Pricing of Investment Company Shares Generally

AGENCY: Securities and Exchange Commission.

ACTION: Final rule.

SUMMARY: The Commission today is adopting an amendment to the rule under the Investment Company Act of 1940 which requires, in part, that an investment company’s redeemable securities be priced on each day the New York Stock Exchange is open for trading, not less frequently than once daily at that exchange’s close, even though the investment company’s portfolio securities might not be listed on that exchange. The amended rule unlinks the pricing of investment company shares from the New York Stock Exchange by requiring that the net asset value of such shares be computed (1) not less frequently than once daily on each day (other than days when no order to purchase or sell is received for redemption or order to purchase or sell such security was received) in which there is a sufficient degree of trading in the investment company’s portfolio securities that the current net asset value of the investment company’s redeemable securities might be materially affected by changes in the value of these portfolio securities, and (ii) at such specific time during the day as determined by a majority of the board of directors of the investment company no less frequently than annually.

EFFECTIVE DATE: December 1, 1979.

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION: The Commission today adopted amended paragraph (b) of rule 22c-1 (17 CFR 270.22c-1) under the Investment Company Act of 1940 ("Act") (15 U.S.C. 80-1 et seq.), which pertains to the computation of the current net asset value at which an investment company must sell, purchase or redeem its securities. The rule, as amended, generally provides that, for purposes of section 22c-1, the current net asset value of such a security shall be computed (1) not less frequently than once daily on each day (other than a day during which no tender for redemption or order to purchase or sell such security was received by the investment company) in which there is a sufficient degree of trading in the investment company’s portfolio securities that the current net asset value of the investment company’s redeemable securities might be materially affected by changes in the value of these portfolio securities, and (ii) at such specific time during the day as determined by a majority of the board of directors of the investment company no less frequently than annually. The reasons for the Commission’s proposing to amend rule 22c-1 were discussed thoroughly in Investment Company Act Release No. 10691 (May 15, 1979), 44 FR 29678 (May 22, 1979). Persons interested in a more detailed discussion of the amendment should refer to that release.

In response to its request for comments regarding the proposed amendment to rule 22c-1, the Commission received and considered 10 letters. The commentators, with a single exception, generally approved the intent of the amendment to unlink the requirement of computing current net asset value from the business days and hours of the New York Stock Exchange ("NYSE"). In response to recommendations included in these comments the Commission has made certain modifications to the amended rule.

Among the comments, several commentators addressed whether the amendment precludes an investment company’s determining the current net asset value of its redeemable securities more frequently than once during a particular day. The Commission emphasizes that the amendment is not intended to limit the frequency of such determinations. Accordingly, to resolve any potential ambiguity, the text of the amended rule has been modified specifically to address this concern.

A number of comments also questioned the Commission’s position that, if an investment company has a substantial portion of its portfolio securities listed on a foreign securities exchange, such company may be required to price its shares on each day that such exchange is open. Whether or not the principal national securities exchanges in the United States are open. These commentators believed, generally, that this position would involve significant and unwarranted costs. In this regard, the Commission notes that in most instances an investment company—by segregating orders received, although not necessarily making the appropriate calculations prior to the next business day—may satisfy its obligations to provide its investors with accurate pricing on days which are not business days in the United States in a manner which should not incur unreasonable costs.

Moreover, to ensure that an investment company will not be subject to unjustifiable expenses in computing the net asset value of its redeemable securities, the Commission has determined to incorporate into the text of the rule the "no-action" position of the Division of Investment Management that an investment company need not compute the net asset value on days when no such security was tendered for redemption and no order to purchase or sell such security was received. The Commission believes that its actions represent an appropriate balance between a concern that an investment company’s shareholders should not bear unreasonable costs and a concern that an investment company may not be able to determine its net asset value on days when no such security is listed on a foreign exchange.

1For example, in an application for exemption from the provisions of this existing rule 22c-1, an investment company which invested primarily in foreign securities understock to the Commission to accept orders received on Saturdays and certain holidays when the U.S. mail is delivered. C.T.

unreasonable operating costs and the need to provide investors with the benefits of accurate valuation during periods of significant trading activity in that investment company's portfolio securities.

Several commentators believed that the amendment's requirement that a majority of the directors who are not interested persons of the investment company determine, in addition to the determination of the entire board of directors, the specific time for computing the current net asset value could be construed to reflect a general, unwarranted distrust of management. These commentators asserted that such a determination is not a decision in which any directors have a personal interest and, therefore, it should not require independent consideration by the disinterested directors. The Commission had included this requirement in the amended rule in recognition of the responsibility of directors as "independent watchdogs" over an investment company's operations. In this regard, it also should be noted that this requirement accords with statutorily assigned special duties of disinterested directors regarding certain other decisions which management apparently has no direct financial interest. However, the Commission is persuaded on balance that there are sufficient investor protections in the rule, such that any practical benefit from a separate polling of the disinterested directors would be slight. Thus, it has withdrawn that condition from the rule.

Authority, Effective Date

The Commission amends rule 22c-1 pursuant to the provisions of section 22(c) (15 U.S.C. 80a-22(c)) and section 36(a) (15 U.S.C. 80a-3(d)) of the Act. The amendments to rule 22c-1 will be effective in 60 days.

Text of Adopted Rule

Part 270 of Chapter II of Title 17 of the Code of Federal Regulations is amended by amending paragraph (b) of §270.22c-1 as follows:

§270.22c-1 Pricing of redeemable securities for distribution, redemption and repurchase.

(b) For the purposes of this section, (1)

the current net asset value of any such security shall be computed (i) no less frequently than once daily on each day other than a day during which no such security was tendered for redemption and no order to purchase or sell such security was received by the investment company in which there is a sufficient degree of trading in the investment company's portfolio securities that the current net asset value of the investment company's redeemable securities might be materially affected by changes in the value of the portfolio securities, and (ii) at such specific time during the day as determined by a majority of the board of directors of the investment company no less frequently than annually; and (2) a "qualified evaluator" shall mean any evaluator which represents in a position to determine, on the basis of an informal evaluation of the eligible trust securities held in the Trust's portfolio, whether:

(I) The current bid price is higher than the offering side evaluation, computed on the last business day of the previous week, and

(ii) The offering side evaluation, computed as of the last business day of the previous week, is more than one-half of one percent ($5.00 on a unit representing $1,000 principal amount of eligible trust securities) greater than the current offering price.
