiple individual trades for the same security for multiple accounts, Kitching Partners executes (when advantageous) one trade for all of the accounts in which it wishes to trade and then allocates portions of the trade to each account after execution. If an aggregate trade is not fully executed, the securities are allocated to client accounts on a pro rata basis, except where doing so would create an unintended adverse consequence.

Item 13: Review of Accounts

All accounts are managed on a continuous basis, and each account is reviewed not less than annually. However, it is expected that market conditions, changes in a particular client's account, or changes to a client's circumstances will trigger a review of accounts. Reviews conducted by Kitching Partners are intended to review asset allocation, investment plan, and performance. Where appropriate, clients will receive statements and confirmations of trades directly from their broker-dealer/custodian. Please refer to Item 15 regarding Custody. Kitching Partners may also provide a monthly, quarterly, or annual report, or a combination thereof, dependent upon your Agreement.

Item 14: Client Referrals and Other Compensation

A. Economic Benefit Provided by Third Parties for Advice Rendered to Client.

Please refer to Item 12, where we discuss recommendation of Broker-Dealers.

B. Compensation to Non-Advisory Personnel for Client Referrals.

Kitching Partners accepts and appreciates client referrals from any source, but Kitching Partners does not currently compensate any persons for client referrals or have any solicitor relationships.

Item 15: Custody

Kitching Partners assumes custody of client funds in a number of ways. The most common practices that deem us to have custody include (1) directly debiting our fees from client accounts pursuant to applicable agreements granting such right and (2) permitting clients to issue standing letters of authorization (“SLOAs”).

Fee Debit

Where Kitching Partners has an established custodial arrangement, clients can provide written authorization to such custodian to have fees debited directly from their account and remitted to Kitching Partners in accordance with applicable custody rules. Each quarter, clients receive a statement from the custodian detailing the fees to be debited. Fees collected in this way are not independently calculated or verified by the custodian. The client also receives a statement from the account custodian showing all transactions in the account, including the fee debited.

Clients should carefully review statements and confirmations sent to them by their custodian and compare the information on reports prepared by Kitching Partners to the information in their custodian provided statements. Clients should alert Kitching Partners of any discrepancies.

Standing Letters of Authorization

Standing Letters of Authorization permit a client to issue one document that directs Kitching Partners to make distributions out of the client’s account(s) over time. Clients can provide an SLOA to their custodian to allow Kitching Partners to disburse funds to one or more third parties as specifically designated by the client.

In addition to the account custodian’s custody procedures, clients issuing SLOAs are required to confirm in writing that the account to which funds are distributed belongs to parties unrelated to Kitching Partners.

Surprise Independent Examination

Kitching Partners is required to engage an independent accounting firm to perform a surprise annual examination of the assets and accounts over which it maintains custody for reasons other than debiting fees. The most recent unqualified opinion issued by the independent accounting firm as a result of its latest surprise annual examination will be publicly available on the SEC’s website.

Item 16: Investment Discretion

When Kitching Partners is engaged to provide investment management services on a discretionary basis, we will monitor your accounts to ensure that they are meeting your asset allocation requirements. If any changes are needed to your investments, we can make the changes without your prior confirmation. These changes may involve selling a security or group of investments and buying others or keeping the proceeds in cash. You may at any time place restrictions on the types of investments we may use on your behalf, or on the allocations to each security type. You may receive at your request written or electronic confirmations from your account custodian after any changes are made to your account. You will also receive monthly statements from your account custodian. Clients engaging us on a discretionary basis will be asked to execute custodial paperwork as well as an Agreement with us that outlines the responsibilities of both the client and Kitching Partners.

Please see Item 4 herein for more information regarding discretionary management services.

Item 17: Voting Client Securities

At times, shareholders of stocks, mutual funds, exchange traded funds, or other securities may be permitted to vote on various types of corporate actions. Examples of these actions include mergers, tender offers, and board elections. Clients are required to vote proxies related to their investments or to choose not to vote their proxies. Kitching Partners does not accept authority to vote client securities. Clients receive their proxies directly from the custodian for the client account. Kitching Partners does not give clients advice on how to vote proxies.

Item 18: Financial Information

Kitching Partners does not require the prepayment of fees more than six (6) months or more in advance and therefore has not provided a balance sheet with this brochure.

There are no material financial circumstances or conditions that would reasonably be expected to impair our ability to meet our contractual obligations to our clients.
