In the Matter of

MIDDLEBURY SECURITIES,

EMAIL REPOSE:

LLC GREGORY OSBORN

Email Explanation:

EMAIL RESPONSE:

Request for a one week extension to respond.

September 7, 2016

Judge Cameron Elliott

Administrative Law Judge

In response to your violation of the email directive I enclose the following.

A Screen shot of my sent (outgoing) page showing this email was sent weeks ago and a screen shot of the original email – It is simply entitled “Visit.” You will note that in the subject field, that no one can use different fonts and colors in an IOS system. I cannot explain why this was sent on the date it states. However, if you look at my outbox, and my original email you will see when it was sent and that it was entitled VISIT. Apple in a separate grey text added the date they sent it. Furthermore, in late August our meeting was moved to Yesterday, Tuesday the 6th. And I drove back home last night. I would not have been there Thursday.

Sorry for your confusion.. However, I swear I would never disrespect your office, your directive to me regarding emails post my violation and clarification of questions, or this process. I am in the middle of proving my credibility and I wouldn't risk compromising myself with his action would suggest otherwise

Thank you for your consideration.

Regards.

Gregory J. Osborn

The screenshot shows an email client interface with a sidebar on the left containing folders like 'Inbox', 'Exchange', 'iCloud', 'Msn', 'Gmail', 'VIPs', 'Flagged', 'Drafts', 'Sent', 'Junk', 'Trash', and 'Archive'. The main pane displays a list of emails with columns for 'To', 'Subject', and 'Date Sent'. The selected email is from Greg Osborn to William Miller, dated August 2, 2016. The subject is 'visit'. The email body contains a message from Greg Osborn regarding a meeting in Washington D.C. on Thursday, September 7th.
