I was alerted to this today by an investor, and had to search my emails to find this notice in spam. I have not received any notifications by email however this is now allowed.

As far as our response, we have recently engaged Nanuk Warman from Pubco Reporting to handle the derivative and CPA work which has now completed. This is now also going through our new auditing firm (which we are engaging) of Conrad Smith with Pinnacle Accountancy Group. Our existing attorney of record Russell Weigel will be handling the legal work.

We got behind due to a previous accountant who was paid in advance for the work and never completed nor returned the money. This got us behind further and to add insult to injury our former auditor did the same. This of course hurt us greatly as we had other deals in place that fell through causing a financial shortfall.

That has now all changed due to a long and hard struggle. We in no way gave up fighting because we take seriously our responsibility to our shareholders. We now have a hit comic book and our publishing arm is taking off bigger than we could have ever imagined. White Widow #1 orders have already surpassed those of the infamous Walking Dead #1 comic book series, and our revenue in preorders for #2 exceed the first issue already! This is unprecedented.

We strongly believe it is in the best interest of our investors that we be given six months by which we will be fully current in our reporting, and be completely in the black for revenue... no small feat. We implore that you guys consider the extenuating circumstances beyond our control of outside forces and that at no time have given up but instead buckled down to protect our investors. We are committed to reporting, getting current, and making this a success for everyone. We hope you will understand that this is the very definition of just cause as our cause is indeed just.
