Self-Regulatory Organizations; The NASDAQ Stock Market LLC; Notice of Filing and Immediate Effectiveness of Proposed Rule Change to Add Routing Option SOLV and Corresponding Fees

Pursuant to Section 19(b)(1) of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 (“Act”),¹ and Rule 19b-4 thereunder,² notice is hereby given that on February 4, 2011, The NASDAQ Stock Market LLC (the “Exchange” or “Nasdaq”) filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission (“Commission”) the proposed rule change as described in Items I and II below, which Items have been substantially prepared by Nasdaq. The Commission is publishing this notice to solicit comments on the proposed rule change from interested persons.

I. Self-Regulatory Organization’s Statement of the Terms of Substance of the Proposed Rule Change

NASDAQ proposes to amend NASDAQ Rule 4758 to add a new routing option, SOLV, and add corresponding fees to the fee schedule.

The text of the proposed rule change is available on Nasdaq’s website <http://nasdaq.cchwallstreet.com>, at Nasdaq’s principal office, and at the Commission’s Public Reference Room.

II. Self-Regulatory Organization’s Statement of the Purpose of, and Statutory Basis for, the Proposed Rule Change rule change. The text of these statements may be examined at the places specified in Item IV below. Nasdaq has prepared summaries, set forth in Sections A, B, and C below, of the most significant aspects of such statements

A. Self-Regulatory Organization's Statement of the Purpose of, and the Statutory Basis for, the Proposed Rule Change

1. Purpose

The Exchange proposes to add a routing strategy, SOLV, that will offer members a means of accessing liquidity in a wide range of execution venues at varying price levels. SOLV will operate in the same manner as the current SAVE strategy in most respects, but will differ in the treatment of shares that remain unexecuted after completing the order route and posting to the NASDAQ book. Whereas such shares under SAVE, if locked or crossed by another market center, are not routed to the locking or crossing market center, SOLV orders will be routed out for execution at the other market center.

Under the new SOLV routing option, like under the current SAVE routing option, a market participant may specify that an order will either (i) route to NASDAQ OMX BX ("BX") and NASDAQ OMX PSX ("PSX"), then check the NASDAQ book, and then route to other venues on the SOLV System routing table, or (ii) check the NASDAQ book first and then route to destinations on the SOLV System routing table.³ Under the second option, the applicable routing table includes BX and PSX, and as is the case with all market destinations, the placement of BX and PSX on the routing table depends on NASDAQ's ongoing assessments of factors such as latency, fill rates, reliability, and cost. Under either routing option in SOLV and SAVE, shares that remain unexecuted after this routing are then posted on the NASDAQ book.⁴ Under SOLV, however, unlike under SAVE, unexecuted shares posted to the NASDAQ book will be routed out if the order is locked or crossed by another market center.

NASDAQ has designed SOLV to comply with the requirements of Rule 611 of Regulation NMS, and believes that SOLV, like all NASDAQ routing strategies, conforms to Reg-NMS requirements.

SOLV is similar in concept to a routing strategy offered by BATS called “SLIM,” under which an order checks the System for available shares, is routed to BATS Y-Exchange, Inc. and then is sent to destinations on the System routing table before posting to the book.⁵

This rule change also amends the fee schedule to account for the SOLV routing strategy. The fees charged for SOLV are the same as currently charged under SAVE. Under Rule 7018, NASDAQ passes through, without modification, applicable BX and PSX fees or rebates. In the case of BX, this means that NASDAQ passes through the $0.0014 per share executed credit paid by BX to market participants when accessing liquidity, and in the case of PSX, NASDAQ will pass through the fee charged by PSX to market participants when accessing liquidity.⁶ SOLV thus provides market participants with the option of routing to a venue with a negative execution cost (BX) and a relatively lower execution cost (PSX) before accessing liquidity on NASDAQ and other venues. Market participants that wish to access NASDAQ before routing to BX and PSX may also do so using SOLV, and will receive the same pricing as those that opt to route to ⁴ Pursuant to NASDAQ Rule 4758(a)(1)(B), if a routed order is returned, in whole or in part, that order will receive a new time stamp reflecting the time of its return to the System.

⁵ Securities Exchange Act Release No. 63147 (October 21, 2010), 75 FR 66183 (October 27, 2010) (SR-BATS-2010-029).

⁶ The fee is currently $0.0013 per share executed, but NASDAQ OMX PSX anticipates increasing the fee to $0.0025 per share executed as of February 1, 2011.

BX and PSX first, subject to the fact that they are likely to have more shares executed on NASDAQ, at a higher cost, than those that use SOLV to route to BX and PSX first. SOLV orders that execute at venues other than NASDAQ, BX or PSX or NYSE will be charged $0.0026 per share executed, orders that execute at NYSE will be charged $0.0022 per share executed, and orders that execute in NASDAQ are charged the same execution fee as SAVE, which is $0.0027 per share executed.

2. Statutory Basis

The Exchange believes that the proposed rule change is consistent with the provisions of Section 6 of the Act,⁷ in general, and with Sections 6(b)(5) of the Act,⁸ in particular, in that the proposal is designed to prevent fraudulent and manipulative acts and practices, to promote just and equitable principles of trade, to foster cooperation and coordination with persons engaged in regulating, clearing, settling, processing information with respect to, and facilitating transactions in securities, to remove impediments to and perfect the mechanism of a free and open market and a national market system, and, in general, to protect investors and the public interest. The Exchange believes that the proposed routing option will accomplish those ends by providing more flexible options, inasmuch as it offers NASDAQ members a routing strategy with a wide range of execution venues at varying price levels.

The rule change is also consistent with Section 6 of the Act,⁹ in general, and with Sections 6(b)(5) of the Act,¹⁰ in particular, in that it provides for the equitable allocation of reasonable dues, fees and other charges among members and issuers and other persons using any facility or system which NASDAQ operates or controls. The fees assessed for SOLV are the same fees and rebates currently charged for the similar routing strategy SAVE. Use of the routing option is, of course, entirely voluntary.

B. Self-Regulatory Organization's Statement on Burden on Competition

Nasdaq does not believe that the proposed rule change will result in any burden on competition that is not necessary or appropriate in furtherance of the purposes of the Act, as amended.

C. Self-Regulatory Organization's Statement on Comments on the Proposed Rule Change Received from Members, Participants, or Others

Written comments were neither solicited nor received.

At any time within 60 days of the filing of the proposed rule change, the Commission summarily may temporarily suspend such rule change if it appears to the Commission that such action is necessary or appropriate in the public interest, for the protection of investors, or otherwise in furtherance of the purposes of the Act.
